It's really very hard to choose
From such an awful lot of news,
That clogs the wires every night,
Some sad, some serious, some light.

* * * *

The Earl of Craven finds himself in the same boat with the Countess Cathcart, and they'll both probably go back—but in, not on, the same boat. Oh, dear, no, we're too moral for that! Our immigration law appears to have been stolen bodily from the code of the Mikado:

"So he decreed, in words succinct,
That all who flirted, leered, or winked,
(Unless connubially linked,)
Should forthwith be beheaded.

* * * *

Wayne B. Wheeler announces that the drys are mobilizing for a counter-attack against the wets. According to our cartoonist, "The camels are coming!"

* * * *

Well, it looks as though the Agricultural Department has solved the problem of how Americans may grow their own tires and hot water bottles, if the 87,654,396 families in this country which are wasting their time raising ferns for the baywindow will adopt a rubber plant.

* * * *

England talks to America across the Atlantic by wireless, for the first time in history, and with but one minor accident—an "h" was dropped off Cape Race and is believed to have been lost.

* * * *

Five years ago, when the Agricultural Bloc compelled the Finance Committee to rewrite the internal revenue law in the matter of higher surtaxes, the bill was passed with the mental reservation that the House would make the necessary corrections, but on the show-down the House on that historic occasion reversed itself. As Chairman Green denounces the Senate amendments, the leadership of Mr. Coolidge faces the test which that of Mr. Harding was unable to meet.

* * * *

The Senate's tax answer to the President is that "there ain't going to be no core."

* * * *

Col. House averts the world-war —almost.

* * * *

The Prince of Wales popularizes the umbrella, a feat which only a member of the royal family could achieve in London.

* * * *

Income tax exemption for Americans living abroad may be merely a shrewd move on the part of the Riviera to counteract the influence of the Florida law.

* * * *

The truce on the Hill ends and politics is convened. "War even to the knife."

* * * *

Sad was the donkey's fate, indeed—
The one that stood and died,
Between two equal stacks of feed,
When he could not decide.
The public buildings vote today,
Makes Congress look like Jacks—
Shall they throw postoffice away,
And save the day for tax?
How sad it is to stand and sigh,
Thus fairly caught 'twixt "pork" and "pie!"

* * * *

Mme. Schumann-Heink and Andre Tardieu stage a come-back which ought to be terribly encouraging to Prince Carol and Babe Ruth.

* * * *

Maybe if Mexico didn't banish her clergy there wouldn't be any such tragedies as that at Tia Juana.

* * * *

It is to be hoped that the scientific test to be conducted this week of the power of the respective noises of the Senate and House will not create any jealousy between Coal Blazes and Tom Blanton.

* * * *

Count Salm
"Doesn't give a damn,"
To see the mother of his baby,
And he doesn't mean maybe.
Slam! Bam!

* * * *

They're going to paint the Coliseum blue, remodel the Pantheon into a modern apartment, convert the Castello Sant' Angelo into a gas house and turn the Forum into a tennis court. The Eternal City wasn't made in a day, but it's going to get a new fascist futuristic imprint in less time than that. Let Rome howl, Mussolini! Let the stand-patters rave—

"Theirs is the vanity, the learning thine; Touch'd by thy hand, again Rome's glories shine."

Representative Davey raises a smoke screen to cover his attack upon Uncle Sam's hard-working employes by declaring that Members of Congress are better men than the public is entitled to have." That theory went out of style with Commodore Vanderbilt.

MURDER IS CHARGED AGAINST ALL 7 MEN HELD IN TIA JUANA

Mexicans Are Accused of Causing Peteet Family to Die.

DEATH PENALTY WILL BE ASKED OF COURT

Gov. Rodriguez Orders Women Entertainers and Shady Characters Deported.

Tia Juana, Mexico, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Informations charging first-degree murder were presented in Mexican federal court here today against the seven men held as a result of the "shame suicide" of the Thomas Peteet family, following alleged attacks on Audrey and Clyde Peteet in Tia Juana.

Besides holding the men accountable for the death of the family in San Diego, the informations charge them with having attacked the two girls.

At the same time Mexican officials made the first official announcement that the death penalty will be asked in case the men are found guilty of the murder count. The court has 72 hours in which to pass upon the informations and will then set a date for the trial.

A decision from the court is not expected before tomorrow, but if the informations are sustained an early trial is probable.

Seeks Firing Squad.

Antonio M. Martinez, secretary of state for the northern district of Lower California, said the prosecution will strive for a sentence placing the men before a firing squad.

The informations specifically charge Luis M. Amador, proprietor of the Oakland bar here; Refugio L. Alvarez, bartender at the San Diego bar in Tia Juana; Francisco Navarro, taxicab driver; Salvador Espinosa, taxicab driver, and Juan York Sang, hotel owner, with attacks on Clyde Peteet. Zenaido Llanos, former chief of police of Tia Juana, and Francisco Gonzales, taxicab driver, are specifically charged with having attacked Audrey Peteet.

All seven are named in the murder charge.

The informations recite that Mrs. Carrie O. Peteet and the two daughters met their death at the hands of the husband and father, Thomas M. Peteet, from poisoning by gas; that responsibility for the deaths is on the seven prisoners.

Attacked in Autos.

Investigators, Mexican officials said, showed that the Peteet girls were attacked in automobiles on the way to a Hot Springs resort 14 miles out of Tia Juana. As the machines were in the use of the entire party, the accusations were laid against the entire seven instead of merely against Amador and Llanos, as was done by the coroner's jury in San Diego.

Officials again intimated today that the attack charge against Llanos probably will be dropped as the result of information given the authorities by his physician. They were unwilling to say what effect this would have on the murder charge against Llanos.

The decision to bring the murder charge against the seven was not reached until the last of the evidence had been taken. Previously it had been announced that the charges would be abduction and attack and that it was doubtful if the death penalty would be asked.

Gov Rodriguez of Lower California today ordered all women entertainers and suspicious characters deported from Tia Juana. All saloons of Tia Juana will be placed under cash bonds of $10,000 each, it was announced, to insure adherence to regulations. It also was made known that a number of suspicious characters may be banished to the Tres Marias islands in the Gulf of California.

Coolidges on Yacht For Overnight Trip

The President and Mrs. Coolidge attended the services at the First Congregational church yesterday morning and then boarded the Mayflower for an overnight trip down the Potomac.

Their guests on the Mayflower were Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio; Senator and Mrs. Lawrence C. Phipps, of Colorado; Representative and Mrs. Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, and Representative and Mrs. Henry L. Bowles, of Massachusetts.

England Talks to U. S. By Wireless Telephone

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.). England has talked to America by wireless telephone for the first time in joint experiments carried on by the British government and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. Voices carried clearly across the Atlantic and were heard in New York.

Although the United States has been talking to England by wireless for three years, W. B. Banning, of the telephone company, asserted this is the first time England has been able to reply by wireless telephone.

The voices were broadcast from a new radio station at Rugby.

Although the experiment was a success, transmission of overseas conversation has not yet reached the stage of perfection required for public use, Mr. Banning said. He added, however, that it was hoped soon to establist a regular transatlantic service.

$10,000,000 IS OFFERED EGYPT BY JOHN D., JR.

Gift to King and People, if Accepted, Will Be Used for Researches.

TO AID CAIRO MUSEUM

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 14 (By A. P.). The gift of $10,000,000 by John D. Rockefeller, jr., of New York, to King Fuad and the Egyptian people for the establishment of a great museum and archeological institute at Cairo is announced by Prof. James H. Breasted, acting as the representative of Mr. Rockefeller here.

Prof. Breasted, as chairman, and V. Everit Macy and Raymond B. Fosdick, of New York, compose the board of trustees to whom Mr. Rockefeller has entrusted what is believed to be the largest sum yet offered for humanistic science and research.

The $10,000,000 offer was made in a letter from Mr. Rockefeller, personally presented to King Fuad by Prof. Breasted, and the arrangement of practical details is being considered and discussed between the Rockefeller representatives and the Egyptian government.

"In offering this great sum to King Fuad, the Egyptian people and science," Prof. Breasted said in an interview, "Mr. Rockefeller has been moved by the fact that the whole world, especially the new world of the West, owes Egypt a cultural debt the magnitude of which has been increasingly revealed by the extraordinary archeological and scientific investigations of recent years.

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—John D. Rockefeller, jr., tonight denied through a representative that he had made any such gift as that

$500,000 Miami Fire Injures Four Persons

Miami, Fla., Feb. 14 (By A. P.). Damage of approximately $500,000 was incurred here today when flames spread in the warehouse of the McDonald Lumber Co., destroying the warehouse and damaging other buildings.

Four persons were slightly hurt in a rush to safety when a number of gasoline drums exploded. Those hurt were Mrs. N. M. Brickner, Princeton, Fla.; Milton Reinsburg, William Perry and John Franolich.

CAROL PAVING WAY TO RETURN, IS BELIEF

Letter to Patriarch of the Orthodox Church Urges National Unity.

Bucharest, Roumania, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Former Crown Prince Carol's recent renunciation of his rights to the Roumanian throne was not due to a dynastic or political conflict or even family quarrels, it is made clear in a letter sent by Carol from Milan to Miron Christea, patriarch of the Orthodox church and a member of the Prince Michael regency. The minister of the interior released the letter today for publication.

It contains a powerful plea to all Roumanians to sink their party differences and strive for national unity and advancement and give loyal support to the ruling sovereigns.

The feeling seems to be that Carol now regrets his escapade. The opinion even is expressed in diplomatic circles that the atmosphere possibly is being prepared for Carol's return.

SALM SEES HIS SON, BUT ROW FOLLOWS; DOWAGER IN TEARS

Child Taken Away Again by Detective After a Dispute in Hotel.

CHILD WAILS LOUDLY; CONFUSION RAMPANT

Count's Mother Hysterical as He Waves Court Order and Demands Rights.

Palm Beach, Fla, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—The first meeting between Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten and his 18-month-old son, Peter Constantine, ended in a squabble this afternoon between the detectives guarding the child and the Salm forces.

After a short argument, during which Baby Peter's wails blended with the sobs of the count's mother, the detectives and nurse took the baby back to the residence of the Countess Millicent.

The incident took place in the count's room in the Hotel Royal Poinciana. As soon as a detective and nurse had entered with the child Count Salm objected to the presence of the detective. In turn, the detective objected to allowing the count to see his son in his room, the detective proposing instead some part of the hotel grounds or the beach.

Brandishes Court Order.

The count brandished the court order which he alleged allowed him to see the child in the hotel and stated that if he could not see the baby in his room, he did not want to see him at all. Whereupon the nurse and detective took the child away and the count sought his lawyers to determine his rights in the case.

One detective remainded in the countess' car outside the hotel, and the other two fended off photographers as the baby was taken into the hotel lobby. While one of the detectives was inquiring as to the count's room, the baby was seated on the hotel desk. No one in the hotel lobby paid particular attention to the child, who clapped his hands and gazed keenly about.

Detective Griffin, of the countess' retinue, the nurse and the baby then went into the count's room.

The count did not waste time greeting his heir. He and his mother conevrsed in German and then the count strenuously objected

New Move Is at Hand In Rhinelander Case

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Feb. 14.—An important announcement concerning the next step in the marital troubles of Leonard Kip Rhinelander and his negro wife, Mrs. Alice Beatrice Jones Rhinelander, is expected next week when Judge Isaac N. Mills, counsel for Rhinelander, returns from Florida.

Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for the woman, has not filed his brief in opposition to Judge Mills' motion that the verdict of a jury upholding the marriage be set aside. This has led legal experts to say that the woman may file suit for separation.

3,000 in Indiana Vote Secession From Klan

Kokomo, Ind., Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Three thousand klansmen, meeting here today, are understood to have voted to secede from the order of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan of Georgia, Inc., and form an independent organization.

The meeting was called by "insurgents" in protest of the recent appointment of W. Lee Smith, of Evansville, as grand dragon in Indiana and because they believed H. W. Evans, imperial wizard at Atlanta, Ga., had gone too far for the good of the order in his alleged dictation of the klan's politics, it was reported.

Margaretta du Pont Announces Betrothal

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—The engagement was announced today of Miss Margaretta L. du Pont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irenee du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., to Crawford Hallock Greenewalt.

Mr. Greenewalt is employed as a chemical engineer by the du Pont Co.

French See Barbarians Of U. S. Spoiling Styles

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Paris, Feb. 14.—"Save French fashions from the barbarians."

This is the slogan of the campaign started in Paris to establish a national style academy to force the dressmakers to conform to "the best French taste" and not pander to American tastes. At a moment when Paris is overrun with American buyers, a writer in Le Journal presses this demand:

"The discreet elegance inherent with the French is being spoiled by the red Indian eccentricities of buyers from America, who conquered us during the war. Dressmakers cater to their tastes entirely. They are ruining our esthetics in dressmaking like they have ruined French cooking."

He proposes an institute for style to be attached to the French academy and composed of painters, sculptors, great actresses and fashionables among the nobility.

11 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRES AS 2 HOMES ARE BURNED

Parents, Two Boys and Girl Are Severely Burned; Babies Trapped.

OTHERS LEAP TO SAFETY

Houghton, Mich., Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Trapped in two second-story bedrooms in a log farmhouse, six children, aged from 3 to 10, were burned to death and the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gottfried Rothenborger and 4-month-old girl, severely burned early today in a fire at Portage Entry, 16 miles east of here.

The children who lost their lives were: Freda, 10 years old; Elsie, 9; Martha, 8; William, 6; Ruth, 4, and Paul, 3.

The other children, Alfred, 12 years old, and Irving, 11, escaped without injury by jumping through a window to the roof of a shed at the rear of the house. Mrs. Rothenborger and the baby are in a critical condition from severe burns.

Ladysmith, Wis., Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beel died here in the fire which destroyed their home. Gas formed in a kitchen range and caused an explosion which threw live coals upon a can of kerosene. The parents, a son, Orville, 10, and Raymond, 14, will recover from burns.

Mrs. Bell saved herself and infant child when she leaped through a bedroom window. The father's injuries resulted from his futile efforts to rescue other children.

Bergdoll Will Face Alleged Victim Soon

Mosbach, Germany, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Grover C. Bergdoll, draft evader, arrested yesterday on a charge of immorality, will be confronted by his alleged victim early in the week. He emphatically denies that he is guilty of abduction.

The state attorney declines to discuss the case while investigations are pending.

MILK WAGON WRECKED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Glass and Contents Strewn on Street; Debris Catches Fire; Alarm Is Sent In.

After his automobile crashed into a horse-drawn milk wagon, breaking the wagon in half and causing the horse to run away, Bertram C. Kelsey, 39 years old, 3117 Georgia avenue northwest, was arrested at Eighteenth street and New Hampshire avenue northwest, the scene of the accident, early yesterday by Policeman H. E. Solomon, of the Third precinct, and charged with driving while drunk and with disorderly conduct.

Splintering glass and milk were strewn and splashed about the street. The horse, frightened, broke reins and ran away, but was caught by a passerby after it ran four blocks up Eighteenth street.

Neither Kelsey or Otto Fuss, driver of the milk wagon, were injured. The milk wagon, split in half, rested on the automobile, badly damaging it. Policeman Solomon, who heard the crash, ran to the scene and placed Kelsey under arrest.

In trying to pry the demolished vehicle apart, a short circuit in the automobile, caused the wreckage to burst into flames. A fire alarm was sounded and the blaze quickly extinguished.

RUBBER FIGHT WON BY AMERICANS; U. S. WILL GROW PLANT

Hoover Attributes Cut in British Price to His Campaign.

FARMERS' AID ASKED IN HOME PRODUCTION

Guayule Plant, Successful in Texas, Intercontinental Co. Head Reveals.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover has won his fight against the officially-directed British price-control of the rubber industry.

It has been a battle of economics and public opinion. There have been no reprisals, no international embarrassments and no hint that other nations were not free to protect their own interests just as we have been jealous to protect ours.

But Mr. Hoover is understood to believe that the campaign carried on here to protect the American consumer has now shown the following results:

First—It has demonstrated that the American consumer can, to some extent, look after his own interests, even though the producer be in a foreign country and beyond his control. He is now engaged in conservation of rubber, and the very threat of it has produced results.

Big Slash in Prices.

Second—It has demonstrated that the price of rubber has been practically cut in half—a drop from $1.10 to 65 cents a pound—which reduction in price is being rapidly reflected in tires, &c., all along the line.

Third—It has awakened American industry to a full sense of its own responsibility to secure supplies independent of foreign control.

This latter point may be regarded by Secretary Hoover as the most important. According to the records of the Department of Commerce, the American people used 900,000,000 pounds of rubber last year—70 per cent of the entire world's supply.

America consumes 70 per cent of the supply and Britain produces 70 per cent of it. The American consumer pays the price and the British producer dictates it. Yet rubber, it is pointed out, is an absolute necessity to the life of the nation, quite apart from the amount that goes into the automobile industry.

It would take pages to mention the needs of twentieth century life which depend upon rubber. Electrical transmission of all kinds, rubber insulation for wires, lighting systems, telephone systems, &c., must all have rubber. In time of real emergency, serious shortage of rubber or cutting off the supply for a considerable period would cripple

Germans Flee Poland As 15 Spies Are Taken

Warsaw, Feb. 13 (By A. P.). Fifteen persons have been arrested here charged with espionage for a neighboring country.

The Polish authorities assert they discovered in upper Silesia a well organized espionage bureau, having alleged relationship with the German Volkstumbund. Many Germans, fearing arrest or search of their premises, have left for Germany.

Women Engineers In Russia Lose Jobs

Leningrad, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Under a government order issued today women will no longer be permitted to act as engine drivers, train dispatchers, firemen or train couplers. Recently a considerable number of young women have adopted these vocations, but the authorities feel that railroad work is too onerous and involves too much responsibility for them.

S. A. Kendall and Wife Suffering From Grip

Representative Samuel A. Kendall, of Pennsylvania, has been seriously ill with grip for more than a week at his home in the Highlands apartments, it was learned yesterday.

Mrs. Kendall also has been under the care of a physician. Mr. Kendall expects to be out in two days, however, and Mrs. Kendall is reported near recovery.

UR RUINS TRACED BACK BEYOND HISTORY'S DAWN

Far Below Walls of 3,300 B.C. Are Older Structures of Pounded Clay.

RELICS OF DUNGI FOUND

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (By A. P.). Buildings and objects in the vicinity of the city of Ur of the Chaldees covering a period ranging from the city's last days under the Persian regime, the fifth century B. C., back to a prehistoric age, "too remote for any date to be assigned to it," have been uncovered by archaeologists of the joint expedition of the British museum and of the museum of the University of Pennsylvania.

This was announced in a report from Prof. C. Leonard Woolley, head of the expedition, made public tonight by Dr. C. B. Gordon, director of the University museum. In the report, which covered the work of the expedition for the month of December, Prof. Woolley told of finding evidences of the reign of King Dungi. Although the remains of a building by that king were so ruined that the ground plan could not be completely recovered, the excavators found five hollow clay cylinders, about 11 inches high, inscribed with the name and title of Dungi.

These cylinders, Prof. Woolley said, were empty of all but infiltered soil, "but may well have contained foodstuffs such as would have perished, leaving no trace of themselves, and if so, we have here evidence of a foundation-ceremony not unlike that practiced in Egypt at a much later date." He added

Soviet Money Used In Revels, Is Charge

Baku, Russia, Feb. 14 (By A. P.). On an allegation that they squandered millions of dollars of state money in night revels and picnics, several officials of the Azerbaijan state wine trust have been haled before the supreme court here.

The state's attorney said they had established specially furnished refrigerating rooms for officials suffering from heat or excess drink. He also charged that the accused men had converted a ducal estate outside Baku into a recreation center for the directors of the wine trust.

CLOUDBURST KILLS 5 IN KENTUCKY VILLAGE

Flood Strikes Coaldale, on Marrowbone Creek; Many Narrow Escapes.

Pikeville, Ky., Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Five persons lost their lives when a cloudburst struck the mining village of Coaldale, near here, early today. A flood swept down the narrow valley that bounds Marrowbone creek.

Severe electrical storms accompanied by heavy rains were felt in Pike county late last night, and centered on the three hills that almost surround Coaldale, a place of some 500 inhabitants occupied chiefly by employes of the Edgewater Coal Co. The names of those drowned were reported here as Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stiltner, Effie Sykes, 14; Lewis Likens, a negro, and his 11-month-old child. Property loss was estimated at from $5,000 to $10,000, chiefly to small houses.

Several other persons whose homes were near the creek had narrow escapes, and Bolivar Sykes, father of Effie Sykes, and a negro man, were carried a quarter of a mile down stream clinging to driftwood before they were rescued.

CURRAN REQUESTS WARRANT FOR EARL CRAVEN'S ARREST

Claims Misconduct With Countess Cathcart, Is Admitted.

VISITOR QUESTIONED AT HOME OF UNCLE

Nobleman Is to Be Taken to Ellis Island as Soon as Papers Arrive.

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.). A warrant for the arrest of the Earl of Craven was requested by telegraph today by Henry H. Curran, commissioner of immigration, from the Department of Labor. The earl admitted to immigration inspectors that prior to his entry to this country he had misconducted himself with the Countess of Cathcart, who is now held at Ellis island on a similar charge.

Mr. Curran said he did not expect a return on the warrant until some time tomorrow. On its arrival, he said, the nobleman will be arrested and taken to Ellis island for a hearing before an inspector.

Right Not Questioned.

When the earl came to this country some time ago with his wife no question was raised as to his right to enter. On the countess' arrival several days ago, however, inspectors asked her the usual question as to whether she had ever been convicted or admitted a crime involving "moral turpitude." She answered this question, "Yes," whereas the earl had answered "No," according to immigration authorities.

She explained to inspectors that she had eloped from the home of her elderly husband with the Earl of Craven and that he had been mentioned as a corespondent in her divorce.

Earl Returned to Wife.

She said that after the elopement the earl had returned to his wife and later came with her to America. She said that her own journey to America was in no way connected with a desire to see the Earl of Craven, but was entirely for the purpose of disposing of her literary product. In an interview at Ellis island yesterday the countess stated that she saw no reason why she should be barred from the country when the Earl of Craven, who was equally guilty, had been admitted. It was after this that immigration inspectors located the earl at the home of his uncle here and obtained his admission of misconduct with the countess.

Asked today concerning reports that she had been advised from the British consulate to leave the country voluntarily, the countess asserted that she would press her fight to gain entry to the country to the extent of her powers. She denied that she had any intention of avoiding the issue and reasserted her belief that she had a right to enter the country, as the Earl of Craven had been permitted to do so.

Fiance Sends Appeal.

London, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Ralph Neale, fiance of the Countess of Cathcart, who has been refused admission to the United States by the immigration commissioner at New York, is doing everything possible to have the British authorities move in the matter. He has addressed the following message to the women of America:

"I earnestly beg the women of America to support Vera Countess of Cathcart in her terrible ordeal. The question at issue is one which concerns each and every woman apart from her nationality.

"I am confident that they will assist her as a woman. I know that

Umbrella Vogue Saved By Prince of Wales

London, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Frenchmen are pleased at the Prince of Wales' prompt response to a request, made by a Paris newspaper in the form of an open letter, that he take the lead in making the umbrella fashionable. It was said that umbrellas were becoming more and more unpopular among the youth of France, causing much spoiled clothing and endangering health.

A day or so after publication of the letter the prince appeared at the Bath club carrying a crook-handled umbrella, folded in an impeccable way which the gilded youth of Bond street now are trying to imitate.

3 STATE SOCIETIES TO HOLD REUNIONS IN CAPITAL TONIGHT

Champion New Hampshire Fiddler to Be Guest of New Englanders.

KELLOGG TO ATTEND MINNESOTA MEETING

Georgia Group to Hold Valentine Party With Senators as Guests.

Native sons of three States living in Washington will gather here tonight at the annual reunion, reception and dance of the Minnesota, New Hampshire and Georgia State societies. An imposing list of high government officials who claim these States as their homes have been invited as guests of honor.

A special car from New Hampshire will bring a delegation of State and city officials from that State to the gathering of the State society of that State to be held in the Willard hotel. They will bring with them "Cash" Redford, champion fiddler of New Hampshire. This native son is 80 years old and he will bring with him old dance tunes of the "Tucker" barn dance and the Paul Jones.

Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, a past president of the society, will be the guest of honor. Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett, president of the society, announced the committee on arrangements as follows: Senator Henry W. Keyes, of New Hampshire; Representative Edward H. Wason, Dr. Howard O. Crossman, John T. Lambert, Ernest L. Chaney, Sewell W. Abbott and Frederick J. Young.

Minnesota Reunion.

A few doors up Pennsylvania avenue from the Willard the native sons of Minnesota will gather at 9 o'clock in the Washington hotel for their reunion. Among the distinguished officials from that State who have been invited to attend as guests of honor are Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, Associate Justice Pierce Butler, of the United States Supreme Court; Solicitor General William D. Mitchell, of the Department of Justice; Commissioner Johnston B. Campbell, of the Interstate Commerce Commission; Assistant Secretary of State Robert Edson Olds, Assistant Commissioner of Internal Revenue Charles R. Nash, Assistant Secretary of Treasury Lincoln C. Andrews, Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives; Senators Thomas B. Schall and Henrik Shipstead, of Minnesota, and members of the House from that State.

The Georgia State society will hold a Valentine party and dance at 2400 Sixteenth street, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. Both senators and many of the representatvies from that State are expected to attend the function.

DAVEY UPHOLDS MEN ELECTED TO CONGRESS

Are Better Than Public Deserves He Tells Employes' Acting Chief.

"Members of Congress are better men than the public is entitled to have," Representative Martin L. Davey, of Ohio, wrote in a letter made public yesterday, replying to Miss Gertrude McNally, acting president of the Federation of Federal Employes, who wrote criticizing his statement that the government employes were "tax-eating drones."

"The majority of members of Congress are high-minded, able and conscientious public servants," he added. "Every one of them knows from personal experience that the government of the United States is the most inefficient, time-killing, buck-passing organization that exists in this broad land, and if Congress had nothing else to do than to reorganize the government, it might be accomplished."

Miss McNally declared that Representative Davey's statements were "inaccurate and inconsistent with the data bearing on the subject," to which Representative Davey replied, "I do not need a survey or investigation. I have used my eyes and my ears, my experience in business and my experience with the departments of the government as a member of Congress, and I have also used my logic and my common sense."

South Dakota Society Has a State Dinner

Representative C. A. Christopherson was elected president of the South Dakota State society at its get-together dinner yesterday in the Burlington hotel.

Other officers elected were Mrs. W. S. Hill, first vice president; Capt. William F. Bancroft, second vice president; Mrs. Art Brown, secretary; J. M. Otterness, treasurer and H. L. Dawson, for fifteen years president of the society, sergeant-at-arms. Capt. Bancroft presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Samuel Burleigh Milton led in singing South Dakota songs, which she had composed, assisted by Mrs. Mable Gold Dawson. There were speeches by Senator Peter Norbeck, Representative Royal C. Johnson, Representative Christopherson, Representative William Williamson, B. F. Myers, commissioner of agriculture of South Dakota; Buel F. Jones, attorney general of South Dakota; former Senator Thomas Sterling, and W. S. Hill, commissioner of the Shipping Board.

SENATE TAX CUTS CALLED "ECONOMIC FOLLY" BY GREEN

Amendments Are Assailed by House Leader on Eve of Conference.

CHAIRMAN SAYS BILL IMPERILS U. S. PROJECTS

Declares Total Reduction Proposed Is $600,000,000; Fears Deficit.

(By Associated Press.)

The additional tax reduction noted by the Senate was assailed as "economic folly" by Chairman Green of the House ways and means committee last night on the eve of the meeting of Senate and House conferees to adjust differences in the tax bill as it passed the two chambers.

In going $126,000,000 beyond the total reduction approved by the House in its $330,000,000 bill, Mr. Green, who will head the House conferees, declared the Senate not only threatened a Treasury deficit, but jeopardized the enactment of many pending bills calling for increased government expenditures, including the public buildings bill.

Chairman Green is supported in his position by other House leaders, who point out that the measure they enacted kept within the bounds set forth by the Treasury and feel that the nonpartisan manner in which it was considered in that chamber would take tax reduction out of politics if their bill was approved.

Says Loss Will Grow.

While the Senate bill would cut taxes by $456,261,000 this year, on the basis of calculations made by government actuaries, Chairman Green declared yesterday that after this year, when it would become fully effective, it would result in a total annual reduction of $600,000,000.

"No account is taken," said Mr. Green, referring to the estimate for reductions this year, "of the repeal of the inheritance tax, and only $68,500,000 is estimated as the loss on the capital stock tax, which loss will be at least $25,000,000 larger for the following years. When the law goes into full effect, as it will in a few years, and all of the inheritance tax is lost, about $135,000,000 will have to be added on account of those two items, making the total reductions nearly $600,000,000. This is not a matter of discussion or argument, but merely of addition and substraction. It will be the duty of the conferees to bring this amount within the limits of our national revenues.

Should Protect Credit.

"In the consideration of revenue bills the matter of first importance, which should govern and control everything else, is the protection of the Treasury from a deficit. Under no circumstances should we even take the chance of being compelled to issue bonds, and thereby increase our national debt, or fail to keep our pledge to those who already hold bonds, by not maintaining the sinking fund, for such a course would inevitably injure the credit and standing of our government.

"With full knowledge of all recent estimates of our revenues, I have no hesitation in saying that the House bill made too great a reduction in taxes, being based on the high-water mark of our revenues, which is certain to recede with any slackening in business profits.

"The House bill was based on the budget estimates, but budget estimates do not include any appropriations not now authorized by law. For example, the budget does not include an annual appropriation of $25,000,000 under the public-buildings bill, an administration measure which is practically certain to pass. It does not include $60,000,000 annually for additional pensions for the veterans of the civil war, a bill which may be passed, and $16,000,000 for pensions for Spanish war veterans, a bill which also may be passed.

Appropriations Considered.

"These three bills alone would require over $100,000,000 annually from the Treasury. In addition, there are pending before various committees of the House, upon which hearings have been had, bills, which probably have little chance of being passed, which aggregate $400,000,000 more.

"Besides these there are various other bills, comparatively small in amount, but which would require an expenditure of probably $25,000,000 a year, which are apparently being favorably considered by the committees to which they were referred. Proper tax reduction will have beneficial results, but it may be carried so far that it becomes economic folly."

Students, Arrested In Assault, Bailed

Sylvester J. Blake, Arthur Flaurence and John J. White, three of the four Catholic university students arrested Saturday night at Rockville, Md., charged with assault and battery against Aloysius Kelly and Walter Miles, of Forest Glen, Md., were released yesterday on $500 bond each. John Y. Regan, the other student accused, was released Saturday night on $500 bond.

The four were ordered to appear in court at Rockville Thursday morning.

Catholic U. Alumni Hold Entertainment

The Catholic University alumni association held a smoker and entertainment at L'Aiglon last night. Vincent Toomey, president of the national chapter of the Catholic University alumni, spoke on reasons for joining the National Association of college alumni. He has been elected second vice president of this organization.

Other speakers were Charles B. Moran, athletic director of the university, and William H. DeLacey, former judge of the juvenile court. The committee in charge of the evening's entertainment was composed of Basil Kelly, F. Joseph Donohue and P. J. Flannery.

INQUEST IS ORDERED IN EMMA KIRK DEATH

Sandberg Searching Finger-Print Files on Last Clew in Slaying.

An inquest into the death of Miss Emma Kirk, 63 years old, who was found brutally murdered in her umbrella shop, 819 R street northwest, was ordered to be held in the District morgue today at 1:30 o'clock by Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt. The woman was found January 30 lying on the floor of her shop, her hands and feet bound and a shawl tied about her neck and mouth. Death, according to the coroner's investigation, resulted from strangulation.

Since the slaying police have followed up clew after clew, but to no avail. Meanwhile Detective Sergt. Fred Sandberg, finger-print expert, is comparing the thousands of finger-prints at headquarters with the print developed from the thumb-print which was found on the dead woman's eyeglasses.

The homicide squad is still working on the case. Five suspects have been arrested, one a woman, but all have been released.

LUNACY TEST CHANGE DISCUSSION TONIGHT

Monday Evening Club May Cooperate With Social Agencies in Plan.

Cooperation of the Monday Evening club with the Council of Social Agencies regarding legislation for better methods in lunacy inquests may follow a meeting of the first organization at the Grace Dodge hotel tonight at 8 o'clock.

Under proposed changes, lunacy investigations could be conducted privately under the health department as well as publicly before a jury. This would enable incipient cases to receive treatment without embarrassment of a jury hearing. Retention of the public trial method would prevent unfair methods of commitment as well.

Tonight's meeting which will be open to the public, will be addressed by Dr. William A. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeths hospital, and Dr. Loren D. T. Johnson.

St. Gabriel's Club To Install Officers

Newly-elected officers will be installed at a first anniversary smoker tonight by the St. Gabriel's club at the parish hall, Grant circle. The Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, prior of the Dominican house of studies, and the Rev. John M. McNamara, pastor of the church, will be the principal speakers.

Officers to be installed are Walter D. Beller, president; Harry Welch, first vice president; William L. Miller, second vice president; J. A. Sullivan, treasurer; E. L. Sheehan, corresponding secretary; William L. Marsden, financial secretary; H. H. Hartman, executive committee member, and the Rev. J. M. McNamara, spiritual director.

"Hit-and-Run" Victim In Critical Condition

Charles Rick, colored, 42 years old, of 2507 I street northwest, victim of a "hit and run" driver early yesterday morning while crossing Pennsylvania avenue at Twenty-sixth street northwest, is in a critical condition at the Emergency hospital. Rick has a fractured skull and serious internal injuries.

Police are searching for a large touring car, alleged to have contained two white men and two women, that ran Rick down. The injured man was found lying in the street by Frank Hopkins, of 414 Second street northwest, a taxicab driver who took him to Emergency hospital.

Woman's Leg Severed In Shooting; Man Held

Spencer Rhone, colored, 40 years old, is being held at the Fourth precinct police station pending an inquest into the death of Louise Penn, colored, 30 years old, which will be held this afternoon at 1:30. Police say Rhone virtually amputated the Penn woman's leg Saturday night when he shot her with a shotgun in an altercation at 84 I street southwest, where both lived.

The woman was taken to Emergency hospital where she died yesterday. Rhone was arrested by Policemen J. W. Wise and F. A. Schenck.

RED CROSS HEADS HONORED

Three Named to Reception Committee for Industrial Show.

John Barton Payne, chairman of the central committee of the Red Cross; Miss Mabel T. Boardman, national secretary, and Maj. Gen. George Barnett, chairman of the District of Columbia chapter, have been invited to serve on the reception committee of the second annual industrial exposition of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, to be held in the Washington auditorium March 4 to 13, it was announced yesterday.

TAXICAB HURTS ANOTHER

Two women were injured critically last night in traffic accidents.

Dr. Emma R. Bailey, 74 years old, of Mosley, Ala., and Atlanta, Ga., staying at the Metropolitan hotel, suffered a possible skull fracture when run down at Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest by an automobile driven by Richard W. Waldron, 40 years old, 502 Twelfth street northeast.

Dr. Bailey was taken to Casualty hospital in an ambulance, where her condition was said to be critical. Waldron was taken to the Sixth precinct station, where his automobile was tested, and after the test proved satisfactory, he was released.

Dillie Gunn, colored, 48 years old, 2027 L street northwest, was taken to Emergency hospital suffering from a probable skull fracture, which she received when struck at Sixth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, by a taxicab driven by Oscar Ottenberg, 40 years old, 1138 Seventh street northwest.

Ill Chosen Vocations Conference Subject

Policemen who want to play Hamlet; carpenters who should be growing potatoes; "white collar" men who would make better plumbers, and other "square pegs in round holes" will be the subject of discussion at the conference of vocational guidance workers under auspices of the children's bureau of the Labor Department in this city Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Vocational guidance workers from all sections of the country will attend the conference to study the best means of helping men and women to find the work for which they are by character and training best fitted to do. Psychiatrists, personnel directors and other vocational experts will contribute their particular experiences to the symposium.

Council Addressed By Colored Priest

The Rev. Norman Duckett, recently ordained colored priest, who is now visiting relatives here, addressed the advisory board of the Council Review, colored Catholic publication, last night, at 808 C street southeast. He related experiences of his training for the priesthood, and suggested lines of development of the negro in the Catholic church.

A committee, appointed for development of a magazine for negro Catholics, includes Miss Genevieve Burke, president; M. E. Swann, secretary; Mrs. Charles Luckett, G. D. Brown, G. B. Mahoney, Mrs. Annie Adams, Mrs. A. J. Wenster, Mrs. Edith Lee, Mrs. Matilda Eskridge, Mrs. A. J. Graham, C. B. Tippett and W. B. Wade.

Frigate Java's Papers Discovered

(By the Associated Press.)

Documents taken from the British frigate Java by Capt. William Bainbridge of the Constitution, after the historic sea fight on December 29, 1812, have been unearthed in the archives bureau of the Navy Department.

During the engagement, in which the Constitution won her name of "Old Ironsides" the Java was wrecked to such an extent that Capt. Bainbridge removed her crew and records and the mail she was carrying and then set her afire, so that the documents brought to light represent all that remains of her.

ELIOT SUGGESTS U. S. AID ALLIES AGAINST GERMANY

President Emeritus of Harvard Later Changes His Mind in Letter to Wilson; Wilson Fears Reports That Germany Had Gun Bases in U.S. Would Get Abroad—Wood Discusses Army.

INTIMATE PAPERS OF COL. HOUSE

INSTALMENT XVI.

ONE of the rare Americans who at the moment had the courage to suggest that the United States should adopt a positive policy in order to insure the defeat of Germany was President Charles W. Eliot. President Wilson was so far impressed by his arguments that he read the earlier letter to his Cabinet and discussed the suggestion carefully with House. He wrote to Eliot, however, that he did not regard it as practicable.

Dr. Eliot to President

Asticou, Me., August 6, 1914.

Dear President Wilson:

Has not the United States an opportunity at this moment to propose a combination of the British Empire, the United States, France, Japan, Italy and Russia in offensive and defensive alliance to rebuke and punish Austria-Hungary and Germany for the outrages they are now committing by enforcing against those two countries non-intercourse with the rest of the world by land and sea? These two powers have now shown that they are utterly untrustworthy neighbors and military bullies of the worst sort—Germany being far the worse of the two, because she has already violated neutral territory.

If they are allowed to succeed in their present enterprise the fear of sudden invasion will constantly hang over all the other European peoples, and the increasing burdens of competitive armaments will have to be borne for another forty years. We shall inevitably share in these losses and miseries. The cost of maintaining immense armaments prevents all the great powers from spending the money they ought to spend on improving the condition of the people and promoting the progress of the world in health, human freedom and industrial productiveness.

In this cause, and under the changed conditions, would not the people of the United States approve of the abandonment of Washington's advice that this country keep out of European complications?

A blockade of Germany and Austria-Hungary could not be enforced with completeness; but it could be enforced both by sea and by land to such a degree that the industries of both peoples would be seriously crippled in a short time by the stoppage of both their exports and their imports. Certain temporary commercial advantages would be gained by the blockading nations—a part of which might perhaps prove to be permanent.

This proposal would involve the taking part by our navy in the blockading process, and therefore might entail losses of both life and treasure, but the cause is worthy of heavy sacrifices; and I am inclined to believe that our people would support the government in taking active part in such an effort to punish international crimes and to promote future international peace.

Is it feasible to open pourparlers by cable on this subject? * * *

I offer this suggestion in entire submission to your judgment as to its present feasibility and expediency. It seems to me an effective international police method, suited to the present crimes and the probable issues of the future, and the more attractive because the European concert and the triple alliances have conspicuously failed.

I am, with highest regard, sincerely yours,

CHARLES W. ELIOT.

Amplifies First Letter

Asticou, Me., Aug. 20, 1914.

Dear President Wilson:

In revising a letter I had written you on August 17 amplifying the proposal contained in my letter of August 6, I have come to the conclusion that it would not be desirable "to open pourparlers by cable on this subject" at the present moment, even if it were feasible. Two considerations have led me to this conclusion: (1) We apparently do not possess full information on the real purposes and objects of either Russia or Germany; at least, the thinking American public does not possess this information, and therefore can not justly fix on Germany the chief responsibility for the present cataclysm. The extreme rashness of Germany's action can not but suggest that elements of the situation, still unknown to the rest of the world, were known to her. I do not feel the confidence I then felt in the information accessible when I wrote my letter to you of August 6. (2) Communications between our government and the governments of France and Great Britain which would necessarily be secret, are undesirable at the present stage of the conflict. Indeed, secret diplomacy is always to be disliked, whether used by free governments or despotic. These are sufficient objections to the pourparlers I suggested.

I am inclined to give rev. weight to certain reasons for holding to our traditional policy of neutrality in conflicts between other nations: (1) It seems probable that Russia, Great Britain and France together can inflict ultimate defeat on Germany and Austria-Hungary—the only tolerable result of this outrageous war. (2) It seems possible that the seven nations now at war can give the much needed demonstration that the military machinery which the last half of the nineteenth century created all over Europe can not be set in motion on a large scale without arresting production to a very dangerous degree and causing an intolerable amount of suffering and misery. The interruption of production and commerce which has already taken place since July 31, is unexampled in the history of the world, and yet the destruction of life and property has hardly begun. If seven nations can give this demonstration the other nations had better keep out of the conflict. * * *

Your address to your countrymen on the conditions of real neutrality is altogether admirable in both form and substance. Sincerely yours,

CHARLES W. ELIOT.

President to Cornish

"August 30, 1914: I was glad to find the President situated so delightfully," recorded the colonel at Cornish, N. H. "The house reminds one of an English place. The view is superb, and the arrangement and furnishings are comfortable and artistic. The President showed me my room himself. It was the one Mrs. Wilson used to occupy and was next to his. We are in one wing of the house and quite to ourselves. A small stairway leads down to his study, and it was there that we sat and discussed matters until after 1 o'clock, when lunch was announced.

"I told of my experiences in Europe and gave him more of the details of my mission. He was interested in the personalities of the people who are the governments' heads, and later said my knowledge of these men and of the situation in Europe would be of great value to him.

"The President spoke with deep feeling of the war. He said it made him heartsick to think of how near we had come to averting this great disaster, and he thought if it had been delayed a little longer it could never have happened, because the nations would have got together in the way I had outlined.

"I was interested to hear him express as his opinion what I had written him some time ago in one of my letters, to the effect that if Germany won it would change the course of our civilization and make the United States a military nation. He also spoke of his deep regret, as, indeed, I did to him, in that same letter, that it would check his policy for a better international ethical code.

"He felt deeply the destruction of Louvain, and I found him as unsympathetic with the German attitude as is the balance of America. He goes even further than I in his condemnation of Germany's part in this war, and almost allows his feeling to include the German people as a whole rather than the leaders alone. He said German philosophy was essentially selfish and lacking in spirituality. When I spoke of the kaiser building up the German machine as a means of maintaining peace, he said, 'What a foolish thing it was to create a powder magazine and risk some one's dropping a spark into it.'

"He thought the war would throw the world back three or four centuries. I did not agree with him. He was particularly scornful of Germany's disregard of treaty obligations, and was indignant at the German chancellor's designation of the Belgian treaty as being 'only a scrap of paper.'

Wilson Feels State Cares.

"September 28, 1914: The President declared if he knew he would not have to stand for reelection two years from now, he would feel a great load lifted from him. thought he need not accept the Presidency unless he wished to, even if the Democratic party demanded it, though I could understand why he would feel it a duty to do so provided his health permitted. I could not see what else he could do in life that would be so interesting. He replied that the thing that frightened him was that it was impossible to make such an effort in the future as he had made in the past, or to accomplish anything like what he had accomplished in a legislative way. He feared the country would expect him to continue as he had up to now, which would be impossible.

"I find the President singularly lacking in appreciation of the importance of this European crisis. He seems more interested in domestic affairs, and I find it difficult to get his attention centered upon the one big question."

A month later House noted again:

"October 22, 1914: I am sorry to say, as I have said before, that the President does not seem to have a proper sense of proportion as between domestic and foreign affairs. I suppose it is the Washington atmosphere that has gripped him as it does every one else who lives there, and the work of the day largely obscures the tremendous world issues that are now before us.

"April 16, 1914: I had a long talk with Gen. Wood about the army's preparedness. We discussed the international situation, particularly regarding Japan and the possibility of trouble there and what would be necessary to be done. He said Manila was now so fortified that we could hold it for a year at the minimum, and that within a short while Hawaii would be in a similarly impregnable position. He thought the Panama canal was so near completion that it could be used in 20 days in the event of an emergency.

"November 3, 1914: Loulie and I lunched with Gen. and Mrs. Leonard Wood at Governors island. I wished to see the general before I went to Washington. I am strongly of the opinion that it is time for this government to adopt some system, perhaps the Swiss, looking toward a reserve force in the event of war. I found Gen. Wood receptive. He is to send me, at the White House, memoranda and data to hand the President for his information.

"November 4, 1914 (conference between Wilson and House): We passed to the question of a reserve army. He balked somewhat at first and said he thought the labor people would object because they felt that a large army was against their interests. He did not believe there was any necessity for immediate action, he was afraid it would shock the country. He made the statement that no matter how the great war ended, there would be complete exhaustion, and, even if Germany won, she would not be in a condition seriously to menace our country for many years to come. I combated this idea, stating that Germany would have a large military force ready to act in furthering the designs which the military party evidently have in mind. He said she would not have the men. I replied that she could not win unless she had at least two or three million men under arms at the end. He evidently thought the available men would be completely wiped out.

"I insisted it was time to do a great constructive work for the army and one which would make the country too powerful for any nation to think of attacking us. He told me there was reason to suspect that the Germans had laid throughout the country concrete foundations for great guns similar to those they laid in Belgium and France. He almost feared to express this knowledge aloud, for, if the rumor got abroad, it would inflame our people to such an extent that he would be afraid of the consequences. General Wood has the matter under investigation, and he asked me to caution Wood to be very discreet.

Wood Seeks Trip Abroad

"I spoke of Gen. Wood's desire to be sent abroad and asked him to let him go in order that we might have at least one man in our army with some experience. He said they would not accept him. I replied that Wood thought otherwise, and it was something for him to work out in his own way.

"November 8, 1914: The President desired me to go to church with him, but I compromised by having Loulie go. Mr. Bryan had just arrived from the West, and I felt it necessary to see him. Wanted to find out what his views were regarding the army. I found him in violent opposition to any kind of increase by the reserve plan. He did not believe there was the slightest danger to this country from foreign invasion, even if the Germans were successful. He thought after war was declared there would be plenty of time to make any preparations necessary. He talked as innocently as my little grandchild, Jane Tucker. He spoke with great feeling, and I fear he may give trouble.

"November 25, 1914 (conversation with Wilson): We spoke of the ever-present topic of war. I have gotten from good authority that Italy would now be with the allies if she had been prepared. She found her equipment was not sufficient to be effective, but she is putting herself in shape to get into the war just as soon as she is ready and can make her forces worth while. I thought Roumania would also join the allies. He expressed pleasure at this and hoped these two countries would not delay too long.

"I spoke again of our unpreparedness and how impractical Mr. Bryan was. I urged the need of our having a large reserve force, and he replied, 'Yes, but not a large army,' an amendment which I accepted. I particularly emphasized the necessity for greater artillery plants and more artillery."

Twelve months afterward, in the autumn of 1915, Wilson yielded to the logic of events and did not lack the courage to confess that he had changed his mind: in a series of magnificent speeches he demanded vigorous military preparation, and he led through Congress the largest naval bill of our history.

Mexican Archbishop May Escape a Trial

Mexico City, Feb. 14 (By A. P.). The Most Rev. Dr. Jose Mora y Del Rio, archbishop of Mexico, questioned by federal district court officials who went to his palace partly denied a recent interview attributed to him by local newspapers.

This partial denial, the officials said, might avert the pressing of charges against him of having violated the Mexican constitution by improper criticism of the Mexican government.

The archbishop added that the portion of the interview given was misinterpreted.

Gentlemen:

I have used $192.00 worth of 8c oil so far this season in my home on Ellicott Street having radiation equal to 17 rooms. This I consider very reasonable.

The Ray Burner installed by you has been entirely satisfactory. Your service has been entirely beyond criticism.

I wouldn't go back to coal if it were given me free of charge. I have always liked the best of everything and I feel that the Ray Burner is the best in its line.

I can heartily indorse Ray equipment as being worth every dollar it costs.

Continued success to you.

Sincerely yours,

ROME, AS REBUILT, MAY BE STARTLING IN ARCHITECTURE

Some Demand That Distinct Fascist Style Be Found for Imperial City.

NEW YORK'S SKYLINE TO BE MADE PALTRY

Great Architectural Gesture Expected of Giant Who Is to Be Discovered.

Rome, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—The new imperial city of Rome, which Mussolini's magic wand has commanded to come into being within five years, may bring into an artistically jaded world architectural innovations so startling and revolutionary that, compared to them, the most daring skyscrapers of New York will seem old fashioned.

This is the present determination of the vanguard of fascist architects and artists, which is furnishing the bone of contention in the most spirited esthetic controversy which has racked Italy since the glorious days of the Rennaissance.

The new Rome must be a continuation of medieval Christian and ancient Rome—calm, dignified and balanced—say the traditionalists, who are represented by Armando Brasini, the most prominent "academic" architect in the nation. On the other hand, T. F. Marinetti, father of futurism, storms:

Old Styles Ruled Out.

"We want Rome to have a Mussolinian imprint, that is to say, fascist futurism—never an archeological imprint.

"Mussolini wants to liberate all the monuments of the past from the unworthy structures which now hide them, hygienizing the center of Rome and freeing it for ever-increasing traffic. This absolutely rules out any of the old kinds of architecture."

"Rome, capital of the new empire," says Settimelli, editor of Impero, "awaits her architect and will have him—awaits the giant who will put a fascist face on the capital of capitals."

The same writer goes into a rhapsody about the new architecture which, he says, will "soon reveal itself," but he does not define its nature beyond the statement that it will not be an imitation of Michelangelo, but "will surpass him."

American Style Unsuited.

Other artists point out that the new American type of architecture is in no way suitable for Rome, but they commend the general directions of American construction as compared with that of European builders.

"But ours," said one representative of fascism, "will make the skyline of New York seem a merely startling conception, a commonplace with no real infusion of the truly aesthetic into what is undoubtedly a great architectural gesture."

OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS

"Kosher Kitty Kelly" Opens at the Belasco

"Kosher Kitty Kelly," by Leon De Costa. Staged by A. L. Van Buren. Musical numbers staged by Ralph Riggs. Art director, Walter Harvey.

For some four years metropolitan critics have ranted and raved over what is generally conceded to be the world's worst bit of dramatic literature—"Abie's Irish Rose," a play bound to the boards of Broadway continuously since its opening, with eight or ten companies playing the outlying districts—the corn and bean belts, and points East and West.

Now comes "Kosher Kitty Kelly," after a forced run of six months or so on Broadway, vindicating Anne Nichols and all her cohorts. It wins whatever prize they give for the worst play ever produced—barring none.

Looking back over a misspent evening, with charity for all and malice toward none, with pity for the poor actors on a night like this, and with the knowledge that plays of this sort keep actors poor, though they may make producers rich, the best that can be said about "Kitty Kelly" is silence; an Irish bull for Jewish kosher.

Aside from the clever impersonation of "old man Ginsberg," by Robert Leonard, there is not one redeeming feature to "Kosher Kitty Kelly." Yet, it is a pseudo-laugh producer and there are those who get a few thrills out of some lines spoken in Yiddish.

Called by its sponsors "a musi-comedy," "Kosher Kitty Kelly" is probably that, for it is neither a play, nor a musical comedy, nor anything else save a catch-penny idea foisted and fostered upon the American theatergoing public in the hope of catching a few crumbs from the table of "Abie's Irish Rose."

Just a few more like this one, and all Washington play reviewers will have softening of the brain; provided always, of course, there are brains to soften under such punishment.

For those who forever ask the question, "Will the 'movies' eventually run the so-called legitimate theater out of business?" There is only one answer, "go over to the Belasco this week and see for yourself!" JOHN J. DALY.

"The Student Prince" Makes Hit at Poli's

After waiting long, dreary months in which to appease musical cravings, so to speak, with phonograph records of "Deep In My Heart" and kindred melodies, Washington is at last privileged to witness the "Student Prince in Heidelberg." It is holding forth at Poli's. To delve into the actual producing of "The Student Prince" and to give somewhat of an idea as to its massiveness and beauty were to spend more columns of cold type than is allowed—but suffice it to say that if the opinions of those in "the know" could be elaborated upon such would be the opinion of this reviewer. There's not a dull moment in the entire piece.

The operetta opens with a prologue and speeds along to a splendid finish before the awed spectator is aware that the end has come. It's a story of the romance of a prince who comes to Heidelberg to attend the university there— and he meets the lovely Kathie and promtly falls in love. But the romances of kings are planned ahead of an idividual's reckoning—and so poor Karl Franz marries a princess, as is the custom, and the little waitress marries her cousin.

Sigmund Romberg, who composed the music to the piece, has made somewhat of a distinct contribution to the light opera field in America. The pieces are all brilliant and full of quaint strains that carry memory back to the time when the "Prince of Pilsen" was in its heyday and Strauss waltzes were being played. And to Dorothy Donnelly, who wrote the book, there is credit due.

The students' chorus, which forms the background for most of the action in the first part of the piece, is absolutely fine. The voices seem well modulated, and the songs, especially the "Drinking Song," called for more than one encore. Among the principals to be singled out for genuine excellence of performance and vocal ability the honor goes to George Morgan, who interprets the role of Dr. Engel. Madeline Collins as Kathie was excellent and Leonard Ceiley, who is the prince, does so rather nicely. A duet composed of Robert Greg and Charles Mac supply most of the comedy of the evening. Clarence Harvey as Toni captivates the audience.

For sheer beauty of setting the third act just about parallels anything that Washington has seen in recent times.

Summing up of "The Student Prince," it is the brand of entertainment that we see only once in few, too few, years, and the piece must be actually seen adequately to convey an idea of its excellence.

PALACE

The featured attraction at Loew's Palace this week is George M. Cohan's stage succes "The Song and Dance Man." The cast includes Tom Moore, Bessie Love, Harrison Ford and other stage and screen celebrities.

The story has to do with the heart throbs, laughter and gaiety behind the scenes. In this tale a human theatrical manager by his seeming hardess paves the way to success for the "ham" actor and the girl he has befriended. It is only a few feet of film between the tryout and the young woman receiving baskets and baskets of flowers on the opening night of her success. The young and youthful star is enacted by Bessie Love.

Tom Moore as the "Song and Dance Man," who never got more than two inches square on the program, stages a thrilling hold-up and some rare comedy and his part goes over big. He realizes that he can never reach the headlights, so he settles down to a hard grind and comes in 60 to 1, more than paying the bet placed on him by his benefactor.

Harrison Ford enacted the part of a young and wealthy painter with a dislike for actresses until he meets Bessie Love. He proposes and she accepts and agrees to give up her career, but the "Song and Dance Man" enters and his arrival gives the play a new turn and an unexpected ending takes place.

A Sennet production labeled "Those Gosh Darn Mortgages" was the comedy. Music under direction of Thomas Gannon and a Pathe news reel complete the program.

KEITH'S

Willard Mack and the rest of the program is the bill at Keith's this week. And that isn't said in disparagement of the rest of the program. This, however, is one time when the headliner really headlines and Mr. Mack's presentation of "Kick In" is about the best little skit of its kind that has graced the local Albee theater in many moons. For the benefit of those whose training in theatrical histody has been slightly neglected it may be well to say that the Keith press agent asserts that the one-act playlet is the original form of "Kick In"—later metamorphosed into a four-act play by Al Woods, that a bedroom might be introduced, presumably. But it's doubtful if the skit was improved by the expansion; at any rate, in the form it comes to Keith's this week and with the cast with which it has been favored, it is distinctly worth an evening.

For second prize George Whiting and Sadie Burt in "Several Song Scenes and Dances" are nominated. Their "Collegiate" took the house by storm. George and Sadie, by the way, are assisted, according to the program, by a likesome young person billed as "Virginia Mae." This little lady with the incomplete name is a dancer of several parts, bue the effect of her efforts is somewhat marred for all save the color blind when she undertakes to perform in a green and yellow costume in front of a flaming red drop.

Margaret Romaine's vocalizing efforts provide for the needs of the more dignified element of the clientele. Charles Sargent and Burt Lewis, in a song and dance act, start slowly but improve somewhat before the end of their number. Then there are the Four Camerons, who made quite an impression on the audience; and the trained dogs and Pepito, the Spanish clown.

Parisian Art, which takes the place of the usual acrobatic act at the end of the bill, is advertised as "A Study in Perfect Form." So far as one could judge from well down front in the orchestra, the adjective is well chosen, the much-advertised imperfections of all humanity to the contrary notwithstanding. The act has some novelty, too.

METROPOLITAN

It is a healthy sign to see motion pictures poking fun at themselves, and this is just what may be seen this week at the Metropolitan, where Lois Wilson, Blanche Sweet, Ben Lyon, Sam Hardy and others are cast in a rollicking satire on the rise of the typical sheik of the screen. "Bluebeard's Seven Wives" are those allotted successively to this particular sheik by his expansive-minded press agent, while in truth his heart holds true to pretty Mary Kelly, who tosses hot cakes in a lunchroom. The star who becomes the idol of flapperdom as Don Juan Hartez, of Spain, is manufactured by a forceful director and the publicity man out of simple stuttering John Hart, a bank teller who has lost his job.

It is a funny film, for the most part admirably directed, and it has more fresh comedy ideas, good for honest chuckles, than anything recently seen on the screen. There is some interesting light on movie activities, which may be truthful or a little strained for fun's sake, but it is entertaining. The great Don Juan appears in "Purple Passions," which proves to be a film version of "Romeo and Juliet," with Blanche Sweet playing opposite him as Juliet.

Lois Wilson is charming as ever as the faithful Mary Kelly, and Ben Lyon is Don Juan. Sam Hardy is rich as the press agent.

There is a Christie comedy with Billy Dooley, a news film, and a short and jazzy program by the orchestra.

COLUMBIA

An especially crowded house at the Columbia yesterday afternoon attested to the interest which the Washington public holds in the filming of Fannie Hurst's $50,000 prize magazine story, "Mannequin."

It is the story of a mother who leaves her husband and baby daughter through a fit of temper and returns to mother. The nursemaid kidnaps the daughter, the father thinking the mother has taken the child with her. The husband and wife are reconciled three days later, but the child can not be located. The nursemaid, Anna Belgamy, played by Zasu Pitts, one of the screen's finest character actresses, rears the child in squalid surroundings for many years, whence she escapes to a settlement house.

These kindly people take care of her and when she is grown to full girlhood she has become a popular "mannequin" in Drocotes' fashionable establishment, and through this occupation runs into some wild parties. Orchid Sargassa, as she is known, falls in love with a newspaper reporter, played by Walter Pidgeon, and it is to him that Orchid gives the idea of a series of articles on "Sexless Justice," wherein he says that "beautiful women are apparently immune to punishment for crime."

It is this series of articles which later nearly cost her her life when she is brought to trial for the accidental killing of a man whose unwelcome attentions she had resisted, but who had forced his way into her apartment. The trial is held before her own father as the judge and is brought to a thrilling climax when the jury pronounces her not guilty. She is later proved to be the daughter of the judge and his wife, by the very shawl which caused the wife to "go back to mother."

Dolores Costello, as Orchid, does some wonderful work. Alice Joyce is good as the mother. Warner Baxter plays Judge Herrick.

Supporting the feature picture is a Lige Conley comedy "Lickety Split," the International Newsreel, Screen Snapshots, and the usual orchestra embellishments.

MUTUAL

Kitty Warren and her Kandy Kids in "All In Fun," which opened at the Mutual last night, gave to an appreciative audience burlesque as it should be. If all the encores had been answered the show would have run well past midnight.

Opal Taylor, gave one of the greatest exhibitions of shimmying ever seen in burlesque in Washington. When Miss Taylor got started one forgot all about Gilda Grey. There are three other reasons why "All In Fun" scored as a great hit. They are Miss Warren, Sammy Spears and Joe Lang, the latter two put a big "C" in comedy.

And there are others. Edna Sears, Joe Layton and Charles Fritcher all did their bit in a manner most pleasing. The performance began with such a kick the audience never got a chance to catch its breath until the final curtain rung down. Once in awhile a good chorus happens along. It's here this week.

EARLE

Departing from its usual custom of individual acts, the Earle this week is presenting the Great Orpheum "Unit" show. The production is well done and is enjoyable.

It opens with a short song by several chorus girls, followed by a good modeling act in which Bicknell puts forth some praiseworthy efforts in models of great men. Erma Beban and Dorothy Mack exhibited some clever footwork and the Orpheum Comedy Four put over a good singing and patter act.

Dick Luckie and his "Arcadians" orchestra are easily the hit. The steps of Jane Smith in the "Charleston" went over big. Rudy Willing and Ollie Debrow give a good blackface act, "Fun in Darktown."

A fantastic "Toytown Review" with all the toys exercising their funmaking abilities while the toymaker slept was well received.

This week's photoplay, "Lord Jim," starring Percy Marmont, depicts a ship officer who lost his nerve and his ship, but later regained his courage in the jungles.

The usual orchestral features, a good comedy and a news weekly complete the show.

RIALTO

Every time Betty Compson appears in a new picture her followers are reminded, by the flowery articles of a press agent, of her performance in "The Miracle Man." Miss Compson may have done excellent work in the picture of some years ago, but that has nothing whatever to do with her performance in "The Palace of Pleasure," at the Rialto this week. She is miscast as an "alluring siren" and has no opportunity for showing any ability she may possess. The plot of the picture is not worth repeating, and it is doubtful if one could tell the story without laughing. Dullness is its principal ingredient. The effort at romanticism ends in becoming merely tiresome.

Edmund Lowe plays the part of a romantic young outlaw with the liveliness of a corpse and scarecly changes his expression during the whole picture. Others in the cast, including Henry Kolker, Nina Ramano and Francis McDonald, do as well as their parts allow, which is not much.

Mischa Guterson's prologue is from "Carmen." Dorothy Pilzer is too mechanical in the part of Carmen. Betty Durant, as a gypsy girl, dances fairly well and Romeo Guaraldi makes an acceptable toreador. The music is thoroughly enjoyable.

A Van Bibber comedy and the news reel complete a rather poor program.

Fairbanks in "Don Q."

"Don Q., Son of Zoro," is on view as the principal feature of the bill at Crandall's Tivoli theater the first two days of this week. A new Paul Terry "Aesop Fable" cartoon comedy and the delightful pipe organ embellishment contributed by Otto F. Beck and Ida V. Clarke complete the bill.

"Don Q.," a sequel to "The Mark of Zorro," reveals its star as a complete master of the many uses to which a whip may be put as of swordplay in "The Three Musketeers" and "The Mark of Zorro. Important supporting roles are splendidly played by Mary Astor, Donald Crisp, Stella De Lanti, Warner Oland and Lottie Pickford Forrest.

AUDIENCES PLEASED BY VICTOR ARTISTS

Singers, Musician, Comedian and Monologist Applauded at Auditorium.

Two enthusiastic audiences at the matinee and night performances of the Victor Artists at the Auditorium yesterday applauded the efforts of eight of the well-known artists of that organization whose work has never been heard over the radio.

Among those on the program were Henry Burr and Albert Campbell, tenors; Billy Murray, the tenor comedian; James Stanley and Stanley Baughman, barytones; Monroe Silver, monologist; Sam Herman, xylophonist, and Frank Banta, pianist.

One of the features of the night was the singing of the "Blind Ploughman" by James Stanley, whose mellow barytone was effective. Excellent solos by Sam Herman included the "Valse Bluette," which won much applause. A number of ensemble numbers were given.

WCAP TO BROADCAST MAINE RITES TONIGHT

Envoy, Wilbur and Veterans' Head to Speak at Fort Myer.

"Remember the Maine" program will be broadcast by WCAP tonight from the riding hall at Fort Myer. The program of this meeting is held under the auspices of the Maine memorial committee, United Spanish War Veterans.

Among the speakers will be Senor Sánchez-Aballi, Ambassador from Cuba; Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy, and Clarence A. Belknap, department commander of the Spanish War Veterans. Music will be furnished by the Marine Band orchestra, Capt. William H. Santelmann, leader, with a solo by Flora McGill Keefer.

There will also be a eulogy on Susan B. Anthony, commemorating her one hundred and sixth birthday anniversary, by Mrs. Anna E. Hendley, president of the Susan B. Anthony foundation of the District.

Patients to See "Lost Battalion."

Patients of Walter Reed hospital will see the 1 o'clock matinee of "The Lost Battalion" motion picture at the President theater this afternoon, as guests of the Disabled American Veterans and L. C. McCollum.

STRAND

Heading an all-star program at the Strand this week is Billy Taylor, late comedian of "China Rose," in a musical comedy version, "Mysticism." Mr. Taylor is assisted by Irene Hayden and the Van Joyce sisters. With two of the girls he gave a fine exhibition of the "Charleston." One starts to laugh at the beginning of the act and doesn't stop until the end.

Polly and Oz present "Scene Songs," by W. K. Wells. The audience is given plenty of laughs by the actions and songs. Other features are Lou Lockett and Peggy Page in a lively mile-a-minute dance act entitled "Say It While Dancing." Harry Vale and Donald Crane in "Scintillating Songsters," are a pair of singers with some song hits. Selma Braatz and company are in a first class juggling act entitled "In a Class of Her Own."

The photoplay feature is a thrilling dramatic scene of the wilderness entitled "North Star," featuring Strongheart, the scenes greatest hero. Starting in the society life of New York and ending in a brilliant love scene in the big woods. Chasing the villian among the rocks affords a great thrill.

The program closes with short film features and orchestra pieces.

Paul Terry's Fable.

Paul Terry supplies the auxiliary feature of the bill at Crandall's Ambassador theater the first three days of this week in the form of another of his inimitable "Aesop Fables."

The chief feature of the first bill of the week is First National's travesty of the making of movie stars, "Bluebeard's Seven Wives," complete review of which will be found in connection with Crandall's Metropolitan theater.

Mystery Thriller Here.

A mystery-thriller of the Mexican border—smugglers, secret service men eerie hide-outs, vicious fights, unequal battles and other ingredients of exciting pastime at the cinema—is on view at Crandall's Central theater the first two days of the current week in "The Fighting Edge," in which the stellar roles are played by Patsy Ruth Miller and Kenneth Harlan.

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK GOING BACK INTO OPERA

IS NOT AFTER BIG PARTS

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—After an absence of ten years from the operatic stage, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink announced today she will reappear with the Metropolitan Opera company in Wagnerian roles. She will make her first appearance on the evening of March 25 as Erda in "Das Rheingold."

Mme. Schumann-Heink, 65, mother of eight children and grandmother of eleven, expressed enthusiasm over her return to opera. She said she was particularly glad to sing the role of Erda, her first Wagnerian part in her early days with the Dresden opera.

"Next fall," Mme. Schumann-Heink said, "will be the fiftieth, the golden, anniversary of my career. I harbor no illusions, no false ambitions. I am going back to sing the roles that I sang when I first fought, in bitter poverty, for recognition."

Mme. Schumann-Heink thought she could sing Erda better now than when she "was a child," but expressed her desire not "to sing the big parts," because, she said, she had not "the stupid ambition and belief that I can jump over the fence."

"I should have always kept up my opera singing," she said. "I should never have gone in for concert singing, for I was made to move, to act, to interpret in motion the meaning of music. On the concert platform I could not do this."

"Micaela" Here Sung By Mrs. Morgan Butler

It has just been learned that the part of "Micaela" in the Chicago Opera company's production of "Carmen" Saturday afternoon, was taken by Mrs. Morgan Butler, daughter-in-law of Senator and Mrs. William M. Butler of Massachusetts. She has been the guest of Senator and Mrs. Butler in their home, 1601 Twenty-first street.

Mrs. Morgan Butler took the part without any rehearsals. Thirteen years ago she was known to opera goers as Miss Bernice Fisher. The name on the program, Clara Shear, was a misprint, Miss Shear having sung the part in Boston, but not here.

GAYETY

"Puss, Puss," 1925 edition, with Eddie Dale and Charley Daley featured as comedians, which opened at the Gayety yesterday afternoon, proved to be a well-balanced production. Dale and Daley are accomplished musicians, with the unusual ability of making their lines sound new and spontaneous.

Billy Cochran played one of the best straight roles this season: Vera Wallace, a small blond, did more than her share with a large order of songs and dances. Babe Clarke, of the same type, delivered the same kind of entertainment in a different manner. Francis Ryer's songs were well chosen and sung in a nice way. Miles Oliver played an accordion in a professional manner. Bob Lorenzo revived the yodel. Micahua, a Brazilian girl of extraordinary beauty, gives an exciting tight-rope act.

Stiff and Achy After Every Cold?

Many Serious Kidney Troubles Are the Direct Result of Grip, Colds and Other Germ Diseases

ARE you getting over a cold or grip only to find yourself weak, tired and worn out? Does your back ache with a dull, constant throb? Are you so stiff and achy you can hardly keep going?

Then you should know that these are often signs of kidney disorder, and kidney trouble is too dangerous to neglect.

Winter's colds and chills make hard work for the kidneys. The kidneys are apt to be overtaxed and become congested and inflamed, allowing body impurities to accumulate and upset blood and nerves.

It's little wonder, then, that colds and chills leave so many folks with torturing backache, stabbing pains, headaches, dizzy spells, lameness, soreness, stiffness and disturbing bladder irregularities.

Don't risk serious sickness! If your kidneys need help, why not try Doan's Pills? Doan's have been used successfully for over thirty-five years. They are recommended the world over. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Washington People:

H. PHILLIPS, ship caulker, 539 Fourth street southeast, says: "My kidneys were unhealthy and I suffered right smart with my back. I had a heavy pain across my kidneys and my back became stiff and sore. My hands and limbs were swollen, too. My kidneys didn't act regularly. Doan's Pills from the Peoples Drug Store relieved me of backache and reduced the swelling. Doan's also regulated my kidneys."

Mrs. L. HUTH, 411 S. Carolina Ave., says: "I had steady, bearing down pains in my back. When I got up from a chair I was dizzy and spots appeared before me. I was nervous and felt tired and worn out. My kidneys were sluggish. I used Doan's Pills from O'Donnell's Drug Store and they strengthened my back and restored my kidneys to normal."

PLOTTED, SAYS WIFE, WITH HER NEIGHBOR, TO SLAY HUSBAND

Pretty Woman Tells Kansas City Police of Plan for Fake Holdup.

MAN HIRED AS KILLER IS A CITY DETECTIVE

Posed as Escaped Convict and Received $600; Other Conspirator Taken.

Special to The Washington Post.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 14.—A pretty married woman confessed to police last night she had plotted with a neighbor to murder her husband in a fake hold-up so she and the neighbor could be married. Her calm statement followed the confession of her alleged accomplice that they had hired a man to commit the crime.

An amazing sequence of events developed the fact that the conspiracy failed because the supposed former convict they hired as gunman, was a city detective, who caused the conspirators' arrest.

Carl B. Davis, 36, told in a signed statement how he had conspired with the pretty wife of his neighbor, Edward L. Frank, to have Mr. Frank killed so Davis and Mrs. Frank could be married.

Mrs. Frank, 24 years old, tossed her blonde, marcelled hair and crossed silk-clad knees beneath an abbreviated skirt as she puffed cigarettes given her by detectives and told about the plot. She caressed diamonds said to be valued at $2,500, which were to be part of the hired killer's pay.

Mr. Frank appeared stricken when confronted by the confessions.

"How can Albertina do that to a man who has shot as square with her as I have," he cried.

Posed as Criminal.

Joe Dill, city detective, was the former convict "hired" to kill Frank. He produced $600 which he said had been given him in advance, since the conspiracy started about three weeks ago.

Last night was the time set for the fake robbery and murder. All details were arranged for Dill to shoot Frank as he and Mrs. Frank were leaving home or returning in their motor car.

Dill was to dart from the dark and shoot. Mrs. Frank was to have her diamonds in her hand and give them to Dill. Then she was to scream and "faint." Dill was to flee with the diamonds.

Just as the Franks were preparing to leave home for a show last night, Dill appeared with Ed Smith, another detective, and arrested them.

About the same time John Lothridge and Wilson Jones, detectives, arrested Davis, who, to perfect an alibi, was at home with his mother and sister.

Mrs. Frank and Davis planned to wait a becoming length of time after the murder, and be married.

Met in a Hotel.

In his confession Davis said their plans to kill the husband had been developed only recently. He asked a friend whose name the police are withholding, about hiring a "killer." The friend produced Dill and the three met in a downtown hotel.

"I want to hire a man to kill a married man" Davis confessed he said.

Dill, posing as an escaped convict, demanded $1,000, Davis said the man's wife did not have that much, she had some diamonds. It was agreed to accept the diamonds and whatever money could be raised.

Frank admitted he had gone under the name of Edward Lowery in New York city where he was a stock broker and worth $100,000 prior to 1919. He said he lost most of the money in speculations.

Lady Astor Takes Lead As Asker of Questions

London, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—To what extent women members of parliament talk in the house of commons is revealed in official records showing that from December 2, 1924, to date Miss Wilkinson, labor member, has reeled off 83 columns of the official report. This makes her thirty-ninth on the list of speakers, whereas Lady Astor occupies only 100th place.

Lady Astor takes the lead in wanting to know things, however, and has asked 124 questions, against Miss Wilkinson's 102.

Miss Wilkinson took part in 297 divisions, the Duchess of Atholl voted on 252 occasions, Mrs. Phillips on 220, and Lady Astor 127 times.

SLAYER OF GIRL TRIED TO ALTER FINGER PRINTS

Given Acid by Surgeon Who Made Over His Features, Edgar Vance Says.

INSISTS STORY IS TRUE

Danville, Ill., Feb. 14 (By A. P.). Edgar Vance, alias Luke O'Neill, who said he killed Catherine Gore, New York girl, last September, today stuck to his story that he had had his features changed by a plastic surgeon in Chicago, to avoid capture. He added that he had tried to mar his finger tips with acid given him by this surgeon to change his finger prints.

This, he stoutly maintained, accounted for the fact that he did not resemble a police photograph of O'Neill, and that his finger prints taken here were blurred and did not correspond to those made by the New York police.

While admitting the slaying, he refused to give the names of his parents, his wife or any relatives, maintaining he did not wish them to be involved. He also refused to give the name of the Chicago surgeon, who, he said, changed his features, declaring the surgeon was "a friend of the underworld."

O'Neill was arrested in an automobile stolen in St. Louis. He said he killed the girl, who, he thought was unfaithful to him, went to Chicago with $6,000, and submitted to the operation on his face. He later went to Kansas City, where he said he was arrested and released. He also said he had been arrested in other cities but refused details.

Pershing's Condition Is Bad, Says His Aid

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Gen. John J. Pershing passed today in retirement at the Waldorf-Astoria, visiting only with his son Warren, a student at Phillips-Exeter academy, before entering Walter Reed hospital in Washington this week for an operation.

Although confirming reports that he was to enter the hospital as a result of his breakdown in Arica, Chile, where he represented President Coolidge as chairman of the plebiscitary commission, Gen Pershing would not discuss either his condition or the South American situation.

Maj. Quekemeyer, Gen. Pershing's aid, described the general's condition as "bad." He is suffering from high blood pressure and is in need of dental surgery.

Study of Capitol Noise To Be Made Thursday

A scientific test of the "noise" in the Senate and House of Representatives will be made Thursday by a representative of a well known electric company. Just why the test has been delayed until Thursday was not disclosed. It is understood the "noise" in the Capitol will be compared with that found in other places of Washington.

The tests will be made with an audiometer. Similar tests were made recently in New York city.

The amount of noise in business and residential sections of Washington also will be measured.

WHEATLEY Y. W. C. A. HEARS RACE TALKS

Representatives of Five Peoples Express Desire for Cooperation.

"Race Relations Sunday" was observed at the vesper service of the Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A. A program of addresses by representatives of five races was interspersed with renditions of negro spirituals. Mrs. Frances Boyce presided.

Mrs. C. O. Goodpasture spoke of improvement in relationship between American whites and negroes and indicated possibilities of larger cooperation. H. W. Gownder, South American Indian, described interracial conditions of his homeland as contrasted with America. Historical material referring to the American negro's accomplishments was presented by Dr. Sarah Brown.

The caste system of India was said by Mme. Sukhoda Bannerjee to be much less reprehensible than American prejudice of race. Rupert Saucho, of China, medical student at Howard university, suggested certain contributions which his nation and the negro could make to civilization and peace of the world.

SERVING 30-YEAR TERM, MAN WINS $50,000 SUIT

Prisoner Was Shot in Court by Grandfather of Girl Who Accused Him.

INJURY IS PERMANENT

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 14 (By A. P.). A jury at Elizabeth City, N. C., has awarded Joe Swindell, a convict, damages of $50,000 against J. D. Farrior of Wilson, N. C., for alleged personal injuries. Farrior, it was charged, shot and permanently disabled Swindell more than a year ago while the latter was in the Elizabeth City court awaiting trial for an alleged offense against Farrior's granddaughter.

Swindell was afterward tried for the offense, was given 30 years in the penitentiary and is now serving this term. Farrior was convicted on a charge of felonious shooting and was given a prison term but was pardoned while awaiting action on an appeal. Swindell then brought suit for $100,000 damages, claiming that he had been permanently disabled as a result of the shooting. The jury gave him half that amount after being out two hours. The case was one of the most sensational on record in North Carolina.

Freeman Confirms 27 In Upper Marlboro

Bishop James E. Freeman confirmed a class of 27 in Trinity Episcopal church, Upper Marlboro, Md., yesterday. The class was presented by the Rev. Jeremiah M. Shrewsbury, rector of the church.

After the confirmation, Bishop Freeman addressed the class, and preached to the congregation. He emphasized the need of moral character in referring to the tendency to disregard the law. It is the duty of everyone to obey a law whether in sympathy with it or not, he said.

G. O. P. Fears Tariff Issue, Hull Asserts

(By the Associated Press.)

The Republican administration has a "tremendous issue" for the impending congressional campaigns in the relation of the "typical Republican high tariff" to the agricultural depression of the last five years, Representative Hull, of Tennessee, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, asserted yesterday in a statement.

to the presence of the detective. He did not object to the presence of the nurse.

Detective Also Objects.

In turn, the detective objected to allowing the count to see the child in his room, offering to meet him some place on the hotel grounds.

"Here are my papers," said the count. "They permit me to see the child in my hotel. If I can't see my son in my own room I don't want to see him.

"I have not come down here to see the mother. I don't give a damn about seeing her. But I want to see my son. It's the child I came to see."

At this moment little Peter started to cry, and the count immediately tried to quiet him, saying "da da" several times. Then the dowager countess picked up a small rattle and started to shake the toy at Peter, but the wails only increased.

The argument then was renewed Peter continuing to cry and suddenly the count's mother became hysterical and also started to weep.

After fifteen minutes of this the count said he did not wish to see the child if he could have no privacy, whereupon the nurse took Peter out of the room.

The count and his mother followed the child into the elevator, the count kissing his son on top of his golden locks and saying to the dowager countess: "Don't you wish me to give him some dollies?" She shook her head.

Shortly afterward, the count went into conference with his lawyer and William Anhelt, publisher of the Pictorial Review, who has been acting as the count's adviser.

Women in Baltimore Put Off Bread March

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 14.—A proposed "bread march" of Baltimore women members of the Housewives league to the White House has been postponed pending action of the government in two suits instituted against the alleged bread and food trusts.

Mrs. E. Palmo Dowell, vice president and State chairman, said there would be no further action in Washington until the government has a chance to do something. Meanwhile they proposed to continue their fight for a standard loaf in this State.

THE TAX BILL IN CONFERENCE.

All signs point to a strenuous controversy in the conference committee in charge of the tax bill. The President has made known his strong opposition to the bill as it passed the Senate, on account of the excessive reductions, which will cause a deficit in the Treasury. Senator Smoot, sharing this view, may range himself alongside the House conferees in striking out the Senate amendments which reduced taxes on admissions and automobiles, but the Senate adopted those amendments by heavy majorities and may not consent to their elimination.

On the elimination of the estate tax the Senate conferees are expected to stand firm, and if compromises can be made which will restore revenues in other sections of the bill, the House conferees may agree to the elimination of the estate tax.

The repeal of the publicity clause, having been agreed to by both houses, is not subject to change in conference.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, has assailed the members of his party in the Senate for their "surrender" to Secretary Mellon. Mr. Reed insists that big incomes are not sufficiently taxed in the pending bill. The nonpartisan attitude of Senator Simmons, in the finance committee and on the floor, is denounced by the Democratic senator from Missouri as a betrayal of the Democratic party. It appears, however, that Senator Simmons was cordially supported by the Democrats of the South in his policy of cooperation with the Republicans in bringing out the tax reduction bill. Most of Mr. Simmons' correspondence reveals that Southern sentiment is opposed to "making politics" out of the tax measure. The South wants tax reduction substantially as proposed by the administration. It is not disposed to seek political advantage at the risk of failing to secure tax reduction in time to relieve taxpayers this year.

Although the controversial points in the tax bill are difficult of adjustment, there is reason to expect agreement by the conferees and by the two houses by the end of the month. Tax reduction is a matter affecting Democrats and Republicans alike. Neither party is entitled to sole credit for proposing or supporting tax reduction. In view of the support contributed by Democrats, the administration can not make a special plea to voters in the coming campaign that it alone is the friend of the taxpayer. The drastic amendments adopted in the Senate against the advice of the nonpartisan coalition in charge of the bill do not strengthen the Democratic party, for these amendments will either be eliminated in conference or they will create a deficit in case President Coolidge, against his wish, should sign the bill.

War has no monopoly of heroes. There's the man who refuses to sign a petition.

THE SOLDIERS' BONUS.

Operations of the adjusted service compensation law, commonly known as the soldiers' bonus, has many interesting features. Up to January 1, 1926, there had been received 3,106,045 applications for certificates and cash payments. If the amount is less than $50 the applications are paid in cash. Cash payments have been made in 100,768 cases, amounting to $3,306,000. The amount paid to dependents in 36,657 cases is $13,708,000; the latter being quarterly payments.

Certificates have been issued by the veterans' bureau to the number of 2,901,616 cases, having a face value of $2,996,000,000. The limit for filing claims is January 1, 1928. It is estimated that during 1926 about 200,000 additional certificates will be issued, and 100,000 additional in 1927.

The original appropriation for the adjusted compensation service was $100,000,000. This fund was loaned to the Treasury at 4 per cent. The death losses against the fund for 1925 were $16,976,632, leaving a balance of $87,023,368, less $339,532 interest credited back. Adding the $50,000,000 appropriated for 1926, the fund on January 1, 1926, was about $136,683,833. Repeating the same process for 1926 brings the probable total fund to about $123,501,758 on December 31, 1926. The government's liability under the certificates issued to January 1, 1926, is approximately $3,000,000,000.

Up to the first of this year, 2,683,207 applications for adjusted compensation had been received from the army; 365,498 from the navy, and 57,340 from the marine corps—a total of 3,106,045.

The amount of cash paid to dependents and veterans in the army to January 1, 1926, plus the certificates, amounts to $2,571,009,732; to the navy, $381,894,835, and to the marine corps, $59,271,106. Up to January 1, 1926, 11,555 death claims had been approved, amounting to $11,969,249.

For the veterans' military and naval compensation, Congress appropriated $83,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925, and $127,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926. It is expected that some $140,000,000 will be required for the year ending June 30, 1927.

No other country on earth is so generous to its war veterans. Total government disbursements for pensions have risen from $26,786,000 in 1878 to $263,012,500 in 1923—the high-water mark. For the seven years ending with 1926, the pensions paid have amounted to more than $200,000,000 annually. The veterans' adjusted compensation act was in lieu of pensions, and has proved satisfactory and valuable to the veterans, their dependents and survivors. Last year, Uncle Sam paid out more than $230,000,000 to veterans, dependents and survivors of veterans of six former wars.

How pleasant the world would be if only the right people had an inferiority complex.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

The public building bill will come before the House today. After thirteen years of waiting, it is purposed to appropriate $165,000,000 for necessary government buildings in this Capital and throughout the country. The schedule has been carefully prepared, and no unnecessary projects are included. The sum allotted for buildings in Washington is $50,000,000. It is not enough to house the departments as they should be housed, but it will afford great relief and added security against fire.

The government's building program should not fail. True economy requires that these buildings should be erected without delay. Heavy rent bills will be saved, the health and security of employes will be enhanced, and priceless records will be preserved against destruction.

The fact that the building program presses for adoption at this session emphasizes the unwisdom of too drastic reductions in the tax bill. Insistence upon excessive tax reduction at this time is inconsistent with enactment of the building bill. If taxes are to be reduced to the point where a Treasury deficit will follow, Congress should postpone the building bill, notwithstanding the need of buildings.

Representative Zihlman's resolution providing for a joint congressional committee to inquire into the fiscal relations of the United States and the District of Columbia is approved by Senators Phipps and Capper, of the District committee, and there is a prospect that it will be adopted. The committee, if appointed, will be required to make a report to Congress next January. The inquiry should be undertaken, by all means, and a plan recommended by the committee which will permanently adjust the proportion to be contributed by the United States to the cost of the District government.

PORTO RICO.

Reports, more or less vague, have come to Washington in regard to the financial troubles of Porto Rico. There does not appear to be any substantial basis for them.

In his last report, dated October 1, 1925, Gov. Towner states that in 1924 the tax laws of the island were amended and improved; and that outside of cases now before the courts, they are satisfactory. Had all delinquent taxes been paid when due there would have been no floating debt.

Taxes in Porto Rico are low, being only $7.86 per capita as compared with $70.96 in the United States, including Federal, State and local taxes. There is no Federal tax in Porto Rico, while that in the United States is $27.78 per capita. State and local taxes in Porto Rico are $7.86 per capita and about $43.19 in the United States. The amount of income tax collected in the United States is $16 per capita; in Porto Rico it is only $1 per capita.

The amount of taxes on real and personal property collected last year in Porto Rico was only $5,308,000; the assessed valuation was $315,862,000; the rate was therefore only $1.75.

The total revenues of the island last year amounted to $8,480,000, of which about $1,359,000 was from customs and the balance from internal taxes.

The total bonded debt of the island is $20,250,000. Of this debt more than $12,597,000 is to be redeemed by special public-improvement taxes and about $6,900,000 is provided for by special taxes. Only about $550,000 of these bonds must be paid out of the ordinary revenues of the island.

Regarding the floating debt of the island, amounting to about $5,000,000, payment is to be provided for by collection of delinquent taxes, which amounts to much more than the floating debt.

Gov. Towner says:

> The credit of Porto Rico has always been high and her bonds have always been sold on the most favorable terms. There has never been a default or delay in the payment of either interest or principal at maturity, and payment in advance of maturity has been made whenever it was advantageous so to do.

The corporations, says Gov. Towner, are the principal complainants in Porto Rico, although, he adds, they are treated justly and fairly under the Porto Rican law. Doubtless a large part of the complaint arises from an effort to obtain special privileges.

There are satisfactory vest pocket models of many things, but not of cigars.

ENCOURAGEMENT TO SHIPPING.

Senator Jones, of Washington, has offered an amendment to the merchant marine act which would authorize the Shipping Board to reserve from the construction loan fund the sum of $15,000,000 to be used for the maintenance of ships and routes which have been thrown back upon the board through the inability of private operators to meet foreign competition.

This is a good plan, so far as it goes; but why should not the government adopt a policy which would make it possible for private operators to compete on better terms with foreigners? Instead of providing for failure, why not provide for success? The restrictions and conditions which are thrown about operators desirous of taking over government ships are such as to discourage private enterprise, because competition with foreigners is made more difficult without giving compensating advantages to the government.

The government will not grant subsidies to ships, and it seems to be reluctant even to give preferentials to commerce employing American bottoms. But it can at least liberalize the rules under which the Shipping Board turns over government-owned ships to private operators. Competition in shipping is in the open. Americans are handicapped by high wage scales and laws which safeguard the health and welfare of sailors. These laws should not be repealed, but offsetting arrangements should be made which will aid operators to compete with foreigners.

The suggestion has been made that the government should grant a rebate of income tax to shippers who give their business to American ships in preference to foreign ships. This procedure would have one advantage, namely, that of accurate verification of figures. It might be worth while to try the experiment, at least on import commerce, in the hope of developing tonnages which would encourage operators to maintain American lines.

Every industry in the United States which needs protection against foreign competition is protected except ocean shipping. This is out in the open, facing the most severe competition, under heavy handicaps which are made in America. Why not encourage Americans who are willing to keep the American flag on the seas?

A man is young as long as he feels a little bit foolish while counting his calories.

"MORAL TURPITUDE."

The Secretary of Labor has before him an appeal by an English woman who awaits deportation at Ellis island. She was held up by the immigration authorities and in response to questions admitted "having committed a felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude." The law requires that an alien making such an admission shall be excluded from the United States.

The alien in question points out that the man who shared in her guilt is also an alien, now in the United States, and that justice calls for his deportation if she is to be deported. The immigration authorities questioned the man and he admitted having committed an offense involving moral turpitude.

The law on this subject reads as follows:

> The following classes of aliens shall be excluded from admission into the United States: . . . persons who have been convicted of or admit having committed a felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude.

Admissions by the alien are very important in this connection, as it is obviously difficult if not impossible for the immigration authorities to be certain in all cases whether aliens have been convicted of crime in foreign countries. No doubt many criminal aliens have been admitted because of the ignorance of the authorities. But when the admission is made, the authorities have no other recourse than to apply the law.

The prominence of the parties in this noisome case has nothing to do with the enforcement of the law. They are undesirable aliens and must be deported.

Engineer Commissioner Bell has designed a guard rail to be placed on bridges in the District for the prevention of such automobile tragedies as those which occurred at the Klingle road and Calvert street bridges. The protection will consist of hollow steel posts, firmly set and braced, filled with concrete, carrying a steel cable along the top from post to post, and a strong steel netting between the posts. If the design is accepted by the District commissioners Congress will be asked for an emergency appropriation to provide for immediate installation of the guard rails. All this should have been done long ago, before human life was lost. Further delay will be nothing short of criminal neglect.

Alfonso of Spain has created a new order. He has decreed that commercial travelers of his kingdom shall be organized. In the United States "Knights of the Gripsack" have existed for half a century or more, but the "society" was without international recognition. Now that the drummers of Spain have been recognized by royal decree the insignia of the gripsack may come to rank with the insignia of the garter, and the letters K. C. G. S. beneath a reproduction of the arms of Castile will be as much of a patent to distinction in Spain as K. G. or K. C. B. in Great Britain. And what a scramble there will be for the institution of an American branch of the order!

St. Augustine, Fla., has the oldest house in America and the narrowest street. New York has the most valuable piece of real estate in the world. It is No. 1 Wall street. The lot has a frontage of 29.10 feet on Broadway and 39.10 feet on Wall street. In 1905 a St. Louis syndicate purchased the land for the record price of $576 a square foot. The property is assessed by the city for taxation purposes at $1,100,000. If Florida real estate keeps on mounting in value, the State may yet take away from New York the distinction of possessing the most valuable piece of land as well as the oldest house and the narrowest street.

People are ready for self-government when they outgrow the notion that a brickbat is an argument.

You never hear of a prophet getting stoned for predicting a hard winter that doesn't show up.

People are mean, and most of them are content if they have more than the neighbors.

The Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By Will Rogers

The Worst joke I heard today was told to me by Ernie Truex, of Great Neck, Long Island, the Actor. Ernie is not only one of our most popular stage Stars, but he is a dandy Screen performer and has made quite a few movies. Ernie is such a cute and young-looking little fellow that you would never think he was the father of a couple of great big boys that look like his brothers. Ernie is prowling around down in Florida. Was on Mr. Gilette's Yacht. Great Neck is going to be hard for him to settle down in when he gets back.

Ernie told me what he said was a new Jewish Story. An old Jewish Gentleman and his young son, age about 9 years, were traveling on a train. The Conductor looked at the boy and said, "What about the Boy?" The father replied, "The Boy, the Boy! The Baby, you mean? Why he is just a little infant a couple years old."

"Well, he looks like he is 7 or 8 years old," said the Conductor.

"Well, can I help it because the child worries?" said the father.

PRESS COMMENT

Evening Up.

Birmingham News: Things even up rather well. People who use the top part of their heads less, use their chins more.

It Would Be Strange.

Cincinnati Enquirer: It would seem as strange to have a Sunday without a grade-crossing accident as it would to have one without a church service.

Saving the Country.

Detroit News: A speaker says the country never was going along in better shape. That is good news, for the time being, because it wouldn't be possible for it to be saved until the congressional elections.

Recognizing Virtues.

Toledo Blade: Always bear in mind that if you let the train go by the pasengers will look out of the window, see you waiting patiently and say in their minds, "Now there's a motorist who has some sense!"

Beyond the Alps.

Springfield Republican: Austria, a small and impoverished fragment of what once was a mighty empire, has ample reason to bow before the blast, if only in the fact that in its industries is invested much Italian money. No country is less in a position to indulge in a boycott.

Baron von Steuben.

Brooklyn Eagle: New Jersey is to be congratulated on her plan to buy the former home of Baron von Steuben in Bergen county as a relic of Washington's period. As a drill-master the Prussian was unapproached and unapproachable. Even in the world war nobody suggested changing the name of Steuben street in Brooklyn.

We Don't Think So.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Poultney Bigelow is suing H. G. Wells for slander because, he says, the latter called him a bore. "How am I to make a living as an after-dinner speaker," asks Bigelow, "if I am called a bore?"

There is, however, another phase to the matter. Is it absolutely necessary that an after-dinner speaker should make a living?

Plumbers Must Plumb.

Ohio State Journal: One of those humble but heroic souls whom, thank heaven, the race can still produce, William Knopf, by name, of Detroit, Mich., a plumber by trade, has sued his wife, who is supposed to be more misguided than inherently vicious, for divorce, and, we hope, alimony on the ground that a plumber can not plumb successfully on a spinach diet, and nothing more inspiring has happened in our national history since John Brown, of Ossawatomie, marched on Harpers Ferry.

Edison's Philosophy.

Baltimore Sun: Mr. Edison's claim to an age of 120 years must be admitted if one accepts the idea that age is measured by work done. His two "shifts" daily and his economy in sleep mean that he has done twice the quantity of work, leaving quality aside, which the average American performs. But his own explanation of his activity takes the sting out of his implied criticism of the slothful. He says that he can not retire, for it would be "just like trying to stop smoking cigarettes." And so the indolent may justly reply that they do not dare to undertake more work, for it would be just like trying to smoke stogies.

Is Black a Color?

New York Evening Post: Black will be the prevailing color in hair this year, according to Commissioner Nicoll, of the State department of health. The doctor does not make this announcement with the aim of helping those who are striving to keep up with the fashions, but to warn them that most black hair dyes contain salts of lead, mercury and other ingredients which produce unsightly skin irritations. It is doubtful if the commissioner's serious protest will deter those whose ambition is to be in the fashion from adopting what he rightly calls "this newest fad." They—men and women alike—will dye their hair until the evil effects become all too apparent. Experience is a hard school, but the foolish will learn in no other, as Poor Richard says.

Higher Economy.

Boston Transcript: President Coolidge says that the spirit of constructive economy is higher and nobler than a mere matter of dollars and cents. Perhaps this will be of assistance to the man who is trying to convince himself that the purchase of the nobler automobile can be made to conform to the higher economy.

When We Melt.

Philadelphia Record: According to Prof. John Joly, head of the department of geology and mineralogy at the University of Dublin, the earth's crust is constantly growing hotter, and "in some 30,000,000 or 50,000,000 years" it will liquefy completely. It may be possible for students to find the study of geology and mineralogy not only interesting, but also highly exciting—under certain conditions—but this is one piece of information that seems to us to represent about zero in contemporary interest. All solemn dicta as to what may be expected to happen 30,000,000 or 50,000,000 years hence induce in us prodigious yawns. No one now living can contradict such prophecies, and no one now living need be greatly concerned over them—so what's the use?

"Old Man" and "Dad."

Philadelphia Inquirer: Asks one of those who are always viewing with alarm: "Does your boy call you 'Dad' to your face and 'old man' behind your back?"

It is quite possible he does, which worries us not in the least. In fact, there are times when he calls us "old man" right to our face. And strange to say, it is at such times when the invisible barrier between father and son is most completely obliterated and confidential relations most firmly established—it is at such times we can get in our best instructive licks without any suspicion on his part that we are giving advice. Call us "old man?" He sure does, and why shouldn't he? We call him "old man."

The Other Side.

Baltimore Sun: Perhaps they may not have meant it, but the managers of a speakers' bureau who offered Luther Burbank $120,000 for a year's lecturing on religion dealt the American public a shrewd blow. They expected to extract large sums from audiences who gathered to hear an expert in one subject express his views on another to which he has devoted no study at all, so far as any one knows. The ridiculousness of asking a man of great spiritual attainments to lecture on plant breeding is obvious, but the bureau people assumed that hundreds of thousands of Americans would see nothing strange in the reverse proposition.

Science and Religion

By GLENN FRANK

"A RELIGION which does not touch science, and a science which does not touch religion, are mutilated and barren," says Dean Inge, in a recently published volume on Science, Religion and Reality. "Not that religion can ever be a science, or science a religion; but we may hope for a time when the science of a religious man will be scientific, and the religion of a scientific man religious."

It is not an armistice between science and theology that the modern man wants; he wants permanent peace between science and religion.

That peace will never come until we realize that the problem we face is not the problem of reconciling modern science to ancient theologies, but the problem of utilizing the results of science for the enrichment, the increase, and the moral unification of life.

Science has forever demolished many of the absurdities that mankind in its ignorance had confused with religion, but it has brought added power to the appeal of every reality of religion.

Science is not sniping religion.

Science is supplying religious leadership with some of its finest raw materials.

In every time of grand-scale readjustment a lot of new raw materials for religious enrichment are unearthed. And for the last half century the scientists have been digging out of themselves and their fields, often without realizing what it was, "the clay of which the bricks are made with which religions are built." Science has thrown up a vast mass of religious raw materials that are waiting to be used by men who can recognize religious values even when they are unlabeled.

Science alone is not a staff upon which we can afford to trust our whole weight.

Science is power, but power may be prostituted.

A sharp knife may be a good tool in the hands of a workman; it may be a dangerous weapon in the hands of a lunatic. It has been only a few years since we were using the results of science in a war that came near being the suicide of our civilization.

But all this does not justify our thinking that science is essentially irreligious; it does not justify our turning away from scientific thinking to take refuge in a tenuous mysticism alone.

It only reminds us that science is neither moral nor immoral, but unmoral, waiting to be used for high ends or low at the will of the user.

We are doomed to bleak and barren lives unless we can manage to drive our religion and our science abreast.

"The spiritual integration of society," says Dean Inge, "must be illuminated by the dry light of science, and warmed by the rays of idealism, a white light but not cold. And idealism must be compacted as a religion, for it is the function of religion to prevent the fruits of the flowering times of the spirit from being lost."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thanks, Mr. Walton!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to extend to you my appreciation of your excellent editorial "Abraham Lincoln" in this morning's Post. You have emulated the beloved Lincoln himself in brevity, simplicity and good taste. It will be read and digested by many who would otherwise have passed by a longer editorial.

WM. R. WALTON.

Death Traps.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the name of humanity let us get rid of these death traps at Calvert street and Klingle road.

Is Congress indifferent or uninformed? Public opinion must count for something.

No accidents of this sort have occurred on Connecticut avenue bridge.

Strain-gauge measurements on the beams and trusses do not make up for the obsolete design and other inadequacy to present day automobile and truck traffic.

FREDERICK SILLERS, JR.

Snow Removal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I approve of, praise where it is due, but watching the system employed by the street-cleaning department in removing the snow, one can not but regret the time wasted in the operation. I counted five carts half filled waiting their turn to dump the snow into the sewer. Close by five more carts were waiting their turn to be loaded. Six men were loading one cart in each other's way. It seems to me if more sewer traps were used for a gang and spread over a larger area and a system where the men and carts do not waste so much time, the taxpayer's money would not be so wasted.

Barbara La Marr.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Barbara La Marr, once the queen of the screen, lies buried in the soil of California. The body of the actress is encased in a silver coffin. People went miles to see it. The crush at the obsequies was so great that the police were compelled to interfere and even at that many of the throng were injured. Several thousand years ago Tutankhamen, once a "pharaoh" of Egypt, was encased in a golden casket and his remains were carefully deposited in the tomb. But along came Howard Carter, whose desire for archeological knowledge induced him to spend a fortune in disinterring these royal remains. He dug up Tut and shifted the location of the golden coffin to a museum in Cairo. It would be interesting to ascertain, if that were possible, how many centuries must pass before some Yankee, or Japanese, archeologist will dig up the mummy of the "screen queen," and cart that silver encasement to the museum in Tokyo or the Athenaeum in Boston.

Indifferent to Jazz.

Philadelphia Inquirer: A new peril in jazz has been discovered. The Salvation Army of Cincinnati has obtained a temporary injunction against the building of a motion picture theater next door to its home on the ground that the music played there would implant "jazz emotions" in babies born at the maternity hospital. There is no little difference of opinion as to the extent of prenatal influences. The fears of the Salvation Army may be exaggerated. It would be a tragic thing to have a whole generation, infected with jazz through no volition of its own.

A GIRL, to work out her proper destiny, should have her income provided by another. She can, of course, be trained for business; but if she is, it will be at the sacrifice of other and better things.

A woman's fittest place is in the home. In creating it, organizing it, adorning it, she fulfills her natural impulse. She can render there, in the comfort, the relaxation, the pleasure she can bring to a household, a service that goes far beyond what she might do in some business office.

This principle needs no argument. No doubt you have accepted it long ago; and you are rearing your daughter for housewifely tasks. But will she be able to continue these tasks when you are called away? May she not be forced into an occupation that you would not choose for her?

Our booklet, "Of Trusts for Daughters," is offered to every father whose concern for his child extends to her remotest years.

CAPITAL SOCIETY EVENTS

THE British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, will be the guest of honor at a dinner this evening in Baltimore of the English-Speaking Union of Maryland. He will make an address. The Duchess of Norfolk and her daughter, Lady Rachel Howard, guests at the embassy, will accompany him and will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Garrett at Evergreen, their home in Charles street.

The Minister of Latvia and Mme. Seya entertained at dinner last evening in compliment to Mme. Kallas, wife of the Esthonian minister to London, who is here for a short visit.

The Solicitor General and Mrs. William De Witt Mitchell entertained at luncheon yesterday in compliment to the Chief Justice and Mrs. William Howard Taft. Other guests included Justice and Mrs. Willis Van Devanter, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, Col. and Mrs. William Donovan, Maj. and Mrs. U. S. Grant, 3d; Mr. Francis Call Woodman and Mrs. Bancroft.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson have cancelled the invitations for the two dinners they were to give tonight and tomorrow night, due to the illness of Mrs. Robinson. Mrs. Douglas Robinson, mother of Mr. Robinson, who was to have come from New York to be his guest, is ill there and has postponed her trip here.

The Vice President, Mr. Dawes, will preside at the meeting of the American Guardian association Wednesday evening. The speaker will be Col. Gordon Johnston.

Calders to Give Dinner.

Former Senator and Mrs. William M. Calder, of New York, will entertain at dinner in the Willard room at the Willard this evening. They will have 70 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Calder arrived on Saturday from New York and expect to spend the week at the Willard.

Capt. Kiyoski Hasegawa, naval attache at the Japanese embassy, will entertain a company of 200 at tea on Friday in the Chinese room at the Mayflower. The tea is to be in the nature of a farewell party as Capt. Hasegawa will leave Washington at an early date, having been detailed to sea duty.

Mr. and Mrs. Copley Amory and Miss Katherine Amory have left Washington for a Western trip and will not return until March.

Today from 4 to 6 o'clock the congressional women residing at the George Washington inn will informally welcome their friends. Those receiving will be Mrs. A. M. Peterson, sister of Representative Curry, of California; Mrs. Charles J. Thompson, wife of Representative Thompson, of Ohio; Mrs. M. A. Romjue, wife of Representative Romjue, of Missouri; Mrs. James B. Reed, wife of Representative Reed, of Arkansas; Mrs. Ralph Lozier, wife of Representative Lozier, of Missouri; Mrs. John M. Moore, wife of Representative Moore, of Kentucky, and Mrs. William L. Carss, wife of Representative Carss, of Minnesota.

Others who will receive with them are Mrs. F. B. Swank, wife of Representative Swank, of Oklahoma; Mrs. Clarence Cannon, wife of Representative Cannon, of Missouri, and Mrs. John Marshall Robsion, wife of Representative Robsion, of Kentucky.

Mrs. Archibald Gracie entertained at a reception yesterday in her home in Sixteenth street. The drawing room and the dining room were decorated with hearts and red roses, suggestive of a valentine celebration. Mrs. Bradley presided at the coffee, assisted by Mrs. Philip Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Perin have closed their house and gone to Aiken, S. C., for the remainder of the winter.

Mardi Gras Ball Tomorrow.

Beauty and brilliance will characterize the Mardi Gras ball tomorrow night at the Mayflower, when Washington society will assemble en masse to witness the spectacle of the processional and crowning of the king and queen, with the royal court, surrounded by the maskers in all their magnificent oriental attire.

The king is to be one of the most popular bachelors in Washington, and the queen, it goes without saying, will be the loveliest and most outstanding woman it is possible to name. Her ladies in waiting are eight beautiful and popular Washington girls, and in his task of the selection of names to be presented for choice of these maids of honor to her majesty, Mr. Walter Denegre has been assisted by Mrs. James Curtis.

The robes of the queen are said to be gorgeous, and those of her maids equally fascinating, while the maskers—those mysterious gentlemen who are to be forever nameless—are to be arrayed in costly costumes of splendid color, brought in many cases from New York and Philadelphia, to complete the brilliance of this Mardi Gras scene.

Miss Suzette Dewey, chairman of the important committees for the ball, has as her aids Miss Laura Towne, Miss Rosamund Reed, Miss Lenore Scullin, Miss Frances McKee and Miss Anne King Carley.

Mrs. Dimock and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, chairman and vice chairman of the Mardi Gras committee, announce that, beginning today, invitations and ball tickets may be had at the office of Mrs. Rose Gouverneur Hoes at the Mayflower. The committee has made every effort to complete a comprehensive invitation list, but it is felt that by chance a number of invitations may have gone astray. It seems to be not generally understood that it is likewise necessary to engage seats in advance for the Mardi Gras supper. Those desiring supper must make reservations today or tomorrow through Mrs. Hoes.

Mrs. Harley Peyton Wilson, of Hollin Hall, in Virginia, who is spending the winter at the Mayflower, left Washington yesterday for Florida to be gone two weeks. It has therefore been necessary for Mrs. Wilson to cancel all social engagements for that length of time.

Miss Mary Temple, who has been at the Willard for the winter, will leave today for her home in Knoxville, Tenn., where she will remain until April 16, when she will return to attend the D. A. R. congress.

Mrs. Harrington Mills has as her guests Mrs. Jules C. Simon, Mrs. Arthur L. Coe and Mrs. Thomas Mullins, all of Fort Wayne, Ind. Mrs. Mills will entertain at a bridge luncheon tomorrow.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Charles G. Treat, who have been at the Hotel Astor in New York, sailed for Bermuda on Saturday.

Gen. and Mrs. Frank T. Hines had ten guests with them last night at the fifth of the series of Sunday evening dinner concerts being given at the Mayflower.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McKenney entertained a company of sixteen at dinner last evening in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKenney who celebrated their wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McKenney will leave today for New York, where they will remain about a week.

Dr. William Gerry Morgan has returned from Philadelphia, where he attended the dinner given by Dr. Alfred Stengel in honor of Professor Faber of Copenhagen.

During his visit in Washington, Professor Faber will be the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Morgan in their home on Sixteenth street.

To Hold Book Review Tea.

The League of American Pen Women will entertain in the clubhouse with a book review tea tomorrow afternoon. Books will be reviewed by Mrs. Peggy Albion, Miss Maria Boggs and Miss Alice Hutcheus Drake. Members and their friends are invited. Mrs. H. S. Mulliken, president, will preside. The reception given Sunday afternoon for Mrs. Anna Katherine Green Rohlfs and Mrs. Roberts, widow of Gen. Henry M. Roberts, was most enjoyable. Parliamentarians well known in Washington from the league and other organizations assisted Mrs. Mulliken and Mrs. Voorhorst in receiving.

Members of the Rock Creek Hunt club, through the courtesy of Admiral Grayson and Mr. Melvin Hazen, were entertained Friday evening at the Riding and Hunt club by a special showing of motion pictures of particular interest to horsemen.

"Life o' Riley," portraying brilliant horsemanship of officers of the army at the cavalry school, Fort Riley, Kans., furnished thrills and spills. It was followed by a Kentucky blue grass picture, starring Man o' War and other celebrated derby winners. "Hunting With the Rock Creek Hounds," of local interest, concluded the program.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Marshall O. Exnicios, Maj. and Mrs. Thomas J. Johnson, Mrs. Ambrose Preece, Miss Madeline Aleshire, Miss Nancy P. Hanna, Miss Anna F. Hedrick, Misses Elizabeth and Nancy Jackson, Miss Harriet Kincheloe, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Mr. Samuel Ross, Mr. S. Joe Henry, Mr. Melvin Hazen, Mr. Quinten Comer, Mr. Ray Norton and Mr. George Plummer.

Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson, of Goshen, Ind., passed the week-end with their daughter, Miss Jane Richardson, who is attending Martha Washington seminary. The Misses Moses, Story and Linton, classmates of Miss Richardson, were entertained at dinner and theater Saturday.

Mrs. George G. Edmonds, 1900 S street, will entertain a party of six at tea today in the garden of the Mayflower hotel for her daughter, Miss Polly Edmonds.

Washington Descendants Invited

Representatives of three interesting branches of the Washington family will be among guests of the George Washington university in honoring the birthday of their great kinsman, when the "Evening of Music at Mount Vernon" is given in the University gymnasium for the benefit of the University hospital.

Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard,, whose sister is the wife of Bishop Tucker, of Virginia, and now counts among her sons two bishops of a later generation; the one the Rt. Rev. St. George Tucker, former missionary bishop to Japan, and now of the faculty of the Virginia Theological seminary, and the other the Rt. Rev. F. Beverley Tucker, winner of a Rhodes scholarship in his student days, and a man of great force and influence. A third son in the Episcopal ministry is the Rev. Bland Tucker, Bishop and Mrs. Tucker have thirteen living children.

Dean Edith Souther Tufts and Dean Frances Knapp, of Wellesley college, will be guests in whose honor the Wellesley club will entertain at a buffet supper at 6 o'clock February 24 at the Women's City club. An effort is being made to reach Wellesley women in Maryland and Virginia nearby, as well as in the District of Columbia, and all alumnae and present or former members of the faculty who are in Washington for the National Education association meetings, are invited. Miss Tufts, who is dean of residence, and Miss Knapp, dean of freshmen, will be here for the conference of deans.

Mrs. Julian Howell, president of the Wellesley club, has appointed Mrs. Arthur Field chairman of the committee on arrangements. Mrs. Ernest Knaebel and Mrs. Lyman Swormstedt will assist her.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Heiner, of Kittanning, Pa., have been passing a few days here. They were entertained by their many friends. They came specially to attend the reception at the White House Thursday evening.

Dr. Stephen A. Yesko entertained in honor of Lieut. and Mrs. Paul A. Brickey Wednesday evening at his

BOOKKEEPERS' WEEK

PEN POINT EXAGGERATED

Every Bookkeeper Knows

the value to him of a perfect pen that enables him to write words and figures with faultless regularity.

Waterman's Bookkeepers' Special

is so made that it serves bookkeepers efficiently. Although made with a fair sized point it is so ground that the writing edge is knife-like in sharpness and yet moves over paper with ease and rapidity, never catching or scratching.

The flow of ink is perfectly controlled so that hair lines or light shading may be had at will. No extra checking pen is necessary when a Waterman's bookkeepers' point is used. Hairline check marks will not blot.

Pen-points are solid 14-carat gold tipped with the finest iridium mined. We recommend Waterman's 018s4 holder with a bookkeepers' point to all expert bookkeepers and those who would be.

CONGRESS, AWAITING TAX REPORT, TO TAKE UP SUPPLY BILLS

Public Buildings Measure, Carrying $165,000,000, First Before House.

SENATE TO CONSIDER DEPARTMENT FUNDS

Truce, Declared Two Months Ago Between Major Parties, Now at an End.

(By the Associated Press.)

While conferees are seeking to iron out differences between the Senate and House on the tax bill, Congress will devote the major part of its time this week to consideration of appropriation bills carrying huge sums.

The House will take up the $165,000,000 public buildings bill, which it passed last session, but which died in the Senate. The measure will be debated under a rule which requires a two-thirds vote for passage and limits debate to 40 minutes.

At the same time, the Senate will have before it the first of the ten annual supply bills, that appropriating funds for the Treasury and Post Office Departments. After that is out of the way, the first deficiency bill of this session will be considered.

Before taking up the Treasury and Postoffice measure, the Senate will devote two hours to its calendar, on which more than 150 measures are listed. The great majority of these are bridge and private claims bills, but included among them are the measures approving debt funding agreements with Italy, Belgium and three other foreign governments.

Tomorrow the House expects to pass the War Department appropriation bill and the measure appropriating $3,186,000 for government participation in the sesquicentennial celebration at Philadelphia. Thereafter it will give its time to the independent officers' appropriation measure.

With the tax bill in conference, the two months' truce between the Republicans and Democrats is at an end. Leaders on both sides will turn their attention to the congressional elections this fall and their job now will be to write the record on which the two parties will ask for control of the next Congress.

With the session now more than two months old, Congress is uncommonly far behind in its work, due to the long fights over the world court and the tax reduction bills. As a result only a very few meaures have been finally approved.

The House is far ahead of the Senate, having disposed of a number of appropriation bills, but it still has to battle with a number of pressing problems, including farm relief. The Senate has all of the appropriation bills yet to consider, as well as Muscle Shoals, farm relief, railroad legislation and other subjects of only little less importance.

apartments, 2100 Massachusetts avenue northwest. Lieut. Brickey, an officer of the army medical corps, has been ordered to duty at Carlisle barracks, Pa. Among the guests were Miss Ruth Haines, Miss Jo Umbeck, Miss Ethel M. Watts, Miss Violet Ledig, Senor Don Alfredo Lozano, of the Colombian legation; Senor Don Mario F. Sanchez, Dr. C. L. Quaintance and Burke Walsh.

Old Time Fiddler to Play.

Old-time dances, the Virginia reel, lanciers and others, will be played by Col. C. M. "Cash" Radford, 78-year-old civil war veteran and champion fiddler of New Hampshire, at the annual reception and ball of the New Hampshire association at the Willard hotel tonight.

Miss Marion Waldron, who bears the title of "Miss New Hampshire," as the beauty champion of that State, will attend. She was given a reception by members of the Elks' lodge of New Hampshire. They arranged for her trip to the Capital. Elks here are also planning to fete her.

In addition to members of Congress from New Hampshire, the guests also will include Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone, of the United States Supreme Court, and Mrs. Stone; Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, Maj. Gen. Harry Taylor, chief of United States engineers; Dr. E. O. Crossman, medical director of the veterans' bureau; Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican floor leader; Mr. T. O. Marvin, chairman of the United States tariff commission; Mr. Frank Hight, Mr. Rudolph Kauffmann and Commander Asaph Hall, naval astronomer. Mr. John H. Bartlett, First Assistant Postmaster General, is president of the association.

Mrs. Charles Hoyle gave a reception yesterday to Miss Violet Gratz Brown, who is now a guest of Miss Elizabeth Hammond, of 2221 Kalorama road.

Mr. J. W. O'Leary, of Chicago, has arrived at the Willard hotel where he will remain during the week. Mr. O'Leary is president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Janet Richards returned yesterday from a lecture trip to Philadelphia, New York and Boston. In her weekly review of Public Questions, Home and Foreign, at the Masonic Temple, Thirteenth and New York avenue, at 10:45 this morning, Miss Richards will touch upon the high lights in the world's work for the past week, including the terms of settlement of the coal strike, more about old England, with some comment on Mussolini's latest eruption concerning the Austrian Tyrol.

Harold Lloyd Sued For Play "Piracy"

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Owen Davis, playwright, filed suit yesterday in the supreme court for $250,000 damages against Harold Lloyd, film comedian, and his associates in the motion picture business. Davis alleges that Lloyd pirated his play "The Nervous Wreck" and made it into a movie called "Why Worry?"

OUTBREAK IN TYROL BELIEVED REMOTE; ITALIANS PREPARED

Landscape Along Frontier of Brenner Pass Bristles With Fortifications.

PEOPLE NOT UNHAPPY; SOME OPPRESSION SEEN

Austrians Still Believe Rome Will Attempt to Extend Her Territory.

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Vienna, Feb. 14.—The political ramifications of the South Tyrol controversy are quite capable of springing any number of surprises in central Europe in the next few months, though at this time it appears unlikely that they will soon create the wide disturbances the German and Austrian alarmists seem to believe.

Nevertheless, the fact is incontrovertible that a large section of eastern Europe, and perhaps even portions of western Europe, are beginning to regard the aggressive dictator in the "Eternal City" with disfavor, especially Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Turkey, Africa and a few other places.

While the Austrian fears that Italy is planning to march up to Brenner Pass right away and capture Innesbruck are already dying down, after Premier Mussolini's calmer tone was adopted in his second Tyrol speech, the incident has left a general feeling of nervousness all along the frontier. A considerable portion of well-informed political observers in Austria are firmly convinced that the Italians will move up the line before the year is out.

Little Resistance Seen.

They point out the fact that there would be practically no resistance, either from Austria or Germany, and still further they believe the League of Nations would not be able to put up effective interference, since the greater powers would be almost certain to be reluctant to embrace Austria's cause if the affair became a government ultimatum.

The writer is unable to determine from the theories propounded by the pan-German Tyrolese just how, why and where the much-discussed possibility of the invasion of Innesbruck would affect conditions in South Tyrol. The Tyrolese would remain German unless they were Italianized by the shifting line beyond Brenner. That is where the whole controversy begins to disintegrate, as far as the Tyrolese are concerned, for they are not satisfied to concentrate their efforts on a legal solution of their proper troubles as a minority, but are apparently more eager and more concerned with rallying to the defense of Germany and Austria against a hypothetical invasion.

Changes Over the Border.

One can not help seeing many striking changes in the aspects the moment the traveler crosses the frontier from Austria into Italy.

On the Austrian side nothing martial is in sight, there are practically no police, and it is considered unsafe for any sort of military spirit to be shown either in official or unofficial organizations.

Then one comes to Italy. On every side a few hundred yards before the train enters the town of Brenner Italian soldiers, armed with rifles, meet the train on both sides of the track. The lower landscape fairly bristles with soldiers. The train is subject to military inspection.

Officers and men of the regular army are to be seen clambering all over the cars, searching the baggage of the passengers. The inspection is stricter than in any other country, except Turkey.

Still further on the cities of Bozen and Trente are so filled with officers and soldiers they look like nothing except garrison towns or actively "occupied" territory.

A visit to Tyrol gives these general impressions: First, that the Tyrolese are not very unhappy, even if they are somewhat oppressed, and that Italy is carrying its policy of preparedness about as far as it has ever been carried anywhere in Europe before.

attributed to him in dispatches from Cairo. He said that for some time negotiations had been under way in connection with such a project, but that no decision had as yet been reached.

"Mr. Rockefeller learned that Egypt's wealth and ancient monuments and marvelous antiquities inherited by the modern descendants of the world's oldest civilization has increased beyond the capacity of the present Cairo museum and the ability of its able staff to handle it. In offering to establish a research institute in its own building in conjunction with a new and imposing museum, Mr. Rockefeller feels that facilities would be afforded not only to scholars from the whole world for pursuing careful investigations leading to fuller knowledge of the history of civilization, but also to all young Egyptians desirous of receiving the best scientific training as historians of their own extraordinary land.

"Above all, the donor seeks to express by this offer international amity and the friendliness and respect felt by America, the newest land of the West, towards Egypt, the oldest land of the East and the oldest land of history."

Prof. Breasted explains that the keynote of the gift is complete cooperation with the already existent and highly efficient organization of which Prof. Pierre Lacau is director general.

"SILK" means SILK in Washington

The majority of merchants are willing and anxious to cooperate with the Better Business Bureau to place advertising above reproach—to make it so reliable and understandable that inexperienced purchasers can tell at a glance what to expect.

There are many fabrics now made in part or wholly of wood-fiber or cotton cellulose which are very meritorious, and have the appearance of silk. These fabrics are now known as "rayon"—formerly advertised under various headings such as art silk, fiber silk, artificial silk and other names involving the use of the well-known trade term—silk. Although somewhat similar in appearance, rayon and silk are two distinct fabrics. Realizing this, Washington merchants are careful to advertise these two fabrics by their correct names—to make their copy a model of truth.

The Bureau is trying to accomplish one big thing at a time, and to progress step by step. We gratefully acknowledge the almost universal cooperation in the matter of fabric names. Read advertising with this in mind, and be convinced that the advertiser is truly interested in improving advertising, with your welfare in view.

The publication of this announcement in these columns is evidence that this newspaper cooperates with and supports The Better Business Bureau.

DEFYING MINE FIRE, RESCUERS REMOVE 15 VICTIMS' BODIES

Final, Desperate Dash After Battle of Eleven Days Is Successful.

REMAINS UNDER DEBRIS FOLLOWING EXPLOSION

Blast Occurred Just After 700 Men on Day Force Had Left Workings.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 14 (By A. P.). After a battle of eleven days with fire and poisonous gases in the south entry of the Horning mine, the bodies of fourteen of the twenty men who lost their lives in the disaster of February 3 were today brought to the surface and tonight were reposing at home among mourning wives, children and other relatives.

The bodies found today were lying close together, partly covered by debris. Rescue crews extricated them from under pieces of coal and bits of shattered mine cars.

The body of John Geth, jr., remains in the depths of the mine. The body of his father, John Geth, sr., was among those taken out today. The search for the remains of the younger Geth was continued.

Names of the Victims.

The names of the men whose bodies were recovered today: Howard M. Ernst, 42, general superintendent, survived by wife; George Travis, 36, superintendent, wife; Lawrence Loadman, 38, foreman, wife; Harry Melani, 34, motorman, wife; George Dennard, 42, assistant foreman, wife, two children; John Polinsky, 45, cutter, wife, six children; Andrew Berlage, 38, scraper, wife, four children; John Geth, sr., 53, bricklayer, wife; John Petrovich, 45, cutter, wife, six children; Paul Apostole, 28, track layer, single; William Holtzhauser, 44, motorman, wife, four children; Mike Lucas, 30, loader, single; Thomas Piccolo, 29, track layer, wife, one child; John Luznar, 32, wife.

The men whose bodies were previously removed are Reese T. Bradburn, Louis Kristan, Arthur Wells, Andrew Smith, Tony Hern.

Two men, Edward Travis, brother of George Travis, who perished, and Louis Powell, were in the mine at the time of the blast but escaped unhurt.

Late yesterday a picked rescue team made a final dash into the mine. The men were equipped with oxygen tanks and did not desist until the bodies had been reached.

One by one the bodies were carried from the south entry to the shaft. They were then wrapped in canvas and taken to the surface where a temporary morgue, in charge of the Allegheny county coroner and several deputies, had been established. Later the bodies were taken in ambulances to Castle Shannon, nearby, where formal identification was made by relatives and friends. In almost every case identification was made by means of personal effects. Funeral arrangements will be made later.

The men were trapped in Horning mine following an explosion late on the afternoon of February 3, just after the day force of between 700 and 800 miners had left the workings. Those entombed had remained behind to fight a small fire and were being directed by General Superintendent Ernst and Superintendent Travis. Other mine officials had been in the workings a short time previous.

Dilly Hill School Destroyed.

Heathsville, Va., Feb. 14.—Dilly Hill school was destroyed by fire Thursday while the school was in session. The fire originated in the roof. Only a small amount of furniture was saved. The loss was about $3,000, with insurance $1,500.

OPERA STAR AT 19

MARION TALLEY.

GIRL OPERA SINGER TO REMAIN PLUMP

Cannot Risk Strength for Stylish Figure, Marion Talley, 19, Says.

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Sunday was a busy day for Marion Talley, Kansas City girl soprano, who will make her debut in the Metropolitan Opera house next Wednesday night. She took her usual lesson in the studio of Salvatore Avitabile, her teacher, and practiced for five hours her role as Gilda in "Rigoletto."

The 19-year-old girl expressed her hope of being "in good voice" Wednesday night so that she would please the 200 Kansas City visitors who are coming to hear her debut and also the other Kansas City folks who spent $25,000 on her musical education.

Very seriously, Miss Talley discussed her prospects in an interview today. Her figure is still plump, and she explained shyly:

"I can't strive for a stylish figure, because I wouldn't be able to sing well if I didn't keep strong."

Women Candidates For Mayor in 3 Cities

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Three Washington cities soon will vote on whether they are to have women mayors.

The trio includes Seattle and Tacoma, the two largest municipalities in the State. They will ballot February 23 on women mayoralty candidates for the first time in history.

Mrs. Henry Landes, president of the Seattle city council, seeks the first office of the city, while in Tacoma, the Rev. Anna J. Meyer, national president of the Spiritual Science Church in America, is a mayoralty candidate. Bothell, Wash., is the third city to have a woman candidate, Mrs. L. A. Hardee.

Westphalia's Crew Will Receive Medals

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Awards of gold and bronze medals and cash to Capt. Carl Graalfs, commander of the German liner Westphalia, and his men, who rescued the crew of the sinking Dutch freighter Alkaid, were announced yesterday by the Life Saving Benevolent Association of New York.

Capt. Graalfs and J. Retterberg, second officer, who commanded the lifeboat in the rescue, were each awarded a gold medal. Members of the rescuing crew will be awarded $50 each and a bronze medal. The awards will be presented March 15 when the vessel returns here from Hamburg.

STORIES OF SCANDAL BLAMED ON SCHOOLS

Discipline Slack or Else Improperly Organized, Says Dr. Morrison.

Chicago, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—It is the fault of the school itself rather than the pupils if school scandal stories get into the newspapers, in the opinion of Prof. Henry C. Morrison of the school of education of the University of Chicago. His analysis of present methods of teaching in American schools will soon be published by the University of Chicago Press.

"Every year we are treated to scandals which bring some school or college into entirely undesirable publicity," says Prof. Morrison. "With rare exception, the causation lying back of the incident is a period, longer or shorter, of neglect of school morale or of operation under the delusion of automatic control.

"Either the school has become slack or else it has not been systematically organized to care for this major element in its life. In the end, publicity is deprecated because it 'injures the good name of alma mater.' If alma mater had looked after her character, her reputation would have taken care of itself."

PARIS DEPUTIES VOTE DOWN ALCOHOL TAX

Increase Refused on Ground That High Price Might Cause Dryness.

Paris, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—The chamber of deputies sat today, both morning and afternoon, but adjourned without reaching a decisive vote on the financial measures. Premier Briand apparently was not willing to hold a night session, desiring more time before the final votes are taken.

The situation is regarded in the lobbies as little changed from yesterday, but there is an impression of optimism with regard to the cabinet's ability to maintain itself.

The government was unable today to persuade the chamber to accept several proposed increases in direct taxation. It was, for instance, willing to double the salt tax. This tax has not been changed since 1848, and it was estimated the increase would yield 35,000,000 francs, but the house rejected the proposal, 390 to 170.

The government was willing also to increase the tax on alcohol 100 francs per hectolitre, but M. Barthe's motion to disjoin this article from the measures was accepted, 303 to 113. He said the country had no wish to be made dry through prices being raised too high.

An increase in the stamp tax on bourse operations was accepted, 335 to 212, and is expected to yield 100,000,000 francs.

MOLLIE

By EUSTACE HALE BALL

(Copyright, 1926, Thompson Feature Service, Inc.)

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Mollie, a country girl, is employed by a firm of mining stock operators headed by Ben Corliss who has made her his private secretary. Corliss uses Mollie's beauty, much against her will, to entice men to buy stock in the firm. One of these is Weldon, the millionaire, who tells Mollie at tea that he does not trust any one in the firm except Sanford, the mining expert, who also has little faith in Corliss and his associate Blythe. However, he knows the ropes and advises Mollie with whom he is already falling in love to buy some stock. Corliss, noting the growing intimacy between Mollie and Sanford, orders him West on an inspection tour. Instead of leaving, however, he remains and watches Corliss' movements. That evening he summons Gladys Goodson, the office stenographer, to do some work for him. She tells him that Corliss has taken Mollie out to dinner. Gladys takes him to the place where they are dining. Sanford, whose faith in Mollie is now shaken, asks Gladys to keep him posted on office affairs, and promises ample reward. One day when Corliss is unable to meet a payment on stock he has bought for delivery, Mollie comes to his rescue with the balance. Elated over this he arranges a party and Blythe who is also interested in Mollie asks her to go with him without Corliss' knowledge. At Mollie's home he encounters her coming out with Carver, a rich man to whom she has told stock. Carver is so disagreeable in the taxi that Mollie returns home followed by Carver and a policeman who has a robbery complaint against her. Mrs. Gregg, the landlady, comes to Mollie's rescue and the policeman makes Carver drop the charges. Next morning after Blythe had lied to Corliss that Mollie had been arrested by Carver for selling fake mining stock, Carver appears at the office inquiring for her. Corliss orders him out of the office. Then a Federal agent appears to demand the original engineer's report on the mine. To his consternation Corliss finds it is gone from the safe.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Whirlwind.

BEN CORLISS turned back from window to face Mollie Mayhew.

"I don't know what to say to you, young lady. After what you did for us, it's tougher on you more than any one else. You've been a little brick through everything, and now just as though it seemed as if we could have pulled through the whole thing goes bluey. It's the work of that old scamp, Pop Carver."

Mollie's pretty face was trembling, so nervous was she.

"But, isn't that stock good?" she asked. "It seems to me he'll come out of it all right. I didn't compel him to buy, nor you his wife, did you?"

"Certainly not. But they're the kind of people who squawk the first and loudest. Let me see, I wonder how we can get hold of Sanford. I was a fool to send him on that trip," and Corliss smiled bitterly. "That's what a fellow gets occasionally, for thinking he's smarter than the other man."

"Why don't you telephone to the Engineer's club, to inquire if Mr. Sanford left word there as to where he might be found—perhaps he might have stopped off somewhere on his trip. You know he usually stops there instead of going to a hotel," was Mollie's sudden suggestion.

"Good idea," and Corliss soon had the number. A curious look came over his face, as his inquiry was answered at the other end. He turned toward Mollie with a startled expression.

"What made you think of that?" he asked sharply, as he seemed to be waiting for some one on the wire. "If it is intuition, you are a wonder, if it's not * * * "

He turned quickly toward the transmitter again. His voice was snappy once more.

"That you, Sterling Sanford? Just got in town again, did you? Well, if you have any respect for that mine hop down here to the Mammoth office as fast as two taxicabs will bring you. And bring any copies you have of your report. Yes, this is Ben Corliss talking. Rush it, old man, for the love of Mike."

The astonishment in Mollie's big eyes was too genuine to be acting, as Corliss stared at her.

"Well, isn't that strange?" she murmured.

"It is strangely beautiful," her employer said. "Now, let our little government investigator come in. I wonder if Sanford ever left the city. He's a shrewd bird at that, but he won't want to get his name mixed up in any scandal, more than we do. He'll come all right."

"If you don't mind, Mr. Corliss, I'd rather not be in the office when he does," she said in a low voice.

"Humm. Well, I'm willing for you to be out. He won't be here for fifteen minutes, and he won't need to stay more than half an hour. Take a walk and go window shopping for about an hour."

Mollie put on her hat and street coat, and was just stepping into the elevator when the tall man with the soft black hat touched her arm respectfully, yet firmly.

"Excuse me, young lady, but I would like to have a little chat with you. Out here is better than in the office, at that, and you'll have to answer some questions before you go anywhere," he told her.

Mollie raised her long lashes in alarm. She had realized that she was under surveillance, but now she espied another tall man with that same official assurance which seems to develop with police and detective work.

"Yes, we're watching everybody in that place. No books or records will be taken out of it unless we know just how things stand," said the big man. "You know when people start to use Uncle Sam's mail for advertising and selling they've got to be mighty sure of what kind of violets they're offering."

Mollie looked nervously at the elevator doors. Sterling Sanford might arrive at any minute, and most surely she did not want to see him again.

"Expecting another kicker?" inquired the Federal operative.

"No," she retorted, a bit indignant now. "I know about those securities. I bought them myself, and it was on very good advice. The company did not even know I owned them. I sold them to the degraded old Pop Carver, who complained about them, to use the money to help some one who needed it. I even sold all but two of my best dresses in order to help that same person."

The big man was whistling softly. There was charm but not deceit in this girl's eyes. There was a certain appeal in her earnestness that was neither as theatrical or as bold as in the hundreds connected with mail frauds whom he had met in his work of years.

"Then why haven't they the sworn statement that would prove from government records and the mining engineers that the property is on the level?"

Mollie shook her head, nervously looking toward the elevator.

"I don't know. But I do know that I wish you would be polite to talk to me around the curve of this corridor. There's some one coming here any minute who for purely personal reasons I don't want to meet just now and here. I was leaving the office to avoid seeing him."

The big man saw the flush on the girl's cheeks and the tremble of her red lips. He saw a tiny little tear beginning to trickle from the wistful lashes.

"Oh, ho?" and he scratched that big square jaw, with a little twinkle in his eye. "Just a little matter of romance entering into the plot, eh?"

Mollie's eyes snapped as she replied:

"Just too many little matters of romance; that's the trouble. Why can't they let me alone? I came here from a little river town up State to work my hardest. And the hardest things seems to be to even work."

"Little lady," laughed the Federal man, "you said one of the great truths about any pretty country girl coming to the city. But they're not all bad, not by any means. You just ran into a bunch where you don't belong * * * look out, where you are going?"

Mollie Mayhew's trim little feet were pattering a swift retreat from the nearest of the elevator doors and her dainty figure had disappeared around an angle in the corridor almost before the big man knew what had happened. He was after her, with a more leisurely gait, for he knew there were no stairs or elevators in that corner of the building. It had been his official task to learn the geography of this building that morning in the real estate company's office. Behind him, now, turning sharply toward the front of the corridor and hurrying into the offices of the Mammoth Mining Properties, Inc., was an angular, fast-walking and determined looking young man, swinging a heavy brief case and a heavier looking valise.

The sleuth's fellow operator jerked his thumb at the door, very significantly as though to ask: "Shall I follow him?" The other shook his head, indicated that the other was merely to maintain his lookout and say nothing. Then he followed on to where terrified Mollie Mayhew was standing almost concealed in a corner.

"It's some one I never want to see again," she was beginning to lose control of the little tear drops. "But he is the most important individual in all the world for us just now."

"Do you mean to say that's Sterling Sanford?" gasped the big man. "I thought he had ducked the game entirely, leaving the wolves in the trap."

"He's not the kind to run away," and now Mollie's tone betrayed her.

"Well, Miss, he's got a white reputation, which is more than any of the other men in this layout have. That's why we were so quick to nab them on a complaint * * * first chance we've had in ten years. How'd he get mixed in with them? I think I've been made a fool out of by some one at that. I never did like that old man Carver!"

Mollie looked up with that thrilling little smile of hers, forgetting her terror and tears of a few seconds back.

The big Federal man looked as angry as a schoolboy who has just been made the victim of a practical joke. And he didn't like old Pop Carver.

"For the first time since we've been talking we agree," said Mollie with a little giggle. "I hate him and I think you and your large angry looking business partner ought to be leading Pop Carver down to the lock-up, with a club in each spare hand."

Mollie's little giggle and the smile in her eyes were usually irresistible. This was no exception to the rule.

"Tell me about him now?" he asked. "Just what did that old buzzard do and how, and why?"

"Well, I guess I'm the 'why,' in part. Maybe you can guess that part of it, from what they say his reputation is with girls," and she flushed sweetly. The big sleuth blushed, as well. He nodded his head wisely. Mollie went on.

"That dear old granddaddy wanted to be not only my benefactor but to get a good bargain in mining stock."

"You think it's good, and you're the little baby doll of this layout. Who told you so, Blythe or Murdock or Corliss?" demanded the agent.

"No, Sterling Sanford. And it was he who bought the stock for me at a bargain, with some money of my own," was the surprising reply. And then with mischief in her eyes she added: "You've been so polite to me that I'll reward you the way real millionaires do. I'm just the opposite, but I have quit. The reward is a little financial tip * * * buy all the Mammoth stock you can get your hands on. Your grandchildren will live to put orchids—not common, cheap things like roses—on my grave."

The big man blinked.

"Well, I'm eternally * * * " he paused and grinned, "or at any rate I've been told so by several good persons who ought to know * * * But what's this game and why are these sharpshooters in it, if it's so good?"

Mollie shook her head.

"I'm not being examined before a judge and jury, and I have no lawyer to protect my rights. It's a secret, a business secret. It's your business to uncover secrets, isn't it?"

"You may come from the country, little lady," laughed the big man. "But you'll stay here a long time, I think, except when you ride back in your automobile to visit the home folks. Now, I'll be walking back into that office, and see what Sterling Sanford's got to say. My aid-de-camp over there can keep his eye on you, until I have been in there just five minutes. Then you take my advice and walk back into the private office. But watch your words and your step. I thought I had this all doped out. Now I'm up a tree. And I don't lose my cases, either."

The snapping of his set jaw was rather convincing proof that he didn't either.

With a brief word of instruction to his assistant, he entered the door. Mollie walked up and down the corridor, her nerves tense, once more. That five minutes seemed like so many centuries. She felt five centuries older, too, as she walked into the outer office, to face the curious stares of the clerks and stenographers.

Just as she entered the private office she saw Sterling Sanford putting a number of documents back into his brief case, and packing some little bottles containing sandy colored dust into the grip.

Ben Corliss, standing by his own desk, his face white as chalk, was clenching and unclenching his fingers over a little bronze buffalo which he was accustomed to use as a paper weight.

The big man, with a curious smile on his face, was watching the two men. Sterling Sanford seemed absolutely sphinxlike, but the features of Corliss were twisting like a mad man.

"Well, gents," said the Federal operator. "I'll take Mr. Sanford's advice about the rest of this matter. Those documents prove all I wanted to know for the present. You can go on advertising, and I wish you all luck. Everything looks O. K."

"Oh, no it doesn't," and Corliss had entwined his fingers about the little bronze buffalo. Mollie saw it coming, but she could not utter a sound of warning. "It's been an attempt to give me the K. O. but I'm the 'K. O. Kid' myself. And here goes the first one down."

With feline swiftness his right arm straightened out, as he threw the paper weight at Sterling Sanford's head. The Westerner plunged forward, as a spurt of red seemed to veritably leap from his temple!

Feminine Workers Popular in Dairies

London, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—British dairy farmers especially welcome women as helpers because, they say, it has been proved that women are better adapted to dairying than men.

In the country devoted to the milk industry a great many more women are now employed than men.

Demand for the new land girl has doubled in less than a year and the Women's Farm and Garden association is having difficulty keeping up with requests of farmers for this class of workers.

MENDELSSOHN'S GEM HAD NAME ALTERED

"Spring Song" Originally Was Known as "Camberwell Green."

London, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—It is news to many music lovers to learn through Musical Opinion that Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" originally was called "Camberwell Green."

The journal says Mendelssohn visited England in 1847 and stayed at Denmark hill with his wife's relatives. A drive to Windsor had been arranged but Mendelssohn pleaded ill health and elected to stay at home with the children.

He went to the piano and began to think. The children resented this breach and when he began searching for a chord, pulled his hands from the keyboard.

The composer had to play some notes as best he could which gave a particular character to the music and led to the introduction of the hurried triplets in the legato melody. He named the composition "Camberwell Green," but later changed it to "Spring Song."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

WARRING ON RATS.

RATS are important from the standpoint of human health, as well as for other reasons. Plague is spread by rats, and a little plague has been smoldering in this country for a quarter of a century. They carry tapeworms and other forms of worms which infest man. They are responsible for rat bite fever, a disease of man which is not always recognized. It is claimed that rats spread one form of infectious jaundice. That is enough from the human standpoint.

Rats are charged with causing several diseases of lower animals. In addition, they spread many of the several kinds of fleas which pester, irritate, and even endanger man and animals.

Hovell, in his eminently practical treatise on rats, writes of the harm done by these pesky rodents through disturbing the sleep of horses and maybe cows. He says horses are kept awake by rats running around them and moving about in their bedding, and in that way are made inefficient.

The cost of rats, by reason of their consumption and spoilage of foods, is estimated as close to a billion dollars per year. The general tendency of the various rat commissions has been to report that rats can not be controlled. They are too brainy and they breed too fast for their human enemies. The only measure of control which gets anywhere, according to these reports, is decreasing the available stock of rat foods. If the rat food supply is small the number of rats will be small. Conversely, much rat food means many rats quite regardless of the general methods of rat control.

With this opinion Hovell does not agree. He says: "Rats are not brainier than human beings; they only appear to be so. Men are thinking about other business and only give casual or unintelligent thought to rat control. In a contest between brainy rats and dumbbell people, of course rats win.

"Man conquers whenever he trains himself to think like a rat and then applies his thought and energy to the battle."

We have seen the same line of reasoning applied to mosquito control. No man is worth anything as a mosquito fighter until he learns how to think like a mosquito.

Hovell contends that it is not difficult to understand the mind of the rat. A fair amount of study and observation and a man knows the limited number of decisions a rat can make and what decides him in each. After that the victory is easy, provided the man does a little thinking and is duly diligent.

TUBERCULOSIS INFECTION.

Anxious writes: A father had consumption four years ago. Seems to be cured. The mother was recently found to have consumption. It is thought she has had it for three years. She has been sent to a resort. There are five children. They have been exposed to the disease by both parents for several years.

Some friends are willing to take these children into their homes, but they are afraid to do so for fear the children are infected and will infect their children.

What is the danger?

REPLY.

In all probability the five children are now infected and some of them will eventually develop consumption.

But danger in taking them into homes can be guarded against. First, the children should be closely examined for evidence of active tuberculosis. The probability is that if tuberculosis be found it will be latent. If any of the children are found to be actively tuberculosis, such cases should be put into an institution for tuberculosis children.

The others can be safely taken into private homes provided they will be fed well, given good air and sunlight and are examined, say, once a year.

GUM CAUSES HUNGER.

H. P. writes:

1. I am on a diet and at times I feel very hungry. In order to lose that hunger I chew gum. Is that a bad substitute?

2. Do acids, such as grapefruit and oranges, help to reduce?

REPLY.

1. There is no harm in chewing gum except that it makes you hungry.

2. No.

Detachable Skirts Are Worn As Capes

London, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Detachable overskirts which may be used as capes are among the spring novelties modistes are offering to their customers. The fashion is an adaptation of a Parisian mode, and dressmakers believe it will be popular for early spring and fall gowns. The cape is formed and draped in such a manner that it can be buttoned or hooked about the waist when the wearer does not require it as a wrap.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Punch and Judy

PUNCH AND JUDY seldom act before the public now, but they were once common sights at carnivals and street shows. The little dolls—a hump-backed man and his wife—have been watched by thousands of crowds during the past few centuries.

The earliest records of Punch and Judy prove that puppet (or doll) shows were given in Naples 300 years ago. The idea was taken up in France—a dentist being the first man to put on such a show in that country.

In 1666, an Italian took Punch and Judy to England and made them act before a crowd on one of the chief streets of London. After that, the dolls becamee popular all over England.

The old-time Punch was a quarrelsome fellow, and his wife was hardly better. The pair let the people see that they did not get along together. They banged each other with sticks and knocked each other down.

To hold the interest of the public,

Punch and Judy in London 85 Years Ago.

the showmen put other figures before the public. In England, Punch was shown with a pet dog named Toby. In France he had a pet cat instead. Punch used to fight with the police when they came to arrest him, and would often "knock them for a goal."

Perhaps the most famous showman who handled Punch and Judy was Robert Powell. At Bath, the English seaport, he gave a show at the same time that a play was being given on the stage. More people came to watch Powell than went to the theater. In the course of the show at Bath, Powell made Punch and Judy give a dance while on board Noah's ark "during the flood." He also set Punch on the back of the dragon which St. George was going to slay.

Three years later, in 1712, brought a "trained pig" into the show. This pig danced a minuet with Punch. Robin Hood was also brought into the puppet show, as well as Dick Whittington and Mother Goose.

Punch and Judy have gone out of fashion, but the "marionette shows," which we may see on a real stage, have the same general idea. Not so long ago I watched a marionette show behind the scenes. It was very interesting to see the strings being pulled and to watch the men and women who spoke the lines which the dolls were supposed to speak.

Q. Will you please tell me the most generally accepted Seven Wonders of the World?

AGNES POWELL.

A. The Seven Wonders, as outlined in ancient times, were: The Pyramids of Egypt, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, the Colossus of Rhodes, the Statue of Zeus at Olympia, the Lighthouse of Alexandria, the Temple of Diana at Ephesus and the Mausoleum at Helicarnassus. Lists have been made of the Modern Wonders of the World. Of course, no one can say which is most wonderful of present-day things, but a list of seven modern wonders might include the telephone, the radio, the X-ray machine, the airplane, the ocean liner, the phonograph and the electric light.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES M'DONALD

These Bored Romeos

MY dear Miss McDonald: I am in need of advice and am turning to you for help. I read your articles every day, and they sure are good common sense. But I have never read one to fit my case.

I have been married over a year. Before I was married the man who is now my husband would have done anything or gone any place he thought I cared about or even hinted at. Things certainly have changed. Believe me, Miss McDonald, when I tell you I ask nothing unreasonable now. But I have never since I have been married asked him to do one favor, whether to go some place or get something for me that he has done so willingly. I never knew that one could be so grouchy. He never carries on a conversation at home and never has a pleasant word for me. I have tried being agreeable, I have tried being grouchy, I have tried being silent, but none of these will help.

Can't you help me? I came from a home where every one is so pleasant and loves to discuss their affairs into this (I don't know what to call it). Tell me what method to follow and whatever you say I will surely do.

Thanking you, I am, PAULA.

Take up some interest outside of your home at once. Be so absorbed in it that your husband will be merely incidental to it. In other words, put him back into the position from which matrimony lifted him. Before marriage he was one interest in your very pleasant and satisfying life. Now he is your life. You sit about hoping for his favor, pondering his moods. Why should you? Just try being too busy to listen instead of being too eager to talk. It will work wonders—for both of you. You know a man once wrote me asking why the average woman was content to sit around all day waiting for a man to come home and furnish her conversation. He particularly resented his wife's eternal "What happened today?" She had asked it regularly for some ten years and he wondered if he would hear it each night until he died. Of course, some men would love that—and would launch eagerly and zestfully and normally into an account of what had "happened." But this man was not the type who enjoys talking—and he was getting to a point where he really believed he hated his wife. He was a victim of the same trend as a certain man whose sweetheart very foolishly asked him one night whether he loved her. He requested her to please not be so banal.

The girl had loved him for four long years, had overlooked all sorts of faults and shortcomings. But that was the end of her love. And the man to this day cannot understand it. He argues that it was banal for her to ask such a question as he had declared his love in unmistakable fashion. And to him it was "idiotic" for her to put the question. The girl, intelligent enough to be curious, attractive enough to be sought, has put the same question to several men since—for the sole purpose of ascertaining who was at fault and how other men would react to such a situation! And she states that invariably the man was overjoyed and demonstrated considerable enthusiasm in making his answer convincing. Evidently the first man was out of tune with his environment—and not worthy of the concern the girl evinced. So with the husband who resents his wife's interest and evidences no interest in his wife. He is not big enough for the position in which he finds himself. You have such a husband. He will be more agreeable when gracefully, but not pointedly ignored. Just make him secondary. Let something else come first. That is all that he needs. And you need—and need badly—something more than such a man can give. So act promptly. You will get results.

Love Confessions of Famous Men

By JOSEPH KAY.

THE AUGUST SAMUEL JOHNSON'S LOVE.

WHEN Dr. Samuel Johnson lived he was the undisputed monarch of the literary world and his subjects bowed down in awe before the majestic—but burly—form of the king.

This famous man, to whom the

MRS. THRALE.

Encyclopedia Britannica gives no less than nine pages, was not a personality one would associate with romance, but there was one lady who captured his august heart. She was Mrs. Thrale, the widow of a brewer and one of the "salon" women of England.

Dr. Johnson's affection for her was broken when the lady suddenly fell in love with an Italian musician named Gabriel Piozzi and married him. Such behavior was rather characteristic of Mrs. Thrale. Even at the age of 70 she refused to deny herself the grace of an amour and gave her love to a young actor named Conway. Perhaps it was a pointed coincidence that Conway soon after drowned himself.

When Johnson heard of Mrs. Thrale's betrayal of his affections he was greatly shocked and then still more greatly angered. In this mood he sent her this message which, for all its choler, betrays the pleading lover:

"Madam: If I interpret your letter right, you are ignominiously married; if it is as yet undone let us once more talk together. If you have abandoned your children and your religion, God forgive your wickedness; if you have forfeited your fame and your country, may your folly do no further mischief. If the last act is yet to do, who have loved you, esteemed you, reverenced you and served you; I, who long thought you the first of womankind, entreat that, before your fate is irrevocable, I may once more see you.

"I was, I once was, madam, most truly yours.

WINTER'S JEWELRY.

Now winter hems us in with snow and ice
And builds her rugged barriers to play,
Blusters and roars about us through the day,
Fashions in crystal many a strange device,
Festoons of jewels, perfect and precise
To deck the humblest home, as if to say:
"These eaves shall wear my diamonds without pay.
I'll shape a necklace past a monarch's price."
So winter crowns the houses of the poor
And decks with brilliant gems their little eaves,
Hangs a great crest above the narrow door,
Patterns of beauty on each window weaves,
And with the morning all the children stare
Counting with joy the jewels flashing there.

MODISH MITZI

The One-Two-Three Piece Costume

By Jay V. Jay

Now there's the three-piece costume that is becoming increasingly popular. The two-piece dress forms the basis, the coat forms the essential third. Mitzi has one-piece costumes, two-piece costumes and now she is shopping for a very smart three-piece sports costume.

The dress is two-piece. The skirt and blouse are of the same material, only the blouse is combined with a shirt vestee of plain silk. The coat is of the same plaid material with fur collars and cuffs. The lines are straight with a flare at the skirt. The more pieces a costume has, the smarter it is, believes Mitzi.

Polly, too, is an advocate of the three-piece mode. It seems odd that anything so frail and brief as an evening costume should be in parts one, two and three. But this evening dress is one of the two-piece affairs—very fluffy skirt, tight-fitting blouse with a bodice effect.

And then, over the dress, there is a cape of tiers of frills starting from a round yoke. It is the same color and decorated with the same trimming as the dress. Polly doesn't care how many pieces there are to an ensemble costume if the effect is as smart as this. The more the smarter!

NO TRADE REACTION IS IN SIGHT, DESPITE YEAR'S SLOW START

Coal Peace Is Outstanding Constructive Development of Past Week.

NEW STEEL BUSINESS SHOWS FEBRUARY GAIN

Heavy Calling of Bank Loans Called Wholesome Act to Aid Commerce.

New York, Feb. 14 (By the Associated Press).—Trade currents were confused last week by unsettling reports from industries whose operations usually reflect most accurately the trend of current business. No fundamental weakness was apparent, however, and business circles refused to concede that any trade reaction was in prospect simply because the new year had got off to a slow start.

Restoration of peace in the anthracite industry, ending the longest and costliest coal strike in history, was the outstanding constructive development of the week. Because of the generally stable condition of business the suspension of mining had little serious effect outside the coal region, but it was approaching the point where its prolongation would have been fraught with grave dangers. The settlement was welcomed by all business interests, particularly the railroads which were suffering from a loss of coal traffic.

U. S. Steel Orders Drop.

The first decline in unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation since last August aroused misgivings in some quarters, where it was feared that the report signalized the beginning of a downward trend in the industry. It was recognized that in recent years wherever declines in unfilled orders have set in they have usually continued for a stretch of several months and that corporation cycles have developed when orders were increasing.

New business so far in February shows improvement over January, the weekly reviews reported, but last week brought a slight abatement of activity in the steel industry on the whole. Experts attributed the loss of January tonnage to the slack demand in the first fifteen days of the month, but found that buying thereafter picked up and that specifications against contracts were rather urgent. Reports to the steel companies were said to show that steel was going directly into consumption and not accumulating.

One of the most wholesome developments of the week cited by bankers was the heavy calling of bank loans. Despite a tendency to attribute this reduction to the "trimming" of loan accounts inspired by the unexpectedly large total of brokers' loans reported by the New York Stock Exchange at the and of January, recognized banking authorities asserted that this action really represented the movement of funds into business channels. Certain commercial activities, it was said, had expanded to a point where it was necessary to squeeze credit from Wall street.

Copper Outlook Brighter.

In view of the trend toward consolidating corporate enterprises the antitrust action launched by the government against two proposed food combines last week was considered of great significance to the business world. The abandonment of negotiations for another large merger in the food industry was generally attributed to the government's move and there were indications that plans for consolidations in other fields would proceed only after careful study.

After a series of favorable developments for oil and sugar companies the copper industry had its turn last week.

Producers agreed that the market outlook for the red metal had been noticeably brightened by the decision to form a new export association complying with the provisions of the Webb-Pomerene law. The plans are expected to result in greater coordination in foreign selling and to stiffen the price of copper.

NEW YORK ISSUE HOLDS BOND MARKET INTEREST

Banks Forming Syndicates to Bid on $75,000,000 Municipal Tender.

OIL OFFERING EXPECTED

New York, Feb. 14 (By the Associated Press).—Operations in the bond market last week were tempered with caution, apparently inspired by the firmer conditions prevailing in the money market, which was strained by the heavy calling of bank loans. The unexpectedly high total of brokerage loans at the end of January probably acted as a restraining influence on the buying of securities, but thoughtful observers detected in the removal of bank funds from the "street" a demand for money to accommodate trade.

Coincident with lessened buying activity in the bond market was the first decided lull in new financing since the first of the year. Bond offerings approximated only $36,000,000 compared with almost $55,000,000 in the preceding week and a series of $100,000,000 weeks in January. The holiday interruption and preparations for a large volume of financing next week accounted for the drop in business. The breathing spell, however, was welcomed by investment dealers, enabling them to lighten their heavily stocked shelves.

The major operation in this field in sight for next week will be the flotation of a $75,000,000 bond issue for the city of New York, the largest municipal offering in several years. With most of the leading banks forming syndicates to bid for the business interest is running high in the award to be made by the city next Tuesday. An early sale of securities to finance the purchase of the Associated Oil Company by Blair & Co. is expected, while prospective foreign loans include $20,000,000 for the Italian Credit Institute and $10,000,000 for German mortgage bonds.

Trading interest in the market last week was focused chiefly on two groups of bonds—those of the coal-carrying railroads, which were strengthened by the ending of the anthracite strike, and the copper company obligations which responded to the announcement that a new export association was being formed to coordinate foreign selling. Substantial gains were recorded by the leading issues in each division.

On the other hand, the vigorous advance scored by the local traction bonds since the first of the year was halted by profit taking and speculative interest in sugar company liens also waned. Oil bonds continued to find favor as additional gasoline price advances were announced and various plans carried forward for mergers in the industry.

Reenfranchisement of Debs Urged.

(By the Associated Press.)

Citizenship rights, lost by virtue of his imprisonment for opposing American participation in the world war, would be restored to Eugene V. Debs, four times candidates for the Presidency on the Socialist ticket, under a resolution drafted by Representative Berger (Socialist), Wisconsin, for introduction in the House today.

Mexico's Oil Law Is Held To Menace Her Interests

By S. S. FONTAINE.

New York, Feb. 14.—Near-sighted nations, like short-sighted people, sometimes cut off their noses to spite their faces, and that's just what our neighbor with the tabasco temperament, who dwells south of the Rio Grande, seems to be doing when she has penalized American capital invested in the production of petroleum to such an extent that she is driving it to seek other fields. This policy is very largely responsible for the opening up of the rich oil territory in Colombia and Venezuela, where Secretary Mellon's Gulf Co. has begun the development of part of the great holdings of the Carib Syndicate in those two countries, and the Royal Dutch has taken an option on the remainder, while Standard Oil and Pan American have opened up Lago's big property in the Maracaibo district and now has a production ranging from 45,000 to 60,000 barrels a day.

Discussing Mexico's recalcitrant behavior toward foreign capital, Guy Stevens, director of the Association of Producers of Petroleum in Mexico, said to the writer:

"Mexico is a country peculiarly dependent on foreign capital and foreign initiative. Stated in a different way, there is scarcely a country where greater impetus could be given by foreign capital and foreign initiative to the development of large natural resources and the advancement of a whole people's prosperity in so short a time. There is practically no disagreement anywhere with the proposition that Mexico has large potential wealth awaiting development; and that if an adequate supply of capital and initiative could be at once applied to the development of such wealth Mexico would speedily enter upon a degree of prosperity never hitherto enjoyed.

* * * *

"Mexican capital available for the development of this potential wealth is very limited. For example, official figures issued by the Mexican government at the end of 1924 indicate that, of the entire capital invested in the petroleum industry in that country up to that time, only 3 per cent was Mexican, and there are reasons for believing that even this figure is too large.

* * * *

"But whether the capital which is to develop Mexico's wealth be foreign or Mexican, it will with difficulty be persuaded to undertake the work until it feels assured that it will be safe; and, unfortunately, conditions in Mexico during the past few years have not been such as to inspire confidence. Confidence has, of course, been further shaken by the recent passage of the alien land law and petroleum law, the effect of which, as has been repeatedly stated, will be to confiscate properties in which very large quantities of foreign capital are invested.

* * * *

"From the standpoint of Mexico herself, therefore, the policies which her recent governments have been following do not seem calculated to bring any benefit to the country. On the contrary, the effect, as already indicated, is likely—indeed, almost certain—to be further to discourage investments of capital in the development of her natural resources and other industries, and further to retard the economic advancement to which her people under other conditions might reasonably look forward as something to come about in their own day and generation.

* * * *

"It is significant that within the past six weeks a large number of inquiries have come to me from people having small amounts invested in various Mexican enterprises, indicating fears for their investments and seeking advice.

* * * *

"Looking at the policies of recent Mexican governments as in part crystallized in the recent legislation, one finds, of course, a very broad question involved, which can not help being of intense importance to all persons engaged in any kind of foreign enterprises anywhere. Capital has heretofore felt able to go into foreign countries on the basis of sound investments; but if the policies apparently being contended for by the Mexican government should come to prevail and be generally accepted among the nations of the world, capital would hereafter have to go into foreign countries on a very highly speculative basis.

* * * *

"Mexico's contention amounts to this: That no matter how fully the local laws of a country were complied with in the original making of investments by foreign capital, the local government may, by future legislation, completely take over all such investments for itself without any compensation whatever, and the foreign investors concerned would have no right to appeal in such a situation to the diplomatic protection of their own governments. Acceptance of the principle that any country has the right to confiscate investments lawfully made under previous laws and that foreign investors have no right to appeal to their own governments for protection would immediately create a menace to foreign investments everywhere, and particularly to foreign investments in countries where, as in Mexico, political conditions are or have been somewhat unstable.

* * * *

"Some of the recent comments in the Mexican press are very noteworthy. Complaint is made that the present discussion of the situation immediately arising out of the passage of the recent legislation is intended and has a tendency to discourage European capital from entering Mexico. These references to European capital have recently been so persistent as to suggest that Mexico may be intending, after putting in effect the new legislation, looking primarily to Europe for the foreign capital needed in the future.

* * * *

"Whether looked at from the standpoint of Mexico's own welfare or from the broader viewpoint of international business generally, there are involved in the present Mexican siuation questions the importance and results of which can scarcely be envisaged."

New Rubber Change Will Be Opened Today

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—America's second rubber exchange—the first devoted exclusively to trading in that commodity—will open for business tomorrow morning at 31 South William street. President Francis P. Henderson announced today the limited membership of 250 was expected to be filled before the official inauguration of the new market.

The unit of trading will be a contract calling for 2½ tons of rubber and twelve months will be traded in, as on the New York Cotton Exchange. The rate of commission for buying and selling is fixed and will not vary as the market price of rubber changes. Transactions on the exchange will be cleared through the Rubber Exchange Clearing House, Inc.

Business Continues At December Level

(By Associated Press.)

Little change in business conditions appeared in January records of industrial production, as compared yesterday by the Commerce Department with December returns.

Pig iron, steel ingots, zinc and Northern pine lumber were turned out in greater quantities during January than during December, but production of Western lumber declined. Consumption of tin and of silk also increased. The figures representing business operations and financial trends in a variety of lines were balanced.

EXHIBIT SPACE ALL SOLD FOR EDUCATION PARLEY

Booths for Superintendents' Convention Bring Total of $15,310.

SESSIONS OPEN SUNDAY

All available space has been taken for the educational exhibit to be held in the basement of the Washington auditorium in connection with the convention of the department of superintendents opening here next Sunday, C. E. La Vigne, executive director of the Washington convention bureau, announced yesterday.

The entire area under the auditorium, covering 28,000 square feet, was sold out to exhibitors within one day after the space was placed on sale.

Provision has been made for 121 separate exhibit booths, ranging in rental price from $85 to $130 each. According to the rates for the booths published by the department of superintendence, a total revenue of $15,310 will be realized from the booth rentals. The fund is to be used to defray the cost of the exhibit and the expenses of the convention.

Special exhibits will also be arranged in the foyer on the floor directly above the auditorium lobby. These exhibits will consist of a group of civic, social and research organizations promoting school activities along lines of health, safety and character education. Other special exhibits will be arranged on this floor.

Tax Exemption Asked For Americans Abroad

Income tax exemption for all American business men whose work requires them to live abroad more than six months in the year is being sought by Richard P. Momsen, president of the American Chamber of Commerce for Brazil, who is now visiting here.

Mr. Momsen, through Senator Wesley L. Jones, of Washington, succeeded in having an amendment to the tax bill adopted by the Senate last Thursday extending such exemption to Americans doing business abroad. The House proposed exemption to American salesmen doing business abroad, but this provision was stricken out by the Senate because it was too narrow in scope.

Association Praises Bituminous Industry

(By the Associated Press.)

The ability of the bituminous coal mining industry to meet any unusual demand for fuel, such as that caused by the anthracite suspension, was declared by the National Coal association in a statement last night to be a "valuable asset."

"In spite of the complete cessation of mining operations in the anthracite field, with its loss of 2,000,000 net tons of coal per week," the statement said, "no authenticated instances of hardship for lack of fuel have been recorded."

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Gross revenues of $48,066,897 for 1925, an increase of $3,132,213 over 1924, are reported by the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. Net income, after taxes and charges, was $19,168,185, compared with $16,731,587 the year before. The company set aside $3,807,990 as reserve for depreciation, an increase of $750,573 over the reserve of a year ago. During the twelve months the company added 50,081 new customers, a total of 813,698. President Creed has notified common stock holders that the company planned to finance its future capital requirements in the approximate ratios of 50 per cent from bond sales, 25 per cent from preferred stock sales and 25 per cent from offerings of common stock at par.

An initial dividend of 50 cents a share has been declared by the Emporium Corporation, payable March 24 to holders of record March 4.

H. Hobart Porter, president of American Waterworks & Electric Co., Inc., has informed stockholders that the forthcoming annual report will show a greater amount of electric current generated and sold in 1925 than in any previous year and an increase of more than 18,000 electric customers. New waterworks plants, having 22,000 customers, were acquired and included in the group of 31 waterworks companies under ownership and management of American Waterworks. "This growth is naturally reflected in increased earnings, which substantially exceeded those of the previous year," Mr. Porter stated.

New bond and stock offerings scheduled for flotation early this week include $2,000,000 Southern California Gas Co. 26-year 5½ per cent bonds, $1,250,000 first Carolinas joint stock land bank 30-year 5 per cent bonds at a price of 103 and a block of Coldak Corporation Class A stock at $11 a share, representing the unplaced portion of an issue of 360,000 shares.

Ogden Reports With Extra Poundage, Faces Work.

Ultimatum Is Issued to Pitcher Lyle, a Hold-Out.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 14.—Six little valentines in the form of candidates for the 1926 Washington team arrived here on time for dinner tonight. The group included Pitchers Ogden, Schacht, Morrell, Joyce and Humphreys, who formed the party leaving the Capital City yesterday morning, and Catcher Bennie Tate, who joined the bunch at Jacksonville. Lefty Thomas, heavier than last year, and Hal Smith made a later train.

Fred Marberry and Shortstop Buddie Myer must have missed connections somewhere, but both are expected tonight or early tomorrow morning. Jim Lyle, who also was originally slated to report with this first bunch of players, has been issued an ultimatum by President Griffith. He has been told that he can not join the squad unless he accepts the terms offered him and, if no word is received from him by tomorrow, the offer already made him will be withdrawn and he will be declared a hold-out.

Manager Harris and Trainer Mike Martin will put the boys through their paces beginning tomorrow morning and from now on all they can look for is work, and then more work.

This applies particularly to Curley Ogden, who has taken on about ten pounds of surplus fat. The sheik needs plenty of work anyhow and, with this extra poundage, which must be removed, he will not be allowed to stop and pick any flowers on his training path.

TOMORROW'S drill is not expected either to be strenuous or lengthy. The boys arrived here pretty well done up as a result of 31 hours on the road and a little tossing of the ball around and jogging on the Plant field track probably will be all they are asked to do.

The trip from Washington here was an uneventful one. Four hours out of the Capital City saw the last of the snow, and from then on the weather became milder and the foliage began showing tropical signs.

President Griffith denied stories printed in Washington to the effect that Walter Johnson is due here immediately. "I don't want him to report here too early," he stated. According to the player himself, in a letter just received from the Big

Unexpected Recruit Reports to Nationals

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 14.—If ambition and confidence count for anything the Nationals have a star in the making in a youngster answering to the name of Cecil Spence. He arrived here today from Paragold, Ark., and is footing his own bills in order to get a trial with Washington.

In a note of recommendation from the superintendent of schools of Green county, Manager Harris was advised that while in reality a shortstop he can play anywhere except behind the bat. Although small in stature the lad will be given a trial, Harris says.

TWO STARS LOCKED IN SCORING

Laub and Loeb Head Eastern College Court Players.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Revised figures show an interesting duel for the individual scoring honors in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league between Capt. Carl Loeb, of Princeton, and "Red" Laub, of Columbia.

Laub equaled the Princetonian's total of 43 points when he caged two floor shots and three from foul against Pennsylvania Friday night. The Pennsylvania guards, Goldblatt and Davenport, are tied for third place with 31 each.

COLUMBIA, with four victories and no defeats, maintains its lead in the circuit, with Dartmouth in second place as the result of a single defeat administered by the leaders.

Four games are scheduled this week. Dartmouth plays Princeton at Hanover Tuesday and at Princeton Saturday. Columbia meets Cornell at Ithaca Tuesday and Pennsylvania opposes Cornell at Philadelphia Saturday.

The team standing follows:

Team—	W.	L.	Pct.	Pts.	O. P.
Columbia	4	0	1.000	141	85
Dartmouth	4	1	.800	108	102
Pennsylvania	3	3	.500	147	141
Princeton	2	3	.400	122	123
Cornell	1	3	.250	73	90
Yale	0	4	.000	66	106

Embassy Booters Forfeit to Germans

British Embassy soccorist failed to put in appearance for their scheduled exhibition game with the German-American Reserves on the Monument grounds yesterday.

The German booters were on the field at the scheduled time and waited an hour and a half before departing, disappointed that they could not indulge in their favorite sport.

Rival Tennis Foes Again Advance

Wills and Lenglen Reach Semifinal Round Easily.

French Star Wins More Impressively on Sabbath.

CANNES, France, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Both Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen, the American and French tennis champions, came through today to the semifinals of the singles in the Carlton tennis tournament. Mlle. Lenglen's victory was more impressive than that of Miss Wills. She defeated Lady Roundway, 6—0, 6—0, thereby maintaining her unbroken perfect score, while the American girl lost two games to Miss Eileen Bennett in the first set, the score being 6—2, 6—0. Thus Miss Wills' series of love sets with which she has won since the tournament opened came to an end.

Suzanne played like one inspired and simply overwhelmed Lady Roundway, who is rated even with Miss Bennett in both English and Riviera tennis. Lady Roundway and Miss Bennett have met twice, the youthful player winning from the veteran once and losing the second time.

There now remain only two obstacles to a meeting between Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Wills over the net—Mlle. Henriette Contoslavos, who will try to bar Suzanne's way, but should be easy for the French champion to overcome, and Mlle. Didi Vlasto, who will endeavor to keep victory from Helen on her way to the finals—but the California girl already has defeated Mlle. Vlasto twice and is expected to repeat that achievement. Thus, outside of interference by rain, the match should take place as arranged at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Miss Bennett gave Miss Wills a great battle in the first set today, as the following point score indicates:

Miss Wills	4	4	8	4	4	4	3	4	—35
Miss Bennett	2	1	10	2	2	2	5	2	—26

Miss Wills improved as the match progressed and made a better showing in the second set.

Miss Wills	4	6	4	4	6	4	—28
Miss Bennett	0	4	0	2	4	0	—10

The French champion allowed Lady Roundway only 6 points in the entire match; she won eight love games, and not one game went to deuce. The score:

First set:
Mlle. Lenglen	4	4	4	4	4	4	—24
Lady Roundway	0	0	2	0	1	1	—4
Second set:
Mlle. Lenglen	4	4	4	4	4	4	—24
Lady Roundway	0	0	0	0	2	0	—2

Suzanne was steadiness personified, placing the ball wherever she pleased with uncanny precision. Helen sat throughout the match

3 Hurt, Ski-Jumping Tourney Postponed

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—The second day's jumping of the national ski tournament was postponed until tomorrow, after three of the first five ski riders to take off were hurt in accidents due to a high wind howling across the course. Today's was the first postponement of a national ski tournament in 22 years of competition, veteran followers of the sport said.

Lars Haughen of St. Paul, and Barney Riley, of Chicago, were both knocked unconscious and slightly injured in bad falls when the wind whirled them over in mid-air and they crashed head down.

Members Discuss Indian Spring Lease

The members of the Indian Spring Golf club, at a meeting at the clubhouse last Thursday night, discussed for several hours the proposition of Tom Moore, the president of the club and the owner of the property, to take over the course on a ten-year lease, with privilege of three five-year renewals. While the plan was generally favored, it was decided to submit it to referendum of all the members, after which another meeting will be held.

J. F. McCormick, C. C. Caywood and Perry B. Hoover were reelected members of the board, and Lee Stabler was chosen to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. J. R. DeFarges on account of ill health.

Eagles Play Aloysius Five Tomorrow Night

Two of the best basketball clubs in town will have it out tomorrow night when the Anacostia Eagles will engage the Aloysius club team in the Gonzaga gymnasium, starting at 8 o'clock.

Aloysius has won all its games this season in defending the District championship while the Eagles have captured all their local engagements.

Both clubs number some of the best players in the city and with the game having a bearing on the title, some lively action is assured.

Green Draws Interest In Local Cue Circles

Carl Green, who has startled local pocket billiard circles with his recent victories over Crowley, Crouch and District Champion Dent, is expected to be the center of interest in the exhibition matches to be staged at the Grand billiard parlor, 421 Ninth street northwest, this week. Prizes will be given those who guess nearest the result of each match.

The schedule follows:

Tonight—Richmond vs. Crowley; tomorrow, Green vs. Watt; Wednesday, Joe Crowley vs. Crouch; Thursday, Richmond vs. Watt; Friday, Dent vs. Crouch. All matches start at 7:45 o'clock.

SPATTERS FROM THE PUDDLE OF SPORT—BY WILLIAM WALTER

SCHOOL GAME IS AROUSING INTEREST

More Than 4,000 Will See Eastern-Central Play Tomorrow.

COURT gladiators of Eastern and Central high schools will engage in a 40-minute basketball clash at the Arcade tomorrow afternoon, which will decide the championship of the public high school series.

An even larger crowd than the 4,000 gathering which set a new record for local basketball attendance last Tuesday when Eastern defeated Central by a single point to deadlock the series, is expected to witness the play-off.

The game has been booked to get under way at 3:15 o'clock and, like the majority of series clashes, will be handled by Joe Fitzgerald and Joe Deering, two of the most popular officials hereabouts.

THE series this season has created more interest with the general public than those of the past few years, mainly because of the fact that the games have been played at the Arcade, where the seating capacity has more than filled the want of the students.

The alumni of both schools, as well as adult court fans, in anticipation of the 23-to-22 game of last Tuesday are expected to put to intended use the seats which have heretofore been used only at the professional games.

While Eastern in most quarters entered last Tuesday's engagement a slight favorite to tie the series, the majority of followers are looking upon tomorrow's game as a "take-your-choice" affair despite the efforts of some Central well-wishers to make the Mount Pleasanters the under dogs.

For Possible Heavyweights

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—The search for a 200-pound fist-fighter who can keep his fists up and his heels down is still being prosecuted by a patient corps of fight managers and they continue to meet all freight trains in the various New York yards, forcing their business cards into the hands of the larger alfresco tourists as they dismount from the brake beams. The freight yard has been a favorite recruiting ground for heavyweights ever since it became known that Jack Dempsey used to travel informally.

Mr. Will McCarney, Mr. Charles Harvey and Mr. Dan Morgan have never ceased to reproach themselves because they were not on hand to welcome Mr. Dempsey in those days and to underwrite a liberal issue of sausage and cakes on his behalf.

Of course, nobody knew at that time that the humble box car passengers had anything more to recommend him than a discriminating knowledge of the various materials used in making roadbeds. To them, it was unimportant, if true, that the rock ballast might fly up and knock a tourist's nose off whereas the cinders merely sifted down the neck of one's sweater and caused, at the worst, mild discomfort. They had no way of knowing that in ten years Jack Dempsey would be rich enough to have a nose made to measure and to uptilt the same in a disdainful manner when offered $500,000.

THE fight managers are determined, however, that this shall never happen again. If another Dempsey comes to town he will be met. Of course, this process involves a great waste of hospitality, for hundreds of tons of heavyweights have been welcomed to the city in the last few years and there is an appalling loss of sausage and cakes whenever one of the big seasonal migratory movements is on.

If all the sausage and cakes that Mr. McCarney alone has bought in the last few years were asesmbled in the Yale bowl, you'd say, "Gee! Look at all the sausage and cakes!"

Just offhand this correspondent can mumble the names of a couple of tons of heavyweights who were not allowed to arrive ungreeted. There were the Messrs. Floyd Johnson, Romero Rojas, Tiny Herman, Joe McCann, Young Jack McAuliffe, Italian Jack Herman, King Solomon, Budd Gorman, Ray Neuman, Jack Burke, Jim Maloney, Jack

Bill Tilden Defeats Richards Once More

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—William T. Tilden, national tennis champion, defeated Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, N. Y., today in the finals of the Brooklyn Heights Casino invitation tournament, 6—3, 6—4, 11—9.

Richards and Francis T. Hunter captured doubles honors from Tilden and Manuel Alonzo, 7—9, 6—2, 6—1, 6—1.

The third set of the singles match was a bitter battle, with Tilden driving splendidly from the back court and Richards responding with excellent service which kept him in the running.

When the doubles match came the champion admitted that he was tired, but he played brilliantly in the first set. In the third when he was trailing at 4—1, a serve by Tilden was declared out and the champion argued for a moment. The incident appeared to throw him off his game for the remainder of the match.

Six-Day Cycle Grind Started at Chicago

Chicago, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Fourteen teams pedalled away tonight at 9 o'clock at the Coliseum in the international six-day bicycle races which close next Saturday night at 11 o'clock, after 146 hours of wheeling.

Nearly every rider of note not tied up by European contracts faced the starter's gun. Favorite combinations of other races have been separated with the result that the possible winning combinations were hard to pick.

Carl Stockholm and Ernest Kockler, partners of many races, have both taken new partners. Stockholm rides with Beckman and Harry Horan is Kockler's partner. Bobby Walthour and Reggie McNamara are teamed, and are considered one of the strongest combinations. McNamara recently won the Berlin race while paired with Horan.

Seven nations are represented among the riders.

Ray Kennedy Leader of Attack

"Caseys" Trail, 13-9, in First Half of Rough Game.

Stonebreaker Thrills Fans With Shot From Mid-court.

By JUNO KINERK.

THE new managerial duties failed to weigh heavily upon Ray Kennedy's shoulders last night as he led his Palace basketers to a hard earned victory in a grim struggle with the Fort Wayne club, 21 to 17. All that Kennedy did to help the locals earn the verdict was to score two-thirds of his team's field goals, which only numbered three, and add 5 more points from the free throw mark.

The visitors battled gamely all the way but were in the lead but once, about the middle of the first half, by a single point. This fact did not deter them in the least and they fought all the harder to gain the supremacy. Their efforts in this, however, were of such a character that Referee Menton was busy blowing the whistle for fouls about half the time and Palace scored 15 of its total points on free throws.

The Caseys also scored three field goals, but were not so proficient as the Palace players from the foul line. However, their chances for scoring single-pointers were many fewer than those of the locals and their scoring in this department was about proportionate to Washington's for their number of chances.

BIG Homer Stonebreaker, the "ace" of the Caseys, gave the fans a sinking spell when he dropped in a shot from past the middle of the court in the second half. Teddy Kearns kept a vigilant eye upon Homer for the rest of the game and he was unable to score thereafter.

He left the game for about five minutes in the latter period for a rest but was unable to hit the goal again in the final minutes as Washington adopted a "freezing" game to protect its lead.

Ralph Miller, the former third baseman for the Nationals, who played guard for Fort Wayne drew the derision of the large crowd for his close guarding. Half of the fouls called on Fort Wayne were the result of his tactics but he continued his way throughout the game in this manner and effectively kept Rusty Saunders from scoring from scrimmage the whole game.

Palace jumped off into the lead when Kennedy sank a pretty shot near the middle of the court and a subsequent foul shot by Saunders, gave Palace a 3 to 0 lead. Chadwick then scored the first point for Fort Wayne on a foul, but free

Cleveland Pros Beat Detroit Five, 42-25

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 14—Cleveland kept its slate clean in its race for honors in the second half of the American basketball league schedule here today when it handily disposed of the Pulaski post five of this city. The final score was 42 to 25.

The American Legion men could do little against the well-planned defensive game of the visitors, while the visitors' attack was a great treat for the fans.

Illinois Advancing In Big Ten Struggle

Chicago, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—The rise of Illinois from obscure sixth place to runner-up to Wisconsin and the deluge of Ohio State, 1925 titlist, into the second division were features of the Western conference basketball campaign as it entered on its last month of play.

The Badgers' only game of the week was a win over Chicago, and gave them a better grip on first place. The Illini went up the ladder, after a three-week's idleness, by downing Purdue and the Buckeyes, who took a second defeat from the hands of hardy Northwestern, Sans "Moons" Baker.

The standing:

Team.	W.	L.	P.	O.P.
Wisconsin	4	1	145	122
Illinois	4	2	144	145
Michigan	3	2	137	129
Indiana	4	3	221	216
Purdue	4	3	209	207
Ohio State	4	4	202	180
Iowa	4	4	170	184

G. W. RUNNER, BAREFOOT, WINS

Willett Takes 5-Mile Race Despite Early Loss of Shoe.

LOSING his shoes on the second lap, Hurd Willett, George Washington cross-country star, waded barefooted through the slush and cinders of the Plaza playground track to win the final of the Aloysius club's series of 5-mile runs yesterday. Willett completed the distance in the excellent time of 29 minutes and 30 seconds and the victory earned him the gold medal for the most points.

Wilton Shipley, also of George Washington and the only runner with a chance to tie Willett for high points, was delayed in reaching the track. Shipley entered the race after the original field of five had completed the first mile and finished fifth. His actual running time was 30 minutes.

A. L. Shaub, of Aloysius, was second in 31 minutes and 29 seconds, with Heindrich, the Gallaudet harrier, gaining third honors, being checked at 34 minutes flat.

"JIMMY" MONTAGUE, the Aloysius veteran, was the fourth harrier to cross the finish line, while Jerry Looney, another Aloy distancer, captured sixth place. Their times were 35 minutes and 39 minutes and 2 seconds, respectively.

The final standing by points for the four races was: Willett, 16; Shipley, 13; Schaub, 5, and Domigan, 1. Looney captured the novice honors.

The series was arranged for the Aloysius club, under the direction of Dan Hassett, to stimulate interest and condition the harriers for the 10-mile modified marathon of the club to be held over the same course employed for The Washington Post events of the last two years on February 22.

Roy Perry, president of the Aloysius club, made a short address after the race, at which time Mike Lynch, Washington's nationally known marathoner, presented the medals to Willett, Shipley and Schaub and the Mike Lynch trophy to Jerry Looney.

Willett led the race from start to finish and was never pressed, despite the fact that his feet were next to the slush for more than 4 miles. Schaub and Heindrich furnished the most interest in their battle for second place. After first one and then the other had held the runner-up position, Schaub finally pulled away to a short lead.

TORCHELLA IS COLLYER'S SPECIAL AT NEW ORLEANS

Swept Picked In Maiden Event

My Own Dropped Into Soft Spot in Fifth Race at Miami.

Wandering Times Will Be Hard to Beat in Fourth Spasm.

By BERT E. COLLYER.

ASIDE from the Louisiana juvenile stakes Monday racing is featureless at all the winter tracks. Fortunately the ponies will not parade on this day at either Tia Juana or Cuba, for which we can give thanks.

In the main attraction at the Fair Grounds, Col. Applegate will shoot TORCHELLA right back after the large end of the purse and he has every reason to feel sanguine of victory. Chief opposition will come from the GREENTREE STABLE. Trainer Phillips has a trio of nominees, but will rely on THRACE, a very fast youngster.

Maidens contest in the opener, in the Crawfish town, and it is toss up between SWEPT, BESS McBANN and GLANCE. They figure in the order named.

In the second MAY BUDDY is a supposed hot tamale. This one is not called upon to beat much and should annex the large end of the purse. Out of the old brine barrel comes GENEROSITY in the third. I have the side dope that this one is to awaken. Has only BONFIRE to trim, so have all your smackers riding right on the old beezer.

ERICA has the worst of the weights, but may prove good enough in the 3-year-old event, while TANGERINE is given the call over PROMISING TOM in the sixth.

For the closing spasm WALTER E. should roll home.

They have finally dropped MY OWN in a spot where he can fall down, turn a couple of flip-flops and still win. He goes in the fifth heat at Miami and it is a shame to take the money. The heavy weight assigned him will merely serve as a steadying influence. As for the others, just forget that they are running. These are like demimonde at a ball—just there to fill in.

CHESTERBROOK may win the opener, but it is a tough race.

The CROISSANT ENTRY seems best in the second, while BELZONI should cop the third.

WANDERING TIMES will hurl a wicked set of heels in the fourth and will be hard to trim.

TEAK has only to run to best form to collect in the sixth.

For the closing race it seems as though FLYING CLOUD should come to life and show his field the shortest way home. Let's go!

MIAMI.

First race—Chesterbrook, Wellfinder, Liliane.
Second race—Croissant entry, Espanol, Muriel S.
Third race—Belzoni, Prince G., Ministick.
Fourth race—Wandering Times, Moon Cat, Tenacity.

NAVY FACING ANOTHER BIG DAY

Eight Events Are on Card for This Week End.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 14.—Though the number of athletic contests to be staged by the Annapolis midshipmen next Saturday will be fewer by two compared to yesterday's card of ten, at least three of the eight will attract more than ordinary interest.

Whenever Navy and Penn State hook up, it means hard and fast action because of the keen rivalry that exists between them. The annual boxing match between them is booked for Saturday and it will be the feature event of the card.

Next in point of interest will be the basketball game with Fordham. The latter, as usual, has a fast combination and is calculated to give the Middies trouble. Then the West Virginia wrestlers will be there for their annual grapple with the Navy lads. Washington and Lee will be the invading foe for the swimming match. New York A. C. in water polo and the fencers will meet the swordsmen of Massachusetts Tech. Thus varsity teams will engage in six contests.

THE Plebes will be busy in two. Their basketball team will clash with Georgetown Freshmen and they will have a tank meet with Baltimore City College.

All of the contests will take place in the afternoon, except boxing, which is reserved for the evening. The naval contingent is proud of the showing made by the boxing team in its debut last night, defeating Notre Dame at South Bend by five bouts to two.

Kanawhas Defeated by Woodside A. C. Five

The fast Kanawhas went down to their second defeat of the season yesterday afternoon when the Woodside A. C. quintet won the decision over them in a fast game, 25 to 21. The playing of Woodward was a big factor in the Woodside victory, the lanky pivot man leading the offense with six field goals.

The Woodside team has secured the use of the Anacostia Eagles' gym for Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and teams desiring games then are asked to call Manager Stewart, Woodside 98-J.

Madden Will Retire As Breeder of Horses

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 14, (By A. P.).—John E. Madden, master of Hamburg Place, a 2,500-acre thoroughbred horse breeding establishment, has announced that he will retire from the breeding end of the sport and devote all of his time to training and racing. He said he had been working too hard, but would "sooner train a good horse than be President of the United States."

Mr. Madden, breeder of many famous racers, including five Kentucky derby winners, has about 35 racers at Churchill Downs, Louisville, and it is his intention to take personal charge of these animals and prepare them for campaigns in the East next summer.

Anacostia Eagles Add Roamers' Scalp, 28-11

The Anacostia Eagles, 150-pound District champions, added the Roamer five to their fast-growing string of victories by a 28-11 score yesterday afternoon. The Birds completely outclassed their opponents, who were able to make but two points in the first half. All the Eagles took part in the scoring with Barnes the leading light for the Roamers.

Hobo Insects Issue Basketball Challenge

The Hobo Insects are ready, and have been since the season started, to play all insect and peewee basketball teams. They are especially anxious to exhibit their wares to the Rex and Roughs teams. Call Manager J. O'Hara at Cleveland 1983 if interested.

The following players perform for the Hobo five: H. Medler, H. Troth, T. Bradley, D. Monroe, J. Davenport, J. O'Hara, H. O'Hara and K. O'Hara.

$145,000 in Trotters Lost in Lexington Fire

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Fire early today destroyed the stock barn of the Calumet Farm, near here, burning 25 harness horses, brood mares, all in foal, and 1 colt. The fire started when a bolt of lightning struck the building. Loss was estimated at $145,000.

Twenty-two of the mares and the colt belonged to W. M. Wright, of Chicago, owner of the farm. The other three, were owned by Edward Baker, St. Charles, Mo.; W. H. Snollenger, Chicago, and Max Kennedy, Fredonia, Kans.

Jeanette Rankin was among the mares destroyed.

Pathan Wins 2¼-Mile Tia Juana Handicap

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.). The World, 5-year-old gelding belonging to Mrs. G. H. Abbott, won the Commando claiming handicap, first feature at Tia Juana today. Go Foin and Rachel Potter followed The World over the line. The time for the six furlongs was 1:14 4-5.

Elector made a walkaway of the Beverley hills handicap, with Spic and Span second and Tall Grass third. Spic and Span was the favorite.

Renault and Eddie Huffman, all of Caucasian persuasion, and the Messrs Tut Jackson, Rob Lawson, Will Tate and George Godfrey, whom Mr. Will Gibson, the educated fight manager, calls the Sambogambians.

The champion oyster opener may spend a lifetime prying open the front doors of reluctant bivalves and never find a pearl and, similarly, a fight manager may have a tremendous turnover in heavyweights and never find one who can knock a derby off a hatrack.

Since Dempsey became champion, and especially since he invested in a suet sneezer, the managers have accepted candidates from the football field, the legal profession, the rum running profession and even from the wrestling profession, which is a very low profession. And the end of the search is far from yet, because thus far nobody has found a fist fighter who can lick Gene Tunney, to say nothing of Harry Wills or Dempsey.

Sully Montgomery, of the Center college football team that beat Harvard, came up, fought a few of his contemporaries, and vanished. Ed Garvey, a member of the bar who had played football at Notre Dame, had a similar experience.

LATELY, Dan Hickey, manager of Paul Berlenbach, put his brand on a big brother of the famous Big Munn, the Nebraska football player, who once threw Strangler Lewis clear out of the building in a wrestling match and won the so-called world championship.

This big brother of Big Munn is known as Great Big Munn and Mr. Hickey says that he will send him into the ring as soon as he learns rudimentary ring manners. Great Big Munn already has learned to say "I broke my hand in the second round," which is lesson 1 in the textbook.

Eddie Huffman, an alumnus of the Pacific fleet, boxed Jack Sharkey, of Boston, the other night and for some reason Sharkey refused to knock him out. Sharkey seems to have developed into a competent flrt fighter and he is probably the best of the numerous heavyweights comprising the mugg class and may shortly be accepted into that rather exclusive group of near-challengers now composed of Tunney, Willie Stribling, Paul Berlenbach and Johnny Riske.

M'ALLISTER BETTER.

Oakland, Calif., Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Physicians today reported as favorable the condition of Bob McAllister, one-time national amateur heavyweight champion boxer, who was accidentally injured by a gunshot wound yesterday while handling a revolver.

North Randall Stake Offerings Announced

Cleveland, Feb. 14 (By A. P.). Stake offerings totaling $17,000 for the Grand Circuit meeting at North Randall from July 5 to 10 have been announced by President Win H. Kinnan, of the Forest City Live Stock and Fair association.

Three $5,000 and one $2,000 classic, each of which has been a fixture at the track since its inaugural meeting in 1909, are on the program. They are the Edwards $5,000, for 2:08 pacers; the Ohio, $5,000, for 2:08 trotters; the Tavern "Steak," $5,000, for 2:12 trotters, and the Fasig, $2,000, for 3-year-old trotters eligible to the 2:10 class.

Entries close March 1.

Stanton Five Beats Phantom Team, 26-13

After trailing for the first half, the Stantons adjusted their long-distance glasses and proceeded to defeat the Phantoms by a 26-13 margin. The Phantoms battled their more experienced opponents to a standstill in the first session, but could not cope with the Stanton defense and the spectacular shooting of Joe Sweeney and "Doc" Burch. Lucas and Callahan played best for the vanquished.

KENTUCKIANS TOP FIVES IN SOUTH

Maryland and Tarheel Teams in Tie for Third Place.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 14.—The Kentucky Colonels jumped into the lead in the Southern conference basketball race this week with a record of five victories and no defeats, University of Mississippi is second. The University of North Carolinia Tarheels, title holders, who lost a game by the margin of 1 point to Maryland recently were in third place with five wins and one loss.

The University of Mississippi is prepared to take advantage of any slip by the leaders. "Old Miss" having righted herself after getting off on the wrong foot by winning eight straight. Maryland, too, continues to command respect with five games won and one lost. Georgia, starting slowly but know up and coming has a percentage of 700, closely followed by Virginia with 667, the Cavaliers being trailed by South Carolina with a 600 average.

Twelve conference teams have established records of 500 or better and with less than two weeks to go before the title-deciding tournament comes, seem within the circle of the first sixteen. Six of the 22 teams will be onlookers under the rule limiting participants to sixteen.

Train, he expects to show up here about March 1, although perhaps a little earlier.

The Washington club president has asked Ban Johnson, American league head, to detail an umpire from the regular staff to report here and handle the games on Washington's "grapefruit league" schedule. Clarence Rowland was given the assignment last year, but Bill McGowan is expected to get the job for 1926.

One more exhibition game has been added to the Nats' list. Hank Gowdy's Columbus team, of the American association, which will be met at Fort Benning on April 4, having also been given an April 2 date for a contest at Quitman, Ga.

PRINCETON AND VIRGINIA QUINTETS TO VISIT DISTRICT

Nassau Team Here This Week

Tiger Five Will Meet Catholic U. and Maryland.

Cavaliers Also to Play Old Liners in Game Tomorrow.

WITH two of Washington's colleges, Georgetown and Maryland, concluding their home schedule of games, the coming week of collegiate basketball in this vicinity holds forth promise of furnishing some high-class games.

Heading the list of college quintets that will display their wares in Washington this week is Princeton, which will play Catholic university Wednesday night and Maryland the following night.

The William and Mary Cagers also pay an extended visit to the Capital, engaging Catholic U. tonight, George Washington tomorrow night and Georgetown Wednesday night.

Another feature game of the week will be the return meeting between Virginia and Maryland. This contest will be played at Ritchie gymnasium tomorrow night. The Old Liners lost their only game in the Southern conference to Virginia at Charlottesville and are particularly anxious to avenge this setback.

THE appearance of Princeton in this vicinity is the biggest event of the week and the Tigers probably will play before packed houses, in both of their games.

The Tigers got away to a slow start in the Eastern Intercollegiate league, but apparently now have rounded into the peak and have been going along in great style the last few weeks.

But they will have their hands full in both of their games here, for the Brooklanders and the Old Liners also have reached their best form. If the local teams forget the fact that Princeton is one of the "big three" and do not hold the Tigers in too much awe, both stand a fine chance of adding Princeton to their already long list of victims.

Following its game with William and Mary tomorrow night, the George Washington team will put in a couple of days of practice before taking a Pennsylvania trip, in which they meet Bucknell Friday night and Penn State Saturday night.

The William and Mary game is the only one of the week for Georgetown. The Hilltoppers will spend the balance of the week preparing for a trip to New York next week, in which they are scheduled to meet the Crescent A. C. in Brooklyn and Fordham in New York.

BOXING NOTES

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Boxing writers here are assailing the action of the boxing commissioners of New York State in holding up the money Jack Sharkey and Eddie Huffman were to have been paid by Tex Rickard for their ten-round bout in the New Garden Friday night.

The bout was slow and uninteresting and was not a fair match, but little Huffman was trying hard all the way to stop his much larger opponent. The suspicion is that Sharkey carried the Californian along and the crowd thought so, too, and voiced its feelings several times with catcalls and booing. The experts agree that Big Jack did not want to seriously damage his young opponent and was charitable.

Sharkey appeared satisfied to win on points and should not be condemned for that plan of campaign.

ON the other hand Huffman had Sharkey reeling in the sixth and again Sharkey nearly walloped Huffman's head off for his rashness in that same round. Jimmy Deforest, the fight manager and trainer, says they were both trying all the way.

Brooklyn fight fans will get their first slant at Chick Suggs, the great colored bantam from New England, tomorrow night at the Broadway arena against Jackie Nichols, of St. Paul, in a ten-round bout. Benny Hall and Andy Martin are down for ten rounds in the semifinal.

Ruby Goldstein will swing into action again on Tuesday at the Pioneer A. C., where he is scheduled to meet Billy Pollock, Scranton lightweight, in the main event. Pollock will be making his initial appearance here. He has fought Jimmy Goodrich, Rocky Kansas, Solly Seeman, Tommy O'Brien and others. In the semifinal Yale Okun will clash with Martin O'Grady, of Jersey City, for ten rounds.

Jimmy Bronson and his mate, Al Brown, are busy these days questing a bout for Jack Zivic against Mickey Walker, welterweight champion. Zivic has a ten-round engagement with Tommy Milligan in the New Garden shortly. The betting favors Zivic slightly, but it is expected the two will step in at about even.

IN THE PRESS BOX

—WITH BAXTER—

THE morals of the American league, brought out for exhibition at the recent schedule meeting in Washington, appear to be in entire fashion since they have reached the stage of hypocrisy which seems now, in a great many instances, to be the accepted and proper thing.

According to the statement of several of the baseball magnates in attendance, the American league could not sanction the use of resin by its pitchers for fear of lowering the moral standard of the "national pastime," a profitable diversion which these same men are fond of eulogizing as one of the bulwarks of the United States.

It is now in order for an assemblage of usurers to refuse their approval to legislation raising the legal interest rate 2 per cent, while in their private affairs they continue to exact twice as much as the law allows.

MORAL HYPOCRISY: RESIN IS BEING USED, SO WHY REJECT IT?

If it is unmoral or immoral for a pitcher to use resin under the direction of the umpire, what form of turpitude covers the use of the same substance on the bench or worked into the seam of a hurler's uniform? Every American league owner and player knows that resin has been used regardless of restrictions, so why does the circuit officially attempt to hoodwink the public with a false "holier than thou" pronouncement?

As a matter of fact, there is no reason other than hypocrisy to stress the matter of morals in baseball. The union of the two is virtually nonexistant. Fear of antagonizing the cash customer does more to keep the business of baseball clean than any code of morals or ethics will ever do. The magnates are good enough business men to know this, and cupidity is much closer the definition than morality in designating the sentiment that inspires them.

Riviera tennis appears to be productive of as many "scandals" as some of the major sports events in this country.

Eddie Huffman appears to have lacked by about 20 columns living up to his advance notices.

THE literary fecundity of some of this country's leading athletes is, to say the least, marvelous. Jack Dempsey, heavyweight titleholder, appears to have more literary lives than a cat and has no apparent difficulty in encountering enough experiences in the course of six months to make the revision of his "life" a necessity.

Dempsey, whose skill as a literateur may not be great but whose ability to collect for his efforts is monumental, is engaged in another account of his sojourn on this earth. Previous efforts of the titleholder dealt with his career, from the box cars to the championship. Another narration revealed the romantic side of his life, episodes which apparently were written to calm the fears of the present Mrs. Dempsey. Now a breathless public is to be given the backstairs gossip of his disagreement with Jack Kearns.

Judging from the number of words to which Dempsey's name has been attached he must spend most of his waking hours at the typewriter. The champion is undoubtedly an expert typist. He is one of the few men capable of writing under the handicap of a pair of 5-ounce gloves.

It was possible even for Dempsey to send a round by round account of his fight with Firpo, although the champion did not know until he saw the moving pictures how many times he hit the floor and upon whose typewriter he landed when he took his famous dive out of the ring. It is because of such literary dexterity, no doubt, that he is able to command a figure for his writings that would make even a Theodore Roosevelt or Michael Arlan jealous.

THIS LITERARY LIFE: DEMPSEY CAN WRITE WITH GLOVES ON.

Dempsey is, however, only one of the multitude that has cashed in on the autobiographical craze. Time was when a man had to live at least three score and ten before he was thought to have reached the stage where he might write his autobiography. Most works of such sort were biographical. Today the lives of infants command a market. Stanley Harris at 25 and "Red" Grange at 19 are shining examples.

Add to the harbingers of spring, Mike Martin's anzual complaint that the Tampa diamond cannot be made ready for opening practice.

Maybe the American league thought it better to have resin on the bench in order to keep the substitutes from slipping off.

READERS of this column may recall certain discussions between it and Col. Henry Litchfield West as to the necessity and reason for silence in golf. The impression then was that golf alone occupied this peculiar position of taciturnity, but that was an error, for there is a school which champions the imposition of silence in professional basketball.

Ed Bang, a venerable colleague of this column's who makes his home and does his work in Cleveland, was in Washington recently for an encounter between the Palace club and the Cleveland five. This in itself calls for an explanation, for the mileage between the two cities is some distance to traverse for such a mixed pleasure.

Bang was here, at any rate, and was greatly shocked by the conduct and behavior of the Washington spectators. The shock was so great, in fact, that it was a week or more before this column's colleague could articulate on the subject. The charge, in brief, is that the cash customer of professional basketball in the National Capital does not conduct himself with due and necessary courtesy.

SHUSH AND SHUSH: SILENCE GAINS CONVERT IN BASKETBALL.

Bang says that it is the unwritten law of basketball that silence should be preserved and maintained while efforts are being made to shoot foul goals. He insists that the Washington cash customer said nothing while the Palace players attempted to convert free throws, but that when the Cleveland players toed the line bedlam itself broke loose. He blames the loss of the game largely on the "poor sportsmanship" of the Washington spectators.

This column fears that Bang has become an addict to golf in his old age. No other explanation of his desire to impose silence in sports generally will hold water. Unfortunately for the novel theory, the American cash customer in all forms of sport but golf believes that the admission he has paid at the gate entitles him to make all the noise he can, and he will undoubtedly continue to do so.

Somebody will be taking all the joy out of the baseball fan's life next by suggesting that umpires be treated with silence and respect.

"Judging from his attempts to strengthen his club," says Lanky Joe, "it seems as if Eddie Collins will finally give the 'Windy City' something to 'blow' about."

Industrial Title Award Protested

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Pacific Mills, twice winner of the Southern Textile association basketball championship, tonight protested the awarding of this year's title to Lyman Mills, of Lyman, S. C., and challenged the winners to a game March 6. The protest and challenge were contained in a telegram sent to L. P. Hollis, president of the association, by Coach Kenneth R. Kreps, of Pacific Mills.

Coach Kreps stated it as his belief that Pacific had "not received a fair deal," in that its team had been barred on account of an ineligibility ruling applied to certain Pacific players which was settled too late to allow participation in the tournament by the Columbia team. Later, according to Kreps, players on other teams who had been ruled out were admitted.

No reply has yet been received from Hollis, it was stated by Kreps.

PRO QUINTETS TO BE MORE STRICT

Frequent Fines Due; Brooklyn Claims Haggerty.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 14.—The American Basketball league will continue its season with the eight clubs which now make up the circuit, it was decided at a midseason meeting of the club owners at Hotel Statler today. There had been some talk of the league expanding, taking on a new club to succeed Boston, and still another entry, but this matter will not be decided until the summer meeting. It is reported that two of the biggest cities in the East would be glad to buy franchises.

A number of changes were made in the schedule for the remainder of the season. This was made necessary to fill dates that had been awarded to Boston. Only one change affects the Cleveland club. The game at Fort Wayne has been moved up from March 31 to March 10.

Most of the afternoon was spent in discussing the deportment of players, and every club owner agreed that there should be an improvement or more suspensions and fines.

PRESIDENT JOE F. CARR said he would assume responsibility for the action of officials he appointed to run games and that an improvement in department can be expected. He reported that fines have been imposed on Hickey and Friedman, of Cleveland; Miller, of Detroit, and Sugarman, of Washington.

Washington has released Sugarman, a veteran at the game. Brooklyn has taken on "Horse" Haggerty, center, recently released by Washington. It is likely that Haggerty will be seen in uniform here Wednesday, when Brooklyn plays Cleveland in Public hall in one of the most important contests of the season's second half.

Attending the meeting were President Carr, Vice President Max Rosenblum, and Treasurer I. S. Rose, of Cleveland; Al Heerdt, of Buffalo; George Halas, of Chicago; C. L. Alter, of Fort Wayne; L. S. Schulte, of Detroit; Jack Nieman, of Rochester; Gerry Schmeelk, of Brooklyn, and George Marshall, of Washington.

HOT STOVE LEAGUE

By Irwin M. Howe

COMES Claude William Willoughby for some attention and a dispute whether Mississippi Valley league is superior to the National. Willoughby could not get a winning record in the class D loop, but looked like a world beater when he joined the Phillies late in the past season.

Willoughby bumped up against Cincinnati in his first game in the majors and gave the Reds eight hits and one run in a full 9-inning game.

Manager Fletcher, of the Phils, picked out nothing soft for his recruit, and so the next time out he was pitted against Pittsburgh, the Pirates just then bowling over all comers in their raid on the pennant. Claude pitched seven innings, allowed one hit per inning and two runs, but the decision went against him.

TOWARD the fag end of the race he faced Brooklyn, whose only ambition was to stay out of last place, but even with that carefree disposition they were unable to get enough runs and the Iowa rookie was given credit for the game, even though they found him for 11 hits and 4 runs in seven innings.

That wound up his major league experience and now he is all set for the training camp grind.

Harking back to where he started it can be shown that a number of scouts looked him over. The Chicago White Sox almost had him once.

They may be sorry that they never that robust on the winning didn't snare him, but his record was that the league worked on the basis of a 128 game schedule.

CLAUDE allowed almost one hit per inning, 185, which produced 105 runs. He must have had something on the ball as he whiffed 102 batters, but there seems to be a catch in this, as the records show that he hit, 12 batsmen and made 13 wild pitches.

From this it might be judged that he was liberal with his passes, and he was, issuing 78. This is a considerable number for a right-hand hurler, but the scouts reported that he had so much on the ball that he didn't dare to let go except at intervals.

The new acquisition of the Philside to impress the owners; so he remained with Waterloo of the Mississippi Valley league almost from the time he broke into professional baseball except for a period in 1924 when he was given a whirl with Milwaukee in the American association.

Willoughby pitched a lot of ball last season with Waterloo but wound up the season with 10 won and 15 lost, which prompts the query of the seeming class of the valley circuit. He pitched in 27 games for a total of 192 innings, which is a fair record considering lies was born at Fredonia, Kans., November 14, 1900, but even though the well-known Kansas sky was the limit, he only grew to 5 feet 9½ inches in height. He tips the scale at 170 pounds.

His first experience in organized baseball was with the Independence team of the Southwestern league, but it was left to the corn-fed sons of the Hawkeye State to see him grow up to major league stature.

FEW MAY RECOGNIZE, EXCEPT BY THE CHARMing smile, America's own Helen Wills, tennis David, who is to meet the French Goliath, Suzanne Lenglen, on the Riviera. The picture was taken in California when Miss Wills was 15 years old, five years ago.

throws by Glasco, Kennedy and Saunders soon gave Palace a 6 to 1 lead.

THE visitors then rallied. A basket by "Biz" Miller and foul tosses by him and Chadwick put Fort Wayne in front, 7 to 6. Kearns' two-pointer and fouls by Kennedy and Grody enabled Washington to lead at half-time, 13 to 9.

Play in the second half was bitter but the locals kept in front all the way, Kennedy and Saunders scoring all of Washington's points, all but two of which were made on foul throws.

Baskets by Shimok and Stonebreaker pulled the visitors up to within two points of a tie 7 minutes before the end of the half. However, with the score 19 to 17 at this stage, Palace hogged possession of the ball and kept the visitors from scoring while Saunders and Kennedy each added another point on foul tosses.

Pittsburgh Awarded All Schedule Plums

New York, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates, world's baseball champions, will not play a single holiday engagement away from home, according to the National league schedule for 1926.

The season will open April 13 with the following games: Brooklyn at New York, Boston at Philadelphia, Chicago at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh at St. Louis. Six of the teams will end play September 26, but Boston and Philadelphia will play a three-game series after that date.

Ten Saturdays, 19 Sundays and one holiday have been awarded to Ebbets field, Brooklyn, while Philadelphia has only 12 Saturdays and two holidays.

Indiana Has Hold On Scoring Leaders

Chicago, Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Iowa may be the State where the tall corn grows, but in Indiana they raise prime basketball players.

The Hoosier State holds five of the six leading places on the Western conference basketball high-scoring roster. Sprailing, Purdue captain, who finished sixth in the standing last season, has tightened his tenacious hold on the peak, adding sixteen markers during the week for a total of 75.

The big ten's best basket shooters' club lost a prominent member during the week when Ralph "Moon" Baker, Northwestern gridiron and cage star, succumbed to scholastic difficulties and was ruled ineligible.

RIVAL WOMEN TENNIS STARS STILL WINNING

watching her prospective opponent of Tuesday. She nodded and smiled to friends, but said nothing.

Naturally Miss Wills has improved since her first appearance on the Riviera courts three weeks ago. She played a more varied and diversified game today than she ever has shown. She worked her fast forehand and cross court drives with electrical speed, and her backhand was the best seen in these paris. Once in a while she would drop a little puny shot over the net for an irretrievable point, catching Miss Bennett on the backline, where the English girl was expecting a tremendous drive. But her overhehd game still is lacking steadiness. Should she lose to Mlle. Lenglen, it is thought that her volleying will be responsible, as her ground strokes are considered fully up to the Lenglen standard.

"I want to reach the finals without the loss of a game," said Mlle. Lenglen after the match. "If I am going to lose game in this tournament they will have to get it out of me at the point of a gun."

The correspondent asked: "Does this mean that you expect to beat Miss Wills in straight love sets?"

"Never mind about Miss Wills," she replied. "I am talking about the tournament not the finals. I wish you would not keep pestering me with questions about Miss Wills."

Miss Wills said: "I am satisfied with my match against Miss Bennett. She is a remarkable young player and will be heard from before two years, or I miss my guess."

LITHUANIANS BEATEN BY YANKEES

Visitors Sub for Atlas After Playing Aloy; Score, 29 to 16.

THE Yankees outspeeded the Lithuanians, of Baltimore, to score a 29-to-16 victory in the preliminary to the Palace-Fort Wayne game at the Arcade last night. The visitors showed the effects of the hard game they had played in the afternoon against the Aloysius quintet and were pretty tired in the last half.

The Atlas team, also of Baltimore, which the Yankees were scheduled to play, was unable to be present owing to an automobile accident while coming here.

Jack Smith and Harvey Ingley were the outstanding stars in last night's victory for the Yanks. Both played bang-up games, but Smith had a slight edge for scoring honors, accounting for 10 points, while Ingley was but one behind him. Smith scored all of his points on scrimmage goals, while Ingley got one of his from the foul line.

THE Yanks jumped off in the lead on baskets by Smith and Ingley and maintained the advantage over the visitors throughout the first half, their widest margin existing at 16 to 7. However, Bartos scored for the visitors just before the end of the half, which found the Yanks leading, 16 to 9.

The Yanks were not forced to extend themselves in the second half and took matters easily, but did not relax in their guarding, keeping the visitors pegging for the basket from a goodly distance.

Substitutions—Dienhart for Sauber, Ford for Sumner, Sauber for Ingley, Watson for Bartos. Field goals—Smith (5), Ingley (4), Dienhart (2), Goetz, Ford, Bartos (2), Strunge (2), Gedra, Allen Muzdakis. Foul goals—Smith (6 in 11), Ingley (1 in 1), Goetz (1 in 1), Ford (1 in 1), Muzdakis (1 in 1), Bartos (0 in 1), Strunge (0 in 5), Gedra (1 in 1). Referee—Joe Fitzgerald.

Rockville Firemen Schedule Four Bouts

Rockville, Md., Feb. 14.—Four bouts have been arranged for the second annual show for the benefit of the Montgomery county volunteer firemen to be held February 22. Frankie Mann, of Washington, has gathered the card, which will be topped by a clash between Sailor Kendricks, Mohawk A. C., and Jack Turner, the army scrapper. The others will pair off as follows: Johnny Raffo vs. Dick Richardson, Jack White vs. Gypsy Smith and Johnny Meek vs. Billy Strickler.

Lotus Club to Hold Baseball Gathering

The Lotus club will hold a baseball meeting Thursday night. All members are requested to get in touch with the manager. Gold footballs will be awarded to players on the 1925 Lotus eleven.

In basketball the Lotus team is hitting the high spots at present, having won its last eight games, Harry Wechsler, Jack Bogan and Frank Paroni are the stars. Call Columbia 2391 for games.

Ball Catches In Basket in Freak Play

By AL DEMAREE,
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

I'VE been a basketball fan for years and have watched dozens of amateur and pro games around the country, but a shot pulled in a recent Michigan-Northwestern university game certainly won the brown derby for freak shots.

Mathews, a forward for the Purple team, was almost under his own basket and was just in the act of throwing the ball out of danger. In some way his arm or hand came in contact with Oosterban, all-American Michigan end, and a guard on their basketball quintet. In some unaccountable way the ball shot out of Mathews' hand upward, caught in the net and swept the net up over the basket, and there it stayed, wedged in between the net and the hoop. Looking through the rules I can not find one that covers this shot, and I really believe that it was a legitimate basket for Michigan. However, the referee thought otherwise and called it a dead ball, and in basketball, like baseball, the official wins all arguments.

Major League Stars of 1925

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Second Basemen.

EDDIE COLLINS has long monopolized attention at second base. His work, what there was of it, was distinctly high grade last year, but he was forced out of the game long before the season's close with a bad leg. Hence his record on the point system that we have adopted as giving the fairest insight into a player's work for a season, suffers considerably as we shall see.

In the defensive departments of play O'Rourke, of Detroit, led, with the highest fielding average, .971. Bucky Harris, the Washington manager, was close behind, with .970.

McManus, whose work with the St. Louis Browns has never perhaps been rated as high as it deserves, led in assists, with 440. Harris was second, with 429.

McManus also handled the most fielding chances, 919. Harris was again second, with 831. On the offensive Collins led, as usual, with the highest batting average, .346. O'Rourke was a rather bad second, with .293.

MCMANUS, who played in the regular line-up consistently from start to finish, made the most hits, 169. Harris was second with 158. McManus hit for the most total bases, 268. O'Rourke was second, with 219.

McManus also scored the most runs, 108. Harris was second, with 91. Collins, old as he is, showed the way to other American league second baseman on the base paths. He stole 19 bases in his unfortunately abbreviated season. Harris was second, with 14.

Harris proved his worth as a sacrifice hitter, with the high total of 41. O'Rourke was second, with 29.

McManus showed up well in driving home runs. He was responsible for no fewer than 90 tallies. Collins gained second place, with 80.

THE so-called experts would choose Eddie Collins or Stanley Harris as the leading second baseman in the American league last season.

Perhaps they would be justified in their choice. But we are obliged to confine ourselves to the testimony of the records. Those silent witnesses may not at all times be convincing, but they are surely unbiased.

In those records the consistently good work of McManus shows up to advantage. He led in 6 out of a possible 10 points. Although Harris led in but one, he was second no fewer than six times.

His work is considerably more impressive than that of Collins, who led in two events and was second in one other. On the evidence of the records McManus did the most effective work at second base in 1925.

ON THE DEFENSE.

Highest fielding average—O'Rourke, .971; Harris, .970.

Most assists—McManus, 440; Harris, 429.

Most total chances—McManus, 919; Harris, 831.

ON THE OFFENSE.

Best batting average—Collins, .346; O'Rourke, .293.

Most hits—McManus, 169; Harris, 158.

Most total bases—McManus, 268; O'Rourke, 219.

Most runs—McManus, 108; Harris, 91.

Most stolen bases—Collins, 19; Harris, 14.

Most sacrifice hits—Harris, 41; O'Rourke, 29.

Most runs responsible for—McManus, 90; Collins, 80.

MacFarlane-Hampton Beat Foreign Pros

Key West, Fla., Feb. 14 (By A. P.).—Willie MacFarlane, United States open champion, and Harry Hampton, local professional, defeated Archie Compston, British, and Arnaud Massey, French champions, two up in a 36-hole match on the Key West municipal links today.

There were only eight decisive holes in the contest, with the foreigners winning three and Hampton and MacFarlane taking five. Sensational driving by Compston and excellent putting by MacFarlane featured the match. The match attracted one of the largest galleries ever seen on the Key West course.

Girls' Team Is Sought For Alexandria Game

A Washington girls' basketball team is wanted to oppose an Alexandria girls' team in a game to be played as a preliminary to the R. E. Knight-Wonder Five game on Wednesday evening.

The Metropolitan sextette especially is challenged. Any team wishing to schedule this game is requested to telephone Fred Pettit at Alexandria 661 between 5:30 and 7 tonight.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause — Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

UR RUINS GO BACK TO HISTORY'S DAWN

that the cylinders probably were a degradation of the "great hollow prisms covered with inscriptions that were found by the French excavators at Tello beneath the floors of the earlier ruler, Gudea."

Digging below walls of buildings of 2000 years and more, B. C., two or three feet below the Dungi levels, the excavators found rooms with walls of plano-convex mud bricks—small pudding-like bricks rounded on the top, and floors of fine red clay or burnt brick pavements. A small white shell carving of a seated bull, "an admirable example of early art, belonging to the first dynasty of Ur, some 3300 B. C.," was found in rooms there unearthed.

"Twenty feet more beneath these walls," the report added, "were still older walls, belonging to a time when the use of shaped bricks, even of crude clay, was the exception rather than the rule and men just brought basketfulls of fairly firm and dry clay and rammed them together with a softer mud mortar into a kind of terra pisee which was found difficult to distinguish from the surrounding work. We traced out the limits of the pre-historic terrace so constructed whereon the later kings of the third dynasty had built, raising its level by filling with mud and debris the spaces between the old walls."

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Washington, Sunday, February 14.—8 p. m.

Forecast: For the District of Columbia: fair and slightly colder Monday, colder Monday night; Tuesday fair; fresh northwest winds, diminishing by Monday night.

For Maryland, generally fair and slightly colder in east and snow flurries and colder in west portion Monday; colder Monday night; Tuesday fair; strong northwest winds on the coast, diminishing by Monday night.

For Virginia, generally fair and colder Monday and Monday night; Tuesday fair; strong northwest winds on the coast, diminishing by Monday night.

The disturbance that was central over southeastern Kansas Saturday night has moved rapidly east-northeastward, and is now central a short distance south of New York city, where the barometer reads 29.26 inches. A trough of low pressure extends southwestward to the Texas coast, reaching a distance of 1,500 miles inland from the north Pacific over British Columbia, and still another is central over Utah. The northwest area of high pressure is advancing southeastward over the Rocky mountain region, the plains States, and the Missouri valley, with highest pressure 30.22 inches at Rapid City, S. Dak. The barometer is comparatively high over the Canadian maritime provinces and from Bermuda southwestward to the Bahamas. There have been rains within the last 24 hours in the Ohio valley, the middle Mississippi, and lower Missouri valleys, the middle Atlantic States, the Appalachian region, and the Pacific States, and snow or rain in the Rocky mountain and southern plateau regions, the north Atlantic States, the northern plain States, and the northern lake region. The temperature has risen over the northeastern States and Montana, and it has fallen from Minnesota and North Dakota southward to Arkansas, Texas and western Tennessee. The weather has become much colder in Minnesota and eastern South Dakota.

The Atlantic coast disturbance will continue to move east-northeastward, and precipitation will probably continue Monday in the upper Ohio valley, the lower lake region, and in portions of the north Atlantic and south Atlantic States. Otherwise mostly fair weather will prevail Monday and Tuesday in the States east of the Mississippi river. Colder weather will overspread practically all sections east of the Mississippi river during the next 24 hours, but no unusually low temperature is indicated by any section.

Storm warnings remain displayed from Cape Hatteras to Eastport, Me.

NORTHEAST LIGHTS TO BE UNDER WAY WITHIN 2 WEEKS

Installation Will Begin When Weather Permits, It Is Expected.

WORK ON H STREET FIRST TO BE FINISHED

Bladensburg Road to Follow, With Illumination Similar to Northwest.

Installation of new lights on H street and Bladensburg road northeast is to start within ten days or two weeks.

This assurance was given to a committee of three from the Northeast Business Men's association by F. C. Lyman, District superintendent of street lighting, it was reported. The committee that called on Mr. Lyman was headed by William Smith, 651 H street northeast, other members being Harry P. White and W. R. Lewis, bank officers of the Northeast.

Similar to Northwest Lights.

The new lights will be mounted on 16-foot poles and the globes will be similar in design to those recently placed on Sixteenth street and Massachusetts avenue. Unlike those lights, however, the ones in the Northeast will be arc lights of 6.6 amperes, with slightly less candlepower than those on Sixteenth street.

The lights on H street will extend from Fifteenth and H streets northeast to Third and H streets northwest and those on Bladensburg road from Fifteenth and H streets northeast to the District line.

The lights will be placed in the center of Blandensburg road. Several of the double lights, such as are used at circles in the Northwest, will be placed at the intersection of Fifteenth and H streets northeast.

Work on H Street First.

Work will be started on the H street lights first and it will require one or two months to complete installation. Work will be started on the Bladensburg road lights immediately after completion of the installation of lights on H street.

W. B. Hadley, District electrical engineer, said yesterday that the new lights would be the new Washington type of lamps approved by the fine arts commission. He indicated that work on their installation had been delayed due to the severe weather, and expressed the opinion that the installation would begin as soon as the weather permits.

Federation of Women Hear Lincoln Tribute

Garnet C. Wilkinson and Edgar C. Snyder were the principal speakers at a celebration of "Lincoln-Douglass day" under auspices of the Federation of Women of Washington and vicinity at the Metropolitan Baptist church last night. Miss Eliza Coppage appeared as a dramatic reader. Musical numbers were furnished by Clyde Glass.

The life of Lincoln was retold by Mr. Snyder, with especial reference to its present-day significance. Mr. Wilkinson spoke of Frederick Douglass as he knew him intimately many years ago at his Anacostia homestead. The celebration was in charge of a committee representing various organizations of colored women: Mrs. M. D. Butler, chairman; Mrs. E. R. Holcomb, Miss Anna E. Thompson, Mrs. S. R. Parker, Mrs. L. R. Pollard and Mrs. Anna C. Williams.

Barber Asks Police To Find Missing Wife

Augustino Santucci, barber, 1536 North Capitol street, has asked police to find his wife who, he says, left their home above his shop Friday morning, after leaving a note stating she was going away and asking him not to look for her. Police and relatives of the missing woman have failed to find any trace of her, Santucci says.

He said he left home last Friday morning at 11 o'clock to take Tony, their 6½-year-old son, to school at Eighth and N streets, and when he returned fifteen minutes later, he found his wife gone and her note.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, of Virginia, will speak and sing at the third annual banquet of the Chaminade Glee club at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at the Lafayette hotel. The Rev. Earle Wilfley will speak.

Representative Woodrum will be accompanied by Mrs. Helen T. Murray. Mrs. Ethel Holtzclaw Gawler will sing, accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth Gardner Coombes. Miss Edith B. Athey will accompany the "community singing" during intermissions of the banquet. Miss Lillian M. Anderson, president, will preside. Miss Esther Linkins is director of the club.

Minister Commends Lincoln As Standard

Abraham Lincoln should be a model for present-day statesmen, the Rev. Frank Steelman, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Pennsylvania avenue and Fifth street southeast, declared in his evening sermon last night. Lincoln's words, "I could not take the office without taking the oath, nor was it my view that I might take the oath to get the power and break the oath in using the power," should be carefully pondered by a "brand of would-be statesmen" of the present, he said.

Mr. Steelman chose for his suoject "An Old Landmark." In former times landmarks were faithfully preserved, and punishment inflicted for their defacement, he said. The Constitution, he declared, should be such a landmark.

EXERCISES WILL HONOR MAINE HEROES TONIGHT

Spanish War Veterans to Observe Anniversary at Fort Myer.

WILBUR TO BE SPEAKER

The officers and men who went down with the Maine when the battleship was destroyed February 15, 1898, will be honored by memorial exercises on the twentieth anniversary of the sinking of the vessel in the riding hall of Fort Myer, Va., tonight.

The exercises will be given under the auspices of the District of Columbia department of the United Spanish War Veterans and will begin at 7:30 o'clock. Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur will deliver the principal address.

Lieut Gustavo M. Torroella, naval attache of the Cuban embassy, will also make an address. Clarence A. Belknap, department commander of the Spanish War Veterans, will also speak. Capt. John Lewis Smith, past commander in chief of the Spanish War Veterans, will be in charge of ceremonies.

The Marine band will play. A program has been arranged by Capt. William H. Santelmann, band leader. The call to order will be made by Lee H. Harris, past department commander. Milton O. Beebe, chaplain of Fort Myer, will deliver the invocation. Mrs. Flora McGill Keefer will sing the "Star-Spangled Banner," accompanied by the band.

The exercises will be broadcast over station WCAP. The Ladies' Auxiliary and Lineal society of the Spanish war at 2 o'clock will place on the Maine memorial in Arlington wreaths presented by President Coolidge and the republic of Cuba.

CEREMONIES TONIGHT FOR SUSAN B. ANTHONY

Musical and Dramatic Program to Mark Observance of 106th Birthday.

The 106th birthday anniversary of Susan B. Anthony will be observed tonight by the Susan B. Anthony Foundation with a program of music and dramatic sketches at the First Congregational church. Leading incidents in Miss Anthony's life will be presented by members of the foundation dressed in costumes of the time. The sketches will be under the direction of Mrs. William E. Chamberlain.

Mrs. Wayne B. Wheeler and Mrs. Carolyn Norton Bost, accompanied by Mrs. Achsah Wentz Enfield, dressed in old-fashioned costumes, will sing a group of old-time songs. Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, will speak on the life and work of Susan B. Anthony.

The sketches to be presented will include "A Teacher's Convention," "A Meeting of the Sons of Temperance," "The First Congressional Hearing" and "The Trial for Voting." Principal parts will be taken by Mrs. Mabel Owen Wilcox, W. E. Bryant, Mrs. Ada L. Townsend, Mrs. Charles J. Morris, Mrs. W. E. Bryant, Mrs. Luella M. Mackenman, Mrs. Lucy Cooper Shaw, Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, Mrs. George Phillips, Mrs. Legare O'Bear, Mrs. Mabel B. Hiatt, Miss Celia Barrie, William S. Adams, A. T. Beane, Paul Starkweather, Mrs. William E. Chamberlain, Mrs. R. W. Gates, Mrs. Mary Orr Essey and Mrs. Florence C. Estabrook.

TRINITY CHURCH HAS 3 MEMBERS WHOSE TOTAL AGE IS 266

George R. Cook, 86, Is Entering Seventy-Fourth Year as Regular Attendant.

MRS. M. E. SMALLWOOD JOINED 78 YEARS AGO

Mrs. Rebecca Palmer, 86, Has Been Communicant for 69 Years.

Among churchgoers, mostly young, several middle aged and a few gray, who attended Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, yesterday was one man who has been a member of the church longer than the allotted space reckoned as the life of man.

He is the oldest member of the church and has been the Sunday school superintendent for 35 years. George R. Cook, 714 Fourth street southeast, is the most regular in attendance of all the members also. He is 86 years old and has been a member of the church for 73 years. During the latter part of the civil war he was treasurer of the Sunday school.

In the congregation also was Thomas E. Trazzare, 509 Fifth street southeast, who has been a member for 55 years.

Another Is 83 Years Old.

The members next in seniority to Mr. Cook were both absent because of illness, however. Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Smallwood, 1603 Lincoln road northeast, 83 years old, and Mrs. Rebecca Palmer, 84 years old, joined the church the same year 69 years ago. The combined membership of all four is 266 years. Mr. Trazzare, who is 83 years old, was a member of a church in Baltimore, however, before he moved to Washington in 1871.

Mrs. Smallwood is the oldest member of the Sunday school, she declares. She joined the Sunday school at the age of 5, 78 years ago. At that time, she says, she "had to be picked up and placed in the chair" and her "feet did not touch the floor."

Mr. Cook's 73 years as a church member has protected him well. His chief mark of age is his white hair, but then he has all his hair. His voice is clear and his memory direct and final, and his attitude and actions unfaltering and calm.

At the outbreak of the war he was one of the first volunteers. He was one of Lincoln's guards at his first inauguration. He was under the command of Gen. Winfield Scott and was "prepared to meet an emergency" with a loaded musket.

Sang in Choir Before War.

Mr. Trazzare, also a veteran of the civil war, was born in Queen Anne county, and learned the trade of carriagemaking on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Mrs. Smallwood in the days before the civil war sang in the choir of Trinity church, wearing the hoopskirt and other forms of dress peculiar to the period.

Trinity church was established in 1802. It was then Ebenezer church, and has since been East Washington church, Fourth Street church and Trinity church. It was named Trinity and moved to its present location in 1896.

MacNider to Be Guest At Infantry Luncheon

The Assistant Secretary of War, Col. Hanford MacNider, will be the guest of honor at the second of a series of luncheons given by the Washington branch of the United States Infantry association at the Lafayette hotel tomorrow. About 125 members of the association will be present.

Among the other guests will be the chief of staff of the army, Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, and the deputy chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Dennis E. Nolan.

Dawes to Open Drive For Filipino Orphans

Vice President Dawes will call to order a meeting at the Mayflower hotel Wednesday night to launch a nation-wide drive for a $2,000,000 endowment fund for the care of 18,000 orphans in the Philippine islands.

Pleas for the orphans, many of them sons and daughters of American soldiers sent to occupy the Philippines, were made at many Washington churches yesterday. The Rev. Charles Wood, Church of the Covenant, lauded the little band of Americans organized in the Philippines as the American Guardian association, which is striving to care for the orphans.

ARCHBISHOP CURLEY DEDICATES CHURCH OF NATIVITY HERE

PROMINENT CHURCHMEN ASSIST AT CEREMONIES

New 3-Story Edifice Contains Church, School and Auditorium.

Christian education is the only means that will diminish crime and immorality, the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, archibshop of Baltimore, yesterday told a large gathering at the dedication ceremonies of the Nativity Catholic church.

The archbishop said the attempt to reduce crime and immorality by legislation, such as prohibition, was doomed to failure and that the only means to accomplish this purpose is to instill Christian morals and religion in the children when their minds are plastic. He explained that this belief was the reason the Catholic church placed so much emphasis on the training of its children in parochial schools, where they can have not only the finest secular education possible, but the proper training in their duties to God and country.

Archbishop Curley said that since the time of Constantine, who permitted open expression by the church, the Catholic church has been especially interested in education, both secular and religious, and that the world at this time needs Christian education more than ever before.

Praises new Church.

Speaking of the new church, Archbishop Curley congratulated the congregation on its new edifice and said that it was one of the most beautiful churches in the archdiocese. He explained that one of the most important doctrines of the Catholic church was the doctrine of the true presence on the altar of Christ in the blessed sacrament and that it was because of this belief of the Church that so many beautiful churches had been built.

The archbishop said that this church was but another link in the chain that made the Catholic Church one entity even as in the days of Christ and the early martyrs and that the church was teaching in the present the same morals and teachings that had been taught by the apostles and early Christians. He also praised Harry J. Daly, who gave the ground for the church 25 years ago.

The ceremonies began at 11 o'clock in the morning with the blessing of the exterior and interior of the edifice and the altar by Archbishop Curley, assisted by the Rev. John Wade, pastor of St. Phillip and St. James' Catholic church, Baltimore, Md., and the Rev. Francis Lyons, president of St. Paul's college, Brookland.

Pastor Officiates.

The dedication ceremonies were followed by solemn high mass sung by the Rev. F. X. Bischoff, pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. James A. Geary, of the Catholic university, who acted as deacon, and the Rev. John McGary, chaplain of Walter Reed hospital, who acted as subdeacon. The Rev. B. J. Hanneman, assistant pastor of the church, acted as master of ceremonies. He was assisted by Leo Schrider.

The Rev. Charles Fleischell, of the Franciscan monastery, assisted on the altar. Archbishop Curley gave the sermon. The Rev. Charles Hart, of the Catholic university, who was scheduled to speak also, was unable to attend as he was called suddenly to his home in Illinois by the sudden illness of his father.

The new church is a three-story building, with space for the activities of the parish in the same building. The church is on the first floor. The school is on the second floor and the auditorium and Sunday school room in the basement. It is located at 6000 Georgia avenue northwest.

Archbishop to Speak At Sodality Meeting

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, archbishop of Baltimore, will address a mass meeting of the Sodalities of Washington at 8:15 o'clock tonight in Gonzaga hall. The Very Rev. Patrick E. Conroy, pastor of St. Mary's church, Bryantown, Md., will also speak. Miss Mary M. Mattingly, president of the Sodality Union, will report on the work accomplished by the organization during the past year.

The Rt. Rev. C. F. Thomas, pastor of St. Patrick's church, will preside at the meeting. The Rev. Leo J. Fealy, spiritual director of the union, will be host to the guests. Music will be furnished by the Dixie Ramblers, under the direction of Richard I. Schaefer. Solos will be sung by Miss Hazel C. Arth, accompanied by Miss Mary Louise Sullivan.

Church Group Opens 3-Act Play Tonight

The St. Peter's Players will present a three-act farce comedy, "A Pair of Sixes," tonight and tomorrow night at St. Peter's parish hall, Second and C streets southeast. The play is the same that ran for two years on Broadway.

The Rev. John C. Moore is supervisor of the players and has William A. Walsh directing the play. Walsh will also play the leading role, the same he played while with the American forces in France. Other members of the cast are: Blanche Lothrop, Mildred Repetti, Margaret O'Connor, Margaret Bekloff, Thomas O'Donnell, Louis Frick, Howard Smith, Chris Sanfellipo, Joseph Norton, Aloysius Davis and Alfred McGarraghy.
